Cold Wave Warnings.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Much colder weather in the East must be looked for in the next 36 hours. A disturbance moving northwestward to the lower St. Lawrence valley will bring snow flurries tonight in the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region, if the Weather Bureau's prediction holds good. In the wake of the disturbance the temperature will drop decidedly in all sections between the Mississippi River and the Atlantic Coast. Cold wave warnings are out for Western Kentucky, Northwestern Ohio and Northwestern Tennessee. Frost is probable from Mississippi eastward to extreme Northern Florida.

FIRST SNOW OF SEASON FALLS IN ST. LOUIS

Flurry Follows Rain Which Started Soon After 7 A. M. —Soon Disappears.

The first snow of the season fell in and around St. Louis today. Tonight the temperature will drop as low as 28. Tomorrow will be warmer.

"A rainstorm started moving northeast from Oklahoma yesterday morning, about the same time an area of cold weather began pushing down from the northwest," Weather Forecaster Hayes explained. "Where the cold and rain met in the Mississippi Valley today, we had snow.

"There is nothing unusual about the snow or the cold at this time of the year, except by contrast, as September and October were mild

Amateur weather experts, who ride on bus tops or in topless flivvers, regardless of the weather, found the rain was getting "hard" about 7:15 a. m. The rain drops were half solid and hard enough to sting the face, yet not solid enough to be sleet. Ten minutes later the "hard" rain had developed into real snow flurries.

Cold Wave Comes Into Central Mississippi Valley.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 9.—A cold wave, accompanied by rain, sleet and snow flurries, today moved into the Central Mississippi Valley region from the Southwest states, where generally clear skies prevail after two days of unsettled weather. Originating in Canada, the storm swept Western Montana and the Dakotas, then settled over Nebraska and Kansas, where shifting winds yesterday sent low clouds over Missouri, Oklahoma and Northern Texas. Temperatures were dropping early this morning in Eastern Missouri and Northern Arkansas, changing a drizzling rain to sleet at some points.

A three-inch snow fall in Western and Southern Kansas yesterday delayed trains. Snow plows were sent to Mineola, Kan., to release two transcontinental trains on the Rock Island lines, stalled in deep cuts. The Santa Fe and Union Pacific lines also had trouble in Southern Kansas, but all railroads reported normal schedules this morning.

LAW OF THE GUN ONLY ONE KNOWN IN WILLIAMSON

Sheriff Powerless With Only One Deputy, Constables Supine and Police Outnumbered.

TWO MURDERS WAIT FOR INVESTIGATION

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HERRIN, Ill., Nov. 9.—Not law. but the automatic pistol and the machine gun; no security save in the tenuous pledges of gangs of desperate outlaws; the machinery of law enforcement broken down, the right of honest men to peace and business prosperity ruthlessly and with impunity thrust aside—such is the plight of Williamson County today with an inquest still pending into the murder of Mayor Jeff Stone of Colp, Ill., and his pal. John Milroy.

Stone and Milroy, as told yesterday, were machine-gunned to death Saturday night at Colp, a coal mining town of 600 population, three miles west of here.

The shooting, of course, was no new thing to Williamson County, but it did serve once again to accent the fact that there is no law here as other communities know it, that the county is in the hands of two gangs who are themselves the law and that either gang, if it saw fit, might today take absolute control of the community, subject only to the interference of the other faction.

Sheriff Galligan Powerless.

Sheriff Galligan, who has only until Dec. 6 to remain in office, confesses himself absolutely helpless to cope with the situation, and he is borne out in that statement by the county payroll. Policing a county which has probably more armed men in it than any like district in the United States, Galligan has only one deputy and one office man. The deputy, besides attending to what police duties he can, also has the duty of serving papers for a Circuit Court whose docket is more crowded than the Circuit courts of St. Louis County. The office man has his hands full with the Sheriff's records.

Galligan, who has given a good account of himself in several standup pistol fights, besides tending to his own duties as Sheriff, must take care of the jail, which is always well filled.

He has asked for more deputies, but his request has been turned down by the Board of Supervisors because the county is broke. County officers all are saving their pay vouchers now against the day when the banks will honor them.

So it is that Galligan, by the grace of the voters Sheriff of the county, has definitely given up trying to enforce the law. Except for arresting minor offenders and suspects in killings removed from gang activities, he is altogether inactive.

Constables Also Inactive.

The constables of the township, too, do nothing to stamp out outlawry. Many of them are relics of the old days of Ku Klux Klan control. With the late S. Glenn Young to guide them, they were zealots in enforcement of the Federal prohibition act, and now and then they turned a hand to the enforcement of other laws.

But when the saturnine Young fell before the automatic of Galligan's chief deputy, Ora Thomas, the constables retired from the scene. They reappeared only once, last April, when they attempted to help control the election here for the Klan.

What happened is history. The Birger and Shelton gangs, now divided in bloody feud, were united in those days. They rode into town and engaged the Constables and their henchmen in a furious pistol battle. When the smoke cleared away six men, three from each side, had fallen. With the county thus shorn of what might have been two powerful enforcement agencies, there remain only the little police forces of the towns, ranging from one to six men. They are enjoined from activities against gangsters, not only by the boundaries of their towns, but by the fact that the gangs invariably outnumber the police force many times when they visit the towns.

Last Saturday night, after the shooting at Colp, for example, the gang which had staged the attack rode into Herrin 12 to 15 strong. There were two policemen on duty at the time.

Just how seriously the gang took the police force was shown by the

ARTIFICIAL SKINS FOR SAUSAGE MADE FROM CELLULOSE

Synthetic Imitation Said to Be Superior to Casings Provided by Nature.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Science, after 10 years of arduous research, has perfected a synthetic sausage skin.

The American Chemical Society announced today the invention of a sausage casing made from cellulose, which may be manufactured in any size. The synthetic casing is more quickly filled, and lacks all the imperfections which mark the natural covering.

Sausage casings at present come from Chinese, Russian, Levantine, New Zealand, Australian, Western European and South American sheep, and Chinese and native hogs. Research in the manufacture of synthetic sausage skins was begun in 1916 by C. L. Woirich and continued by Frank W. Stockton, William Henderson and Harold E. Dietrich.

BID OF $1,000,000 FOR U. S. MERCHANT FLEET

Shipping Board Rejects $4,000,000 Offer for Leviathan Alone; Considering Other Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Two formal offers by New York shipping interests to operate the fleet of the United States Lines and to purchase the five ships of the American Merchant Fleet for $1,000,000 was received by the United States Shipping board yesterday and taken under advisement.

The board had invited bids for both lines, but none was made to purchase outright the five passenger vessels of the United States lines. S. P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine, however, entered on behalf of the Atlantic Transport Line of New York a bid of $4,000,000 for the Leviathan alone and the Potter Steamship Co., Inc., of New York offered $1,050,000 for either of the two sister ships, President Roosevelt and President Harding of the United States Lines. These offers were dismissed by the board because they did not comply with the stipulations of the offer which provided for sale of the whole line.

The companies making direct offers for the American Merchant Fleet were William F. Kenny, and the J. H. Winchester Co., present operators of the American Merchant Fleet. Both bid $200,000 for each of the five merchant vessels and offered to enter into an agreement to operate the United States Lines fleet under charter.

A separate proposal by Kermit Roosevelt provides for the organization of a corporation to purchase the vessels of the American Merchant Fleet for $252,000 each on condition that the vessels of the United States Lines be allocated to the organization for operation.

WAX MODEL USED TO EXPLAIN HOW MRS. MILLS DIED

Dr. O. H. Schultz Tells Hall-Mills Jury Autopsy Showed Woman's Tongue and Larynx Missing.

FIVE HOURS SPENT ON FINGER PRINTS

Defense Attacks Value of That of Willie Stevens on Calling Card Found Near Hall's Body.

By the Associated Press.

SOMERVILE, N. J., Nov. 9.—After five hours of expert testimony in which two State witnesses reiterated testimony that the fingerprint of Willie Stevens appears on a calling card in evidence, Dr. Otto H. Schultz took the witness stand today in the Hall case to tell of performing an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, slain with Rev. Edward W. Hall. Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, are charged with the murder of Mrs. Mills.

Using a wax model to illustrate his testimony, Dr. Schultz told of a bullet wound in the middle of the forehead, the course of the bullet ranging slightly upward. In addition to the wax representation of the human head, a cross-section model was also placed before the witness.

Dr. Schultz said the upper part of the windpipe, the larynx and the tongue were missing from Mrs. Mills' body when he made the autopsy.

He testified there were three bullet wounds in the woman's head, either one of which was sufficient to cause death. The woman's throat had been cut with one slash of a knife, he said.

All the bullet wounds were made by .32 caliber bullets, Dr. Schultz said.

Referring to the knife slash, Prosecutor Simpson asked Dr. Schultz: "Was there any breathing after that wound?"

"The windpipe, the gullet and the larynx had been cut," he said, "and if there had been a breath taken it would have drawn blood into the bronchial tubes."

Dr. Schultz said that while there was no indication on the body as to how the upper part of the windpipe, the larynx and the tongue had been removed, they must have been cut out and could not have been torn out.

On cross-examination he said he also found a small puncture on the upper lip which could not have been caused by a bullet.

Hall's Body Not Mutilated.

Hall's body was not mutilated, the physician said, and contained only one bullet wound. The bullet entered four inches above the opening of the right ear and pursued a downward course to the base of the skull on the left side.

It was inflicted, he testified, while Hall was stooping or was fired by someone standing above him.

"Pretty good marksmanship, wasn't it?" asked Simpson after Schultz testified that the greatest distance between bullet wounds in Mrs. Mills' head was four inches.

The defense objecting, Simpson proposed to prove that Schultz was qualified to give such testimony.

Looks at Henry Stevens.

"I want to show," said Simpson, "that he knows enough to know that the man who put three bullets into Mrs. Mills' head on that dark night was an expert-marksman."

The prosecutor's head turned in the direction of Henry Stevens, one of the defendants, who at one time was a champion shot. Stevens appeared unmoved.

The objections continued, and Simpson announced that he would call his own firearms expert later.

Dr. Schultz also sad there was a bruise on the right index finger of Hall. How this bruise may have been caused was not brought out.

There were no abrasions or bruises on the body of Mrs. Mills, the witness said.

"Would any bruises have shown after four years?"

They would not, unless they were broken wounds, Dr. Schultz said. There was a long incision across the woman's abdomen, which had been sewed up with "baseball thread," such as undertakers use. Dr. Schultz said the incision was doubtlessly made after death, but the possible reason for making it was not brought out. No organs were missing from this part of this body, he said.

Dr. Schultz said a wound on Hall's upper lip might have been made by a blow struck by the hand of a man wearing a ring.

DEFUNCT BANK DEPOSITORS MAY BE PAID FROM OIL WELL

Test Hole on Texas Acreage Held by Linn County (Mo.) Depository Strikes Oil Sands.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., Nov. 9.—Depositors of the Linn County Bank had received only 10 per cent on the thousands of dollars deposited in the bank when it closed several months ago. Today Brookfield is agog with rumors about the bank paying in full and having money to spare following the striking of oil in the Texas Panhandle ground owned by the defunct bank. The bank holds 4000 acres there, and C. A. Greenless, Deputy Bank Commissioner, is in Texas looking after the interests of the depositors.

Several weeks ago when a gusher was struck a mile and half from the property, several former directors of the bank and business men of Brookfield raised $12,000 with which to exploit the land owned by the bank. A contract was awarded to drill 3500 feet, and a few days later, at 2100 feet, oil sand was struck and 150 feet of oil measured in the hole. High hopes are held that before the 3500 feet is reached a paying oil well will be forthcoming that will enable the defunct bank to pay all its depositors in full.

AIR MAIL DELAYED BY SNOW

St. Louis to Chicago Pilot Spends Night at Springfield.

A blinding snowstorm and fog at Chicago late yesterday delayed the arrival and departure of all air mail planes there and caused Charles A. Lindbergh, pilot of the north-bound plane of the St. Louis-Chicago route, to spend the night at Springfield, Ill., on the advice of the Weather Bureau and Chicago airport officials.

Lindbergh placed the mail on a train, which arrived at Chicago last midnight. Last Wednesday Lindbergh made a two-mile parachute leap from his plane near Bloomington, Ill., after exhausting his supply of gasoline in a vain search for a place to land during a snow and sleet storm. Fear that he would be forced to leave his plane again last night caused officials to hold him at Springfield. Lindbergh returned to St. Louis this morning with mail from Springfield and will take off for Chicago again at 4:25 p. m.

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON WEAKER

Condition of Former Speaker of House Causes Some Concern.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 9.—The condition of "Uncle Joe" Cannon is causing some concern. The former Speaker of the House, who is 90 years old, is failing. He sleeps and doses 16 to 18 hours a day. Newspapers are now read to him as he lies partly dressed. Up to a few weeks ago he always got the papers and read them himself.

He is not suffering from any ailment, according to the attending physician, Dr. Charles E. Winkinson, who says "he is just wearing out like a piece of old machinery. It is doubtful if he will live another month."

TWELVE PERSONS REPORTED KILLED IN WINDSTORM

Most of Casualties Thought to Have Occurred in Schoolhouse Wrecked at La Plata, Md.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 9.—A report that 12 persons were dead and an undetermined number injured in a windstorm which swept La Plata, Md., this afternoon was made to the Maryland health department by Dr. G. D. Heath, Charles and St. Mary's counties representative. Most of the dead were thought to be in a schoolhouse which was wrecked. There were 75 children in the schoolhouse at the time.

A man and his wife were known to have been injured in one of three homes also demolished. Nurses of the State health department were ordered to La Plata from adjoining counties.

Providence hospital in Washington was notified that several of the children were being transferred to that institution. La Plata is 31 miles south of Washington.

Dr. Heath told of seeing the school building, across the street from his office, "twisted as one would twist a piece of paper. I saw the building collapse over the children, who were screaming."

"The school building," Dr. Heath said, "is only a small two-room structure and it collapsed almost in a flash. The building was not blown over but seemed to be squeezed and twisted toward the center. I closed my eyes and when I opened them again, the building was a mass of wreckage. Screams were filling the air from under the broken boards and debris. Some of the children had managed to escape and were fleeing from the scene."

VOICES REGRET THAT FASCISTS BEAT FRENCHMEN

Italian Premier Eases Situation by Spontaneously Acting to Avoid Repetition of Two Incidents.

PARIS CONSIDERS AFFAIRS "CLOSED"

Speedy Trial of Those Who Made Attack Ordered—Italian Colonel "Admonished."

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Formal written expressions of regret for the anti-French incidents at Ventimiglia and Benghazi were handed to the French Ambassador in Rome today by Premier Mussolini in the form of an "aide memoire."

The French Foreign Office announces that, in view of this action and the satisfactory nature of Foreign Minister Briand's talk with the Italian Ambassador in Paris yesterday, the Government considers the incidents "closed."

This eases the situation between Paris and Rome, as the Ricciotti Garibaldi affair, involving anti-Fascist activities on the Riviera and the participation of Italians in the recent unsuccessful Catalonian plot on French soil, are considered purely police matters.

Mussolini's action in giving a written declaration to Ambassador Besnard was largely voluntary, the French Government having refrained from making any pressing demands in connection with the anti-French incidents.

Envoy Calls at Foreign Office.

Besnard called on the Italian Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs yesterday in reference to reorganization of police arrangements at Ventimiglia, which is a railway station on the Italo-French border.

The incidents at that place and at Benghazi, in Tripoli, closely followed upon the attempted assassination of Mussolini a week ago Sunday at Bologna.

At Ventimiglia French railway employes were beaten by Fascists, who resented the Frenchmen's failure to uncover during the playing of the Fascist hymn. Later a Fascist crowd made a demonstration in front of the French consulate, and one man mounted the balcony of the consulate and from it delivered an anti-French speech.

Mussolini told Ambassador Besnard at Rome that he had ordered the authorities at Ventimiglia to set judicial machinery in motion and speed up the trial of the man named Cauvin and others who might be responsible for the attack on the consulate.

Regarding the incident at Benghazi, Mussolini told Besnard that he had admonished the Colonel of Carabinieri who, according to report, forced the French Consul to hoist an Italian flag alongside the French tricolors on the consulate.

The Premier added that rigorous orders had been issued to prevent repetition of the affairs.

Documents in Garibaldi's Villa.

Ricciotti Garibaldi, member of one of Italy's noted families, within a few days probably will have to face Col. Macia, leader of the conspiracy for the separation of Catalonia from Spain, which was exposed by the French police. This announcement is made by a spokesman of the Foreign Office.

On the charge that he was involved in the plot, Garibaldi was brought to Paris from Nice several days ago, and both he and his brother, Sante Garibaldi, have been under examination by the French authorities.

In the meantime the examination of Garibaldi will be slowed up in order to permit the translators to decipher documents found in his villa at Nice.

Ricciotti had a short interview with his wife yesterday after which he obtained permission from the Ministry of Interior to have lunch outside police headquarters.

An Italian named Meschia has also been questioned. He is alleged to have had close relations with Ricciotti Garibaldi and Gino Lucetti, who attempted to assassinate Mussolini in September.

Police are still questioning the Italians and Spaniards who are held in custody in barracks near

JAPAN DECIDES TO DISCUSS NEW PACT WITH CHINA

Tokio Government Is First Officially to Show Willingness to Listen to Pekin's Demands.

REVISION OF TARIFF DESIRED BY CHINA

That Country Also Wants Extra-Territoriality Principle to Be Abolished — Belgian Pact Canceled.

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—The Japanese Government today decided to meet representatives of the Pekin Government to discuss the demands of the latter for a new treaty between the two countries.

The Cabinet decided to reply to a recent Chinese proposal for revision of the treaty, declaring that Japan would be pleased to meet representatives of the Pekin Government for an exchange of views on a new pact.

Japan thus becomes the first of several powers that have treaties with China to show a willingness officially to listen to the demands of China for a treaty that will incorporate some of her desires toward the abolition of extra-territoriality and the revision of customs duties.

Belgian Treaty Abrogated When Negotiations Were Delayed.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Nov. 9.—China's abrogation last Saturday of the Chinese-Belgian Treaty of 1865 may become of worldwide importance. It is the first cancellation of one of a series of treaties that concern the relations of 16 nations with China.

The treaty was abrogated by China after Belgium had delayed negotiation of a new treaty based on equality and reciprocity, and had proposed reference of the question to the International Court at The Hague.

Chinese officials pointed out to newspaper representatives that China had been unable to obtain treaty action by the various powers upon her note of June 24, 1925, in which China said that although she joined the victorious allied Powers in the World War, her own international status had remained "unimproved and is in some respects even inferior to that of the defeated nations, for in none of them do we find the existence of extra-territorial courts, foreign concessions, leased territories and an externally imposed conventional tariff."

The Belgian Legation issued a statement denying press reports that the Belgian attitude was influenced by suggestions from France and Japan. It says that the treaty was not subject to revision, still less to cancellation by China. Nevertheless, says the statement, Belgium expressed willingness to abrogate the treaty con-jointly with China, under certain conditions connected with the arrangement for continuing the relations of the two countries pending of a new treaty.

The 16 Powers having treaty rights in China and to whom China's note requesting revision was addressed are: Belgium, Brazil, Denmark, France, Great Britain Italy, Japan, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Peru, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States.

Some of these appointed committees on extra-territoriality and tariff. The committees, after laboring several months in China, dissolved, intimating that little could be done because of chaotic political conditions in China.

TWO REFORMATORY BOYS HELD

Captured by Detectives on Free Bridge, They Admit Escape.

Floyd Thedford, 17, of Cambia Ill., and Harry Wing, 17, of Kansas City, inmates of the Boonville Reformatory, who walked away Saturday, were arrested today by detectives on the Free Bridge as they were bound for Cambria. The youths said they walked 40 miles toward St. Louis, and rode the rest on top of a train. They were half frozen and altogether hungry.

Thedford, who is one of 12 children, said he took French leave because he wanted to see his mother and invited Harry along for company.

Great Demonstration for Mussolini in Italian Chamber.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 9.—The Chamber of Deputied today reopened with one of the most imposing demonstrations of loyalty to Premier Mussolini that has ever occurred in an Italian Parliament.

As the Premier entered the chamber, all the members present, as well as the crowded galleries, sprang to their feet, and applauded him for more than five minutes. "Viva Mussolini, viva duce," sounded through the hall repeatedly.

All the galleries, including those reserved for diplomatic representatives, were filled. The United States was represented by Warren D. Robbins, counselor at the American Embassy.

Mussolini's defense law, including the institution of capital punishment for attempts against the lives of the members of the royal family or the premier, was approved by the Chamber of Deputies today, 250 to 8.

Article 6, making foreigners guilty of violating the provisions against propandizing or spreading false rumors abroad equally punishable with Italians, was eliminated.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 9.—Assuming his seventh portfolio, that of Minister of Interior, Premier Mussolini today sent a personal letter to all the prefects in Italy, defining the duties expected of them. These duties he outlined as:

"Systematic, intelligent application of all laws defending the Fascist regime; rigid tutelage of public order, preventing the slightest disturbance or delay in the economic reawakening of the country; control and severe vigilance over the public administration and the use of public money; constant interest in the syndical-corporative question; and protection and justice for all those, both low and high, who work with discipline.

BRITISH OBJECT TO WAR FILM

LONDON Nov 9.—Representatives of 11 patriotic societies have asked Sir William Joynson-Hicks Home Secretary, to suppress "The Unknown Soldier," an American film during Armistice week Sir William said he sympathized with the petitioners' views but was powerless to act.

It is understood that the main objection is that the picture represents that the Americans won the war, a complaint which did not prevent "The Big Parade' from having the longest run on record here.

REFUND ON PHONE RATE DENIED BY COMMISSION

Increase Demanded by Company Decided to Be "Just and Reasonble," Public Service Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 9.—The State Public Service Commission yesterday denied a motion of the City of St. Louis in the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. rate case, seeking to require the company to make a refund to subscribers if the incerased rates now in effect for business telephones in St. Louis are not sustained by the commission in its final order.

The effect of this order by the commission is that there will be no refund to subscribers of the difference between the former and present business telephone rates in St Louis, should the commission rescind the increase at the termination of the case.

A hearing is set for Nov. 17 on the audit made by the commission's accountants of operating experience of the company for one year under the increased rate. The commission granted the increase effective July 1, 1925, for a test period of 13 months. The extensions of the rate schedule, for three months each, have been granted by the commission, the second extension expiring Jan. 31, 1927.

The commission order denying the city's motion for a refund, conditional on the present rates not being sustained stated that when the commission granted the increase, the commission found the Bell's proposed rate schedule "just and reasonable." The city appealed from the finding to St. Louis Circuit Court, which sustained the commission's order, and it was the opinion of the commission that the city's motion should be denied, the order stated.

NO HONEST VOTE IN PHILADELPHIA, NORRIS CHARGES

Nebraska Senator Indicates He Will Ask Reed Committee to Investigate November Election.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Senatorial lines were forming today for a potential contest over the seating in the seventieth Congress of Senator-elect William S. Vare, Republican of Pennsylvania, whose primary election expenditures have been investigated by the Senate Campaign Fund Committee.

A personal inquiry into the Pennsylvania situation is under way by Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, who campaigned in Pennsylvania on behalf of William B. Wilson, the Democratic candidate.

Meanwhile Senator Blease (Dem.) of South Carolina, announced that he would vote to seat both Senators-elect Vare and Smith (Rep.) of Illinois, unless it could be shown that their election had been brought about by fraud or corruption, and Senator David Reed (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, reiterated his intention to vote to seat his colleague on the ground that Republican expenditures in the Keystone State had been legal, honest and necessary.

New Inquiry Possible.

On the heels of the opinion of Senator Borah of Idaho, that the seventeenth constitutional amendment empowered Congress to control congressional primaries as well as general elections to "purge" them of "corruption," came an announcement from the Missouri home of Senator James A. Reed, and chairman of the Senate Campaign Funds Committee, that his committee can be called, under the Senate resolution which resulted in its appointment, to investigate the Pennsylvania elections "if it can be shown that because of monies contributed or promises made, the ballots were miscounted or fraudulent ballots were permitted to be cast, or that votes were bought."

In announcing his personal inquiry into the Pennsylvania elections, Senator Norris said that he would not hesitate to request the Reed committee to investigate the elections if facts were found to warrant such action. He reiterated his charge that the returns in Philadelphia disclosed that machine methods had been used there and that the record disclosed that no honest election had been held or that the honest results had been withheld.

Blease's View.

Senator Blease said his intention to vote to seat Senators-elect Vare and Smith, in the absence of a showing of fraud, was based upon his adherence to the doctrine of state's rights. He contended that a state has the indisputable right to send to the Senate anyone it chooses, and that the Senate may not go beyond the authenticity of the certificate of election.

His announcement was contrasted with previous statements of Senator Ashurst of Arizona, and other Democrats that they would challenge the right of Vare and Smith to their seats because of the expenditures in their primary campaigns.

The unofficial election figures gathered by newspapers and police gave Vare a total vote in Philadelphia of 306,679; Wilson, 71, 537.

Election Officials Called on to Explain Discrepancies.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—The entire Election Board of one division and the Democratic inspector of another, where no votes were credited to William B. Wilson, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, in the unofficial returns of last Tuesday's election, have been ordered to appear in the election court today to explain discrepancies shown by the official count.

The official tabulation showed that Wilson had received 35 votes in the Fourteenth Division, Twenty-fourth Ward, and Congressman Vare, his successful Republican opponent, 61. In the unofficial count election night the Vare figures were the same, but Wilson was not credited with any votes.

A number of similar discrepancies were noted by the Election Court in the 44 divisions in which Wilson was given a zero in the unofficial count and in others where he was credited with only one or two votes.

Th First Division of tht Thirty-third Ward went out of the Wilson "zero" class when the official returns gave him two votes. The vote in this division was: Vare, 300; Wilson, 2.

In the Fifteenth Division of the Thirty-fourth Ward and in the Sixth of the Thirty-sixth, where the Democratic senatorial candidate was credited with only one vote in the unofficial returns, it was shown that he had received 41 and 25, respectively.

The official tabulation in 35 of the 48 wards has been completed. It showed 27 "zero" election divisions for Wilson and 28 in which he received only one vote.

Reed Says Filing of Contest Is Way to Get Facts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 9. — The Senate campaign fund committee, headed by Senator Reed of Missouri, may go into new charges of fraud in the Pennsylvania senatorial contest.

This was made plain by Senator Reed here last night commenting on a statement by Senator Norris of Nebraska, charging fraud in the election William S. Vare over William B. Wilson.

In a statement, Senator Reed said he believed his committee had power to resume the Pennsylvania inquiry "if it can be shown that because of moneys contributed, or promises made, the ballots were miscounted or fradulent ballots were permitted to be cast or that votes were bought."

That the proper and more effective way of getting at the facts in the case would be a contest disputing the right of Vare to his seat was suggested by Reed. By this method, Wilson, the defeated candidate, would file a protest and a committee then would be apointed from the senate to investigate all charges.

"I assume if there has been a general, wholesale fraud in Philadelphia—which I do not at all charge for I know nothing regarding the facts touching the election of Nov. 2 in Pennsylvania—then it is natural to suppose that Wilson will contest Vare's seat. In that case of course a very thorough investigation could be had," Reed said.

Vare, Refusing to Talk, Goes to Washington.

By the Associated Press.

ST. LUCIE, Fla., Nov. 9.—United States Senator-elect Vare of Pennsylvania left today for Washington. He declined to comment on any plans he may have for defending his seat in the Seventieth Congress should a contest be filed.

Mrs. Vare accompanied her husband, who has been spending a few days at his winter home here. After issuing an emphatic denial of charges brought against him last week by Senator Norris, Vare refused to make any further comment on Pennsylvania politics, saying he was tired from a strenuous campaign and desired to "be let alone."

The reason for the decision to return to Washington was not announced.

Ballot Box in Precinct Where Vare Got 295 Votes Ordered Opened.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—The Election Court today ordered the opening of the first ballot box since it began canvassing the vote cast in Philadelphia at last Tuesday's election for United States Senator and other officers.

This was done because the Court could not understand the unanimity of the voters in the Second Division of the Thirty-sixth Ward, the returns from which showed that 295 votes had been cast for every Republican candidate from W S Vare for Senator down to the district candidate for the State Legislature. Not a single vote was credited to William B. Wilson, Vare's opponent, or any other Democrat. The election officers of the division were called into court to explain and recount the vote.

PRICE OF COAL RISES 50 CENTS MORE A TON

Second Increase in 10 Days Announced at Southern Illinois Mines.

Another increase of 50 cents a ton in the price of coal, the second such increase in the last 10 days, went into effect at Southern Illinois mines yesterday, and will be passed on to the St. Louis consumer when coal purchased yesterday reaches the local market.

The price in the Mount Olive field will be increased 50 cents a ton tomorrow. The price of coal from mines in the Belleville group mines is usually based on the price from Mount Olive and Southern Illinois fields. The latter field includes mines in Williamson, Franklin and Saline counties.

With this increase the retail price of soft coal here will range from $6 to $8.50 a ton, dependent upon quality. Further increases of $1 to $1.50 were predicted today by E. J. Wallace, coal operator and adviser to the United States Fuel Administrator for Missouri during the World War.

When the first increase went into effect last week, Wallace said the strong demand for Illinois coal from Eastern and foreign buyers would likely result in an acute local coal shortage. He said today, however, that reopening of a large number of Illinois mines within the last week will prevent a shortage "as long as local buyers are willing to pay the price."

Wallace said coal operators in non-union fields, including those in Kentucky which ship a large tonnage to St. Louis, have increased the non-union miners' wage scale so that it is now 5 per cent more than the union scale, in effect in Illinois. This was done, Wallace said, to increase production and keep all available miners in the field.

The Eastern and foreign demand for Illinois coal results from the prolonged strike of British coal miners. Settlement of the strike there would not materially affect the upward trend of prices here this winter, because of the time which would be required for British mines to return to normal operation.

The problem of preventing is a problem of saving children. The way to save them is to stop trying to give nine-tenths of them a book education which they are incapable of receiving, and to start training them to work with their hands. Cultivate in a boy, before he is 15, the habit of doing useful work with his hands, and you have put him into a groove that will keep him out of crime.

Habit Ruules Stupid Ones.

"We put 500 children in school together. At least 50 of them see the others run off and leave them. They are bewildered by books, and resentful that they cannot keep up with other children. They see themselves going into a world where the competition is too much for them. Pretty soon you find them on the streets, playing a different sort of game. Yet all children like to work with their hands, and once the habit is formed, it will cling to them. In fact, the stupidder a person is, the more that person is governed by habit. That is why the Republicans win by such steady majorities.

"If the State would see to it that no child ever passed out of childhood without learning a trade, it would stop most of the crime. Every criminologist and psychologist who has ever studied the problem has reached that conclusion. But is anything ever done about it? Do you ever see or head any reference to it from press or pulpit? Certainly not. All you hear is on the subject of increasing punishment and making it surer.

"The old theory that fear is a deterrent has been tried for several thousand years, and has never been anything but a failure yet. They used to hang a man on a high hill for picking a pocket. Thousands would come to see the hanging, and on the way home there would be more pockets picked and more men killed than at any other time of the year."

People Simply Won't Learn.

"People simply won't learn," he concluded. "The normal thing in this world is to be fairly simpleminded, and when a man has a real idea he is considered dangerous to society. As a matter of fact, he added, such a man is dangerous; when one begins to think, there is trouble ahead. The first thing he knows he will be studying astronomy and Socialism, and after that he will never be any good for the church, the Chamber of Commerce or the Republican party.

Darrow believed there are people in the world who ought to be in prison, because they simply can't live with other people. But they should be treated kindly, and a scientific effort should be made to help them adjust themselves to society, instead of punishing them because they have been unable to do so.

"If it was a typhoid epidemic," he said, "we'd do something intelligent about it, but so long as it is a 'crime wave,' we will continue to act like romantic imbeciles. There are causes for crime, just as there are causes for typhoid. There are two things that can be done about it.

"First, an education for children that will teach them something that they like to do and are able to do, and that will cultivate in them habits which will keep them out of trouble. Second, to make a more even distribution of the world's wealth."

Did anybody present think that either of these measures would be taken, he scoffed? Not likely. People are such dumbbells. Especially those in authority.

Telling Hall-Mills Bribe Story

part of the time, reduced somewhat the size of the crowds that each morning gather outside the Courthouse doors in the hope of gaining admission. Even today, however, the small courtroom was not big enough to hold all those who sought seats.

Mrs. Hall wore black as usual with a small white collar. Although Willie and Henry Stevens are in jail, they are paying strict attention to their appearance, arriving in court each morning as carefully dressed as if they had come directly from their homes.

Robert McCarter, senior defense counsel, continuing his cross-examination of Edward Schwartz, finger print expert of the Jersey City Police Department, drew from the witness the statement that detectives in seeking to apprehend criminals by finger prints always tried to get to the scene of a crime as soon as possible to get finger prints while they were fresh. Yesterday the defense attorney had brought out, through Schwartz and another finger print expert, that the alleged print of Willie Stevens' finger on a calling card found at the scene of the slaying had been kept several months in a desk, later taken to a newspaper office in New York City, and finally turned over to the investigators whose work resulted in the present trial.

"When you get finger prints do you hurry them to the office and place them under glass?" asked McCarter. "No," said Schwartz. "A man usually goes to the scene of the crime and makes a copy of the finger prints there."

"Because that impression may be eradicated by time and weather?" "Yes," answered the witness.

To bring out whether the heavy grasping of an object makes a stronger finger print than the light grasping of a calling card, McCarter dropped a card on the floor before the jury several times and picked it up repeatedly, apparently to let the jury itself decide whether the expert's statement was logical.

Judge Rebukes Attorneys.

The sharp tongue of Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, cut a new description of McCarter today. The latter had chuckled when he thought Simpson failed to establish a point he was endeavoring to press on redirect examination of Schwartz.

"I suppose I couldn't try this case without those chuckles," said Simpson. "Sergeant Buzfuz seems to be at his best today." (Buzfuz is one of the characters in Dickens' "Pickwick Papers.")

"Omit the personalities," ordered Judge Parker.

On redirect examination of Schwartz, Simpson laid the foundation for another support for the testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson, alleged eye-witness of the killings.

Robert Erling yesterday testified that he had seen Mrs. Gibson in De Russey's lane near the crabapple tree where the bodies were found.

Tracing Mrs. Gibson's Mule.

Today, over the objection of the defense, Simpson got from Schwartz the statement that when the latter entered the case as a civil engineer, 44 days after the killings, he had found the imprint of an animal's hoofs near the spot where Mrs. Gibson asserted she had tied her mule.

The defense argued that this testimony could not be presented unless preceded by proof that the condition of the ground had not been changed in the intervening 44 days. It is the contention of the defense that the prints might have been made by an animal belonging to any one of the thousands of sightseers, who thronged the spot and carried away the crabapple tree, bit by bit, as well as grass, bushes and every slightest article which could be accounted a souvenir.

Schwartz testified that he had found the two cedar trees and the stump, at which Mrs. Gibson asserted she tied her mule, and that the hoof-prints were nearby.

The Court refused to let the State draw from the witness the reason why he quit his investigation at the scene of the crime after only one day's work.

The Rev. Mr. Hall's calling card bearing no finger prints and which Schwartz said he obtained and kept as a souvenir, was the cause of another of the frequent clashes between Simpson and McCarter. Simpson, in contending that a question he had asked should stand, said the defense attorney intimated Schwartz had concealed evidence and in effect charged the fingerprint expert with malfeasance in office.

Attorneys Wrangle.

McCarter today again objected to the "disconnected way" in which Simpson was presenting his evidence.

"One of the most dangerous things, especially in capital cases," said the senior defense attorney, "is to present disconnected evidence."

As in previous rulings, Justice Charles W. Parker, presiding at the trial, said he would allow the State to present its evidence as it has been doing, on the understanding that it is all to be connected later.

Simpson, in an effort to offset the defense's move with regard to the calling card, alleged to bear the imprint of Willie Stevens' left index finger, put to the witness on re-direct examination, questions to show the whereabouts of the card while it was in Schwartz's possession.

"I photographed it, then compared it with finger prints in our collection to see if any of them matched it," said the witness.

Yesterday Schwartz had said that there are finger prints of 3000 criminals and suspects in the Jersey City Police Department. This number failed to give any clue to the Halls-Mills murderer.

Schwartz today denied ever telling John R. Phillips Jr., an attorney of Asbury Park, N. J., that there was no finger prints on the calling card, which the State now contends bears the impress of Willie Stevens' finger.

"What is the longest time you ever knew a print to be made of a finger print, after it was made?" Simpson asked.

"Nine months."

"Print May Last 10 Years."

McCarter, taking the witness again for cross-examination, asked: "You said a finger print lasts nine months?" "Why, it may last 10 years," replied the witness.

The fingerprint discussion continued when Joseph A. Faurot, former Deputy Police Commissioner of New York, followed Schwartz to the stand. Faurot was encouraged by the cross-examining counsel to go into a technical discussion of the types of fingerprints, "arch, loop, whorl and composite."

It is known that the defense will produce fingerprint experts to testify, but the line of opposition to the State's position has not been clearly revealed yet. The contention is believed certain to be made that promiscuous handling of the card has impaired its usefulness as a means of identification.

The defense got down to the fineness of a "speck of dirt" in cross-examination of Faurot. McCarter made much of the previous testimony of State fingerprint experts that the presence of foreign substance on the finger would affect the imprint.

"Won't the presence of a speck of dirt create a ridge?" asked McCarter.

Simpson was on his feet instantly with an objection.

"You'll stand by that card till Gabriel's horn blows," said McCarter to Simpson, referring to the calling-card found near Hall's body.

"If you continue like this, we'll be in this court room till Gabriel's horn blows," retorted Simpson.

Expert Shows Discrepancies.

Discrepancies between the enlarged prints of Willie Stevens' left index finger and the finger imprint on the calling card found at the scene of the crime were pointed out in detail by Faurot, under cross-examination. Two marked discrepancies were pointed out by the expert, one a blank space and the other a dot appearing on one print but not appearing on the other. Faurot said, however, that this did not prevent identification, there being no two fingerprints alike in the world, even when made by the same finger.

JOCKEY WHO RODE 17-TO-1 WINNER ALSO WON A BRIDE

Romance of Race Track Disclosed in Marriage of Albert Vessell and Miss Ruth McGinnis.

A romance that began at the Windsor (Ont.) race track in 1924 when a jockey rode a 17-to-1 winner, and a girl won $170 on a $10 wager, culminated in the marriage at Clayton yesterday of the jockey and the girl—Albert Vessell, 21 years old, of New York, and Miss Ruth McGinnis, 20, of 1517 Warren street, St. Louis.

The story was told to Justice of the Peace Werremeyer, who performed the ceremony. After Vessell rode "Teton," the long-shot, to victory, Miss McGinnis leaned over the grandstand rail and kissed him. A conversation ensued, then correspondence. This fall Vessell came to the Fairmount track at Collinsville to be near her, and when the Fairmount season closed, they decided to marry.

Vessell weighs 90 pounds, his bride 92.

Frank Jacobs Admits His Car Struck and Killed Mrs. Mary Jane Murphy in East St. Louis Friday.

A 15-year-old Junior High School student who saw an elderly woman fatally injured in East St. Louis last Friday morning by an automobile, the driver of which delivered her to a hospital and then fled, yesterday ably assisted East St. Louis police in the arrest of the driver and his two girl companions.

The driver, Frank Jacobs, 22, a tire repair man, of 612 North Seventh street, has admitted he struck and killed Mrs. Mary Jane Murphy, 66, of 817 Ohio avenue. In his car last Friday were his sister, Velma, 18, and a friend, Irma Johnson, 18, also of the seventh street address. The girls have admitted they were with Jacobs. All three are held for the Coroner's inquest.

The student, Perry Cox of 442 North Eighth street, was standing at Eighth and Ohio when a dilapidated Ford touring car swerved to the left side of the street at that point to pass a truck and sruck Mrs. Murphy. Cox ran to the machine and assisted in placing the injured woman in it. He carefully noted the three occupants before they drove away.

Police Aided by Boy.

With detailed descriptions supplied by Cox, police searched unsuccessfully for the car. Yesterday morning, however, an East St. Louis newspaper received an anonymous telephone call that "the driver of the car which struck Mrs. Murphy lives in the vicinity of Seventh street and Summit avenue and the two girls work at Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co."

Police were given this information and made an unsuccessful search for the car. Then they took Cox with them to the shoe factory during the noon hour and he pointed out the two girls he said were in the car. The girls told police they lived at the Seventh street address. Police went there and found the car, its right headlight and fender bent.

Jacobs surrendered before police had time to trace the license number of the car. He first said the truck had struck Mrs. Murphy but made a complete confession after his sister and Miss Johnson were arrested and admitted being in the car.

Statement of Prisoner.

Jacobs said he did not surrender immediately after striking Mrs. Murphy because he was "scared." He said he was on the point of giving himself up several times but "couldn't get up the courage. He came to East St. Louis about two months ago from Christopher, Ill. He has a wife and one-year-old baby.

Mrs. Murphy, a widow, had been employed as a saleswoman in an East St. Louis notion store. Formerly engaged in mission and welfare work, and a member of the Volunteers of America for many years, she was known as "Captain Murphy."

EXPERT SUGGESTS CITY AND COUNTY BOROUGH SYSTEM

Prof. Thomas H. Reed of Michigan U., Speaks at Municipal League Convention at Statler.

St. Louis and St. Louis County should, and must inevitably be linked under a borough system, built with a strong central government, in the opinion of Prof. Thomas H. Reed of the University of Michigan, a speaker today at the opening of the two-day annual convention of the National Municipal League at Hotel Statler.

Prof. Reed, who applied in his talk observations of large metropolitan areas of Europe which he visited last summer, evolved three general conclusions:

1. That metropolitan commissions having advisory functions chiefly and few specific authorities are a makeshift—to be justified only as such.

2. A strong municipal authority possessed of general powers of government organized for the whole metropolis with a fringe of unoccupied territory for future development is the only provision for the permanent satisfaction of metropolitan needs.

3. All gigantic municipalities must be subdivided into boroughs or districts corresponding as near as may be with pre-existing municipal units or suburbs of the present city.

Centralized Financial Powers.

Prof. Reed, who at one time forsook professional theories to practical experience as secretary to Senator Hiram Johnson of California, believes that the central city government should have supremacy over the borough governments in matters of finance and taxation.

Less satisfactory, but with some advantages, would be the return to the county of the city, Prof. Reed said. Such action would establish, he said, at least a part of the macinery necessary for comprehensive treatment of problems of a metropolitan district as a whole, notably in zoning. However, he had no enthusiasm for such a plan.

He pointed out that the township had ceased to be an efficient unit of government for several obvious reasons, one of which, for instance, was the creation of roads. The township is too small. Today a county, with automobile transportation, has become no larger than the township of a generation ago. Prof. Reed said that he saw no reason for creation of an additional or new units for local government, but that the restricted functions of the county must be recognized and met in areas of large population by the strong central city government.

Limit Height of Buildings.

Henry H. Curran, recently United States Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, now attorney for the New York City Club, advocated limiting the height of buildings in cities to 10 stories. He expressed fear that St. Louis would fringe its new civic center with skyscrapers which would sink the center in a well and hide its beauties.

He pointed to New York as a sinister example of what the skyscraper would do. "There," he said, "the skyscraper has so multiplied, at the hub of business and manufacturing congestion in Manhattan Island, that the street no longer can hold with comfort the crowds of workers that mill to and fro in the labyrinth.

"The subway can no longer carry with decency the multitude of men and women who live in the outskirts and beyond, but work in the center. The city's funds no longer can finance the necessary new subways without chloroforming such essential works as parks, schools water supply and waste disposal.

"The city's children no longer can play in the city's streets without being killed by motor vehicles at the rate of one a day the year round.

Skyscrapers Breed Subways.

"In New York it is the collective skyscraper that breeds more subways, less money for other needs and more motor vehicles in the skyscraper's service to kill more children. In New York we call it 'municipal murder.' Many American cities, in fostering their own clumps of skyscrapers, are at this very moment embarking upon the same mistakes that New York has made, so visibly and hideously."

If problems of local transportation are to be solved—and there is no more pressing, perplexing problems confronting cities today—all forms of transportation must be brought directly under one management.

That much already has been learned in Philadelphia, J. M. Shaw of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. told League members at their luncheon meeting. He referred to the fact that Philadelphia has brought all local transportation under one control—surface street cars, elevated and subway lines, motor busses, taxicabs and even airplanes.

Further it has been disclosed, Shaw said, that the surface street car still was the backbone of transportation and likely would remain so for some time to come. What the Philadelphia management was seeking to establish, he said, was what proportion each form of transportation could reasonably and economically perform, and how the most economical use of restricted street space could be obtained.

Must Use Public Money.

"Private capital no longer can be attracted to elevated and subway lines," Shaw said. "Hence these improvements must come from public money. Large cities either have reached or are approaching the point where the fare collected can be counted upon to meet the carrying charges of these great investments. Decision soon must be made as to how much of the cost of transportation shall come from the earnings of the system and how much from direct taxation. No city yet has reached a conclusion on what this ratio should be."

Dr. A. Ross Hill of Kansas City, former president of the University of Missouri, spoke on the subject, "Are We Spending Too Much for Education?" at a luncheon session today.

LOSES WAR INSURANCE SUIT

Widow of Maj. Hanna Denied Claim By Federal Court.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Mrs. Corinne Hanna lost her Federal Court suit to collect the remaining $8000 unpaid from Maj. Mark Hanna's war risk insurance when a jury today determined that the Federal Government properly should direct the remaining payments to Thomas Hanna of Ruthven, Ia., the army officer's father.

The Government contended that Mrs. Hanna had not been legally married to Hanna, who was killed in action on the last day of the World War, and that she was guilty of moral turpitude in that she had lived with J. W. Wagner, Kansas City (Mo.) gangster, now serving a 15-year prison sentence.

GANTT WINS BY 1484 ON COMPLETE RETURNS

Official Vote, Unofficially Totaled, Gives Him 492,216 to 490,732 for Otto.

Election of Circuit Judge Ernest S. Gantt (Dem.) of Mexico by a plurality of 1484, to be Judge of the State Supreme Court in the election one week ago, is shown by the Associated Press compilation of the official returns of all the 114 counties and the City of St. Louis. Judge Gantt will succeed Judge Robert W. Otto, now serving as a member of the court by appointment, who was the Republican candidate.

The figures are subject to slight correction, as a few counties have not yet reported their absentee vote.

The official St. Louis vote on this office, announced by the Election Board last evening, is: Gantt, 70,395; Otto, 108,188. This showns only a small change from the unofficial tabulation, made for the newspapers, which was: Gantt, 70,352; Otto, 108,180. The change made a net gain of 35 for Gantt.

In St. Louis County, the official figures differed widely from the unofficial. The official returns, announced by the County Election Board, are: Gantt, 9496; Otto, 16,718. The previous unofficial computation was: Gantt, 9388; Otto, 16,123. The net gain for Otto in the official count was 488.

Jackson County, which includes Kansas City, gave Gantt the largest gain in the official count as compared with unofficial figures His net gain was 926. He also made a net gain of 115 in revised figures from four smaller counties, Carter, Clark, Washington and Webster.

The State total of official figures is: Gantt, 492,216; Otto, 490,732.

THE GENTLE ART OF ALLUREMENT AS PRACTISED BY THE "MODERNS"

They resort to color and simplicity to tempt the "prey"

By
SARAH VAN RENSSELAER

THERE has been quite a bit of discussion in all circles of what a "modern" is. The general impression among morons seems to be that "modern" is a term applied to women who fly in the face of all laws and conventions indiscriminately. But 'tis not so. Your true "moderns" are as ancient as Eve. Their name is legion through the centuries. Probably Cleopatra was an outstanding one in her day. Today they are the women who are most truly "alive"—their realm extends far beyond the "home" though their hearts lie there, into art, literature, drama, politics, business or some other form of self-expression.

And they practise the gentle art of allurement with infinite subtlety and a finer understanding than their much praised ancestors.

Outward manifestations of this art today are the fashions. Women since time immemorial, have readjusted Nature's laws in the animal kingdom. For in every other species it is the male who attracts the female. But not so human beings, for it is the female who plumes herself to tempt—though she'd never, never admit it.

And no one would object to the "modern's" method—for it has beauty. Her costumes are the personification of simplicity—they're designed by those who have made a study of lines—who know proportions. Patou, Drecoll, Jenny, Chanel, Vionnet and so on—masters of the art—every one Parisian!

Underlying these simple costumes is a major secret of their chic—the "modern" underthings. They are deftly fashioned to conform to the delicate contours of the figure—and they are usually of "Italian"* silk which is soft and clinging and easily washed, saving money and time which is greatly appreciated by the "modern" woman who has too little of both to fulfill all her desires.

And, by the by, I know of no one who understands these present-day needs in underthings quite so well as the American firm of Kayser. They have more models in their fall showing that reflect this spirit than you can imagine. And they are the only people who make this luxurious "Italian"* silk.

The sheer beauty of lines is enhanced by color schemes surpassingly lovely. Indefinite tones—flower shades—colors of a hazy sunset—colors seen on a mountainside in fall when the foliage presents a tapestry effect.

To what lengths do not these artists go to find a new tone—to indirectly intrigue the unsuspecting "prey"—and the new shades color every phase of the mode, leaving not even an obscure accessory untouched! Madame's entire costume must be in complete harmony. Each frock has its own shoes, hose, gloves, bag, hat and jewelry—otherwise it's taboo.

In shoes, for instance, there are so many styles, so many new leathers, so many different colors, that one is quite bewildered by the array; and to harmonize with the shoes, the new hosiery is exquisite. It seems to have reached the heights of perfection.

Of course, today (and I say today advisedly for the fashions seem to last but a day) color makes a hose or breaks it—as the saying goes. If the edging or heel of one's shoe is an odd color, the hose must match. If the shoe is a solid color, the hose must match the costume—and so it goes forward into style. It seems that there are hundreds of colors—but the truth is that beige shades predominate in the mode—though the nocturne shades ever hold their own and all the preference of the many.

And, again, even in hosiery, Kayser is foremost in fashion for they present every color and every tone of every color that is smart! Not only does Kayser excel in this fashion color but they have even designed the "Slipper-Heel"* to carry out the slender theme that runs gamut through the mode. "Slipper-Heel"* is pointed in such a way that it gives a graceful and slender line to the ankle.

Then there is the "Marvel-Stripe"* which prevents garter runs—a marvelous help to the "modern" woman who expects her accessories to be as near perfection as possible so that she may forget them. They simply contribute to her poise.

And then the gloves. Mon Dieu, I very nearly forgot to tell you of these necessities that mean so much. Usually the smart woman matches her gloves with her hose and wears the ones for tailored costumes a size larger than her hand and the cuffed and embroidered ones fitting snugly.

This same Kayser makes gloves that are a joy to the eye and that give real service. "Chamoisette"* is the name Kayser gives the fabric they have ingeniously devised to look like kid, wear like kid—and it costs ever so much less than kid.

To all "moderns" who wish to devote a negligible time to accessories, I sincerely advise you to ask for Kayser underwear, hosiery and gloves for complete satisfaction.

way they cornered and detained Police Chief Griffin as he passed on the sidewalk. Griffin will not tell and nobody else heard what was said. It remains a fact, however, that even had Griffin been minded to throw the offenders in jail for their open disturbance of the peace he would most certainly have gone down before the machine guns and automatics which the gangsters carried openly.

Similarly police are helpless before the armed incursions of the Birger faction, which boasts an armored car as a sort of tank corps complement for a squadron of automobiles. When Charley Birger and his men come into any of the towns police discreetly fade from the scene or stand on the corners where the gangsters can see that they mean no harm.

One of the town police, "Slim" Keith of Colp, was on the scene of the shooting Saturday night and owes his life either to the poor markmanship or the good intentions of the gang which killed Milroy and Stone. He was wounded in the left hand after the gunmen had assured him he would not be hurt.

Keith, Unworried, Tells Story.

He told the story of the shooting yesterday to reporters at his home in Carterville, just south of Colp. Unlike others who have been involved in shootings, he seemed not to be worried about further consequences. Weapons in open display and armed guards, such as others place about themselver, were conspicuously absent from his home.

Keith, in the early 40s, with a lean, frank face and a shock of gray hair, said that he was in a confectionery at the crossroads at Colp Saturday night when three little boys ran in and said there was a fight at the Pete Salmo roadhouse a quarter of a mile south.

"Mayor Stone was in a store next door and I asked him if he wanted to come along," Keith related. "I thought it was nothing but a fist fight. If I had realized what was going on down there you can be sure I would not have gone near the place.

"Stone got in my car and we drove down to Salmo's, turning off in the street beside his place.

Surrounded by Gunmen.

"Just off the road we were surrounded by a bunch of men. Four of them came to my side of the car, told me to turn out the lights and ignition switch, and get out. There were others on Mayor Stone's side of the car. In the dark it looked to me like they were carrying rifles.

"One of them asked me if I had a pistol and I told him to take it from my holster. Then he said, 'Just keep your hands up, Slim, and you will be all right.' They were not talking very routh and I did not realize what was coming off.

"Just then I heard a terrific roar. Everybody seemed to be shooting. I heard Stone moan once and fall, then I turned and ran for the hard road. They fired several times after me. One bullet hit my hand and knocked me sprawling, but I got up and kept on going."

No one has been found who will admit having seen Milroy shot. One version of the shooting is that he was killed as he ran to Stone's aid from a nearby pool hall. Another is that he had already been shot when Stone and Keith arrived on the scene. Keith is inclined to accept the latter theory with the comment that he and Stone "must have butted into some one else's fight."

That theory is supported by Milroy's reputation as a thief and a "snitch," which had made him many enemies who might have desired his death. The records show that six months ago he and another man, Red Tippy, were arrested for burglary here. Milroy confessed, testified against Tippy, who went to prison under a one to 14-year sentence, and Milroy was freed. Two months later Milroy and five others were charged with a boxcar theft. Again Milroy turned State's evidence and four of his companions went to jail or prison on his testimony. One man escaped from jail before trial and Milroy was freed.

The shooting was just outside the poolhall where Stone shot and killed John Freeman, former police chief of Colp, in a pistol fight last May. Freeman was a friend of the Shelton gang and it is believed probable that Stone was killed to avenge the death of Freeman. The proprietor of that polhall was Police Chief Charles Lawson, who was shot and fatally wounded in the same fight. Witnesses said after the shooting that Lawson was accidentally hit by Stone, but the coroner's jury found he was shot by Freeman.

In the latest shooting Coroner Bell has ordered an indefinite postponement of the inquest. He said that no new evidence had been found, but declared he did not know when testimony would be heard.

Gov. Small Doubts Militia Could Prevent "Scattered" Crimes.

Gov. Len Small of Illinois, in speaking yesterday of the Williamson County situation, said that if he should decide to send troops into Williamson County, he would not give advance notice of his action. It would be necessary to send the troops in quickly, he said, in order to disarm the gunmen who are carrying on lawless warfare.

Small said he doubted that militiamen could prevent "scattered" crimes like the killing of Mayor Stone of Colp and another man. He said he had not been requested by any citizen of Williamson County to send troops there, and remarked that the county has a Sheriff.

LIQUOR ARREST IN CITY HALL

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Federal inquiry into the sale of liquor in the city and county building which led Saturday to the arrest of three county employes in a raid on the tax extension offices of the county clerk, has spread to the city side of the edifice and resulted yesterday in arrest of a clerk in the city comptroller's office.

Prohibition agents slipped up to the comptroller's office and served warrant on Austin T. Concannon, clerk in the paymaster's division which charged that he had worked with William Bessow, county employe arrested Saturday, in purveying drinks to employes. Agents said they purchased liquor from the pair in a corridor outside the mayor's office.

Later Concannon resigned stating that while he regretted the incident he was innocent of the charges.

Thrills, Swift Action And Flashes of Color Abound at Horse Show

Three Thousand Spectators at Coliseum for Brilliant Opening — Miss Marceline Reyburn Jumps Beaumont Over Triple Bars.

Once more there assembled in the Coliseum for the St. Louis Horse Show, last night, the notable horses of town and country to show off on the tanbark.

Again, sporting blood and debutante, gallant and matron, hostler and policeman gathered about the arena—an unusual crowd and high in spirits.

The band played "A Hunting We Will Go," lights danced on tawny coat and many a red jacket. All that sportsmen can do to make an exciting scene with horses was done.

The picture of it stirred the crowd of about 3000 and the sound of it was more thrilling still. Bright harnes jingled, hoofs pounded, hunters sailed into the air and came down with a crash on the hazards. Twice red-coated figures took headers into the tanbark; a cavalry troop went yelling in a charge, all snort and prance. To this the spectators responded according to the endless variety of their types.

Social Event in the Boxes.

To the promenaders about the white and green decked rail and those in the boxes it was a social event. Young girls a-twitter with the notion of wearing high silk hats, long trousers and frock coats made the rounds numerous times. Children who had Shetland ponies proudly entered and walked with important mieh under bowler hats, and swung riding crops in a way fearsome to see. Men were in the merry-go-round about the brown-floored area; some wearing Tuxedoes, others in breeches and puttees with black coats; others in evening dress. Young and old, they carried canes or crops and visited from box to box where the ladies sat.

Graceful was the scene about the promenade and boxes—bows and a tipping of hats—a can pointed—white-gloved hands applauding—richness of broadcloth and silks.

In the first balcony the spectators were not so formally dressed, although there were white shirt fronts a-plenty.

The box and promenede spectators came to see each other, but the first balcony came to see box and promenade spectators and the horses. Then, in the second balcony were the free spirits of the evening, who came neither to see people or be seen by people, but in the hopes perchance the horses would be worth looking at.

THRILLS, ACTION AND COLOR ABOUND AT THE HORSE SHOW

Action and Flashes of Color.

The horses were. They filled the Coliseum with swift action and flashes of color, summoning all the grace that ripples under well-curried chestnut coats, all the twinkling rhythm in four neatly shod hoofs. To the second gallery spectators it was a free show and the best evening's entertainment to be had for nothing anyone is apt to find in St. Louis. The management of the show was disapptioned that so few persons took advantage of the free seats.

Every horseshow reaches its climax in the jumping contests. It is then that the fashion parade halts, the rustle of blue and green and yellow silks in the boxes comes to a murmur, even the hostlers noisy about the entrances to the ring subside and with hands in pockets look dreadfully casual and unmoved. Last night was like other nights at other shows, a bit more lavish, perhaps, but with the same moments.

Beaumont, a St. Louis horse owned by Edward L. Bakewell, jumped first over the triple bars last night. He was ridden by Miss Marceline Reyburn and carried all the hopes local horsemen had of placing well in the event.

A hush. Beaumont, a big, rangy, upstanding horse with glistening bay coat, sidles toward the rail at the southern end of the arena. He is under a heavy bit, and champs at it, flecking bits of foam as he snorts.

Off They Go for the Hazard.

Miss Reyburn touches his flank, an encouraging pat, and off they go in a spurt of tan bark. The first hazard is half way down the rail. Beaumont rushes it, lunges upward—he is over, and his rider pulls him up at the northern end of the Coliseum, to steady him, while the crowd applauds. Again that stamping sidle, power straining at the bit, then down he dashes toward the second hazard on the eastern side of the arena. His head surges up—and over—his heels clear the last of the three white bars.

Now, again. He must jump the hazards again. He takes the first easily. But at the second he catches Miss Reyburn in a moment of relaxed overconfidence, looses his head and bolts toward the right and higher side of the hazard. She fails to pull him up in time and his off hind hoof hits the top rail, knocking it down. There is a groan from the crowd because that spoils Beaumont's chances of a first.

Only one of the hunters made a perfect score last night at the triple bars. Boomerang balked and when whipped jumped over the side of the east hazard. Meadowlark came up to the first hazard and balked. Three times Meadowlark balked, each time almost spilling the rider, and then was ruled out.

Kangaroo Leap at Bars.

Tom Taylor, a Leona Farms hunter from Cary, Ill., made a kangaroo leap at the west side hazard and landed halfway across the bars. Arthur Naylor, the rider, went head first into the turf, but picked himself up unhurt. The same thing happened with Shuffle of the Timber Topper Stables on the same hazard. His rider, H. C. Goelitz, went over the bars with a thud.

Wood King, a Leona Farms entry, jumping like a rabbit, cleared all the hazards and won first prize. Big Parade, owned by Adelbert von Gontard of St. Louis, went around perfectly until the last hazard and ticked that with a hind hoof. This spoiled his chance to tie Wood King. He placed second and Beaumont took third.

Mrs. Loula Long Combs of Kansas City, a notable figure at horse shows here, was high point winner of the evening, with three blue ribbons, taking first place in every event in which she showed. Her horse, Ovation, won in the harness open class; her team, Adoration and Admiration, took first for ladies' pairs, and the Combs pony, Carnation, carried off the honors in the harness pony class.

The gallery liked the potato race next best to the jumping. It is a taste of polo, which to the gallery is a rare and romantic game, seen mostly in Sunday rotogravure supplements. A team led by August A. Busch Jr., wearing red sashes, beat a team captained by Festus Wade Jr., 27 potatoes to 7.

Tom Bass, a Negro horesman, placed first in the class of five-gaited saddle horses with his beautiful sorrel, Denver. He was also a hit on his high-school horse, Belle Beach.

Troop "C" of the Fourteenth Cavalry, led by Lieut. Perley Sancomb, performed intricate evolutions, charged with sabers drawn and jumped their horses through a frame of fire. They made a splendid turnout. All of which brought the crowd to a state of loud applause.

For those who cannot bear to see people risking their necks in the show ring, the management has arranged a horseshoe pitching contest for 7:20 o'clock each evening. So you pay your money and you take your choice—or, if you prefer, you do not need to pay any money.

The show will continue nightly

BRITISH MINERS' LEADERS INSIST ON 7-HOUR DAY

Adjustment of Working Period Only Obstacle Remaining in Settlement of Strike.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Adjustment of working hours remains the great stumbling block in the settlement of the miners' strike. A number of lesser points, such as minimum wages and the percentages to be allocated to wages and profits, it is thought, were settled at a late sitting last night, when Government Ministers discussed with the miners' leaders the controversial questions still existing between miners and mine owners.

The miners' leaders stoutly refuse to consent to any extension of the seven-hour day, unless they possess power to argue on the necessity of this in any district before a national appeal board. The mine owners as firmly insist upon longer hours.

The Government, on its side, is anxious to get a negotiated settlement, thus obviating recourse to the establishment of an appeal board by legislation. With this in view, the Government had, in its compromise proposals, suggested that in the absence of a national agreement, which the mine owners oppose, the owners from each district should give guarantees to the Prime Minister, who would in effect become a sort of trustee for the miners' interests.

The miners' executives, if compelled to accept longer hours, will refer the matter to the men themselves and make no recommendation, for, thy explain, they have no mandate to agree to longer hours.

Announcement is made that more than 300,000 men are at work in the various coal fields.

FEDERAL STATUTE TO CHECK FRAUDS IN STOCKS URGED

C. S. Dewey, Assistant Secretary of Treasury, Says State Laws on Subject Have Proved Inadequate.

A Federal law to check the flow of fradulent securities, without placing an undue burden upon legitimate business, was suggested by Charles S. Dewey, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in a talk on "Federal Co-operation to Prevent Fraud," at the convention dinner of the Associated Stock Exchanges, at Hotel Chase last night.

"We have in the Treasury a large file of letters received from widows, school teachers and other individual purchasers of our Government securities," Dewey said. "All of these letters tell the same story.

"The writers have been subscribers to Government bonds; they have been approached by some plausible gentleman who had expressed both a keen interest in their welfare and a fear that since the war was over and their patriotic obligations fulfilled, they were not obtaining as large a return upon their investment as they should and that by exchanging their Government security for a 'sound' investment in some distant gold mine, they would stand an excellent opportunity of reaping large profits."

Estimate of Yearly Losses.

Dewey quoted an estimate that $500,000,000 a year was lost through fraudulent promoitions. For instance, in Oklahoma in 1917, he said, the stock-promoting companies owned less than 2-10 of one per cent of all oil produced, which meant that for every $555 of these companies' capitalization only $1 worth of oil was produced.

"The Secretary of the Treasury," Dewey continued, "believes that there is an urgent need for a Federal statute which will repress the flow of fraudulent and worthless securities through both the mails and the channels of interstate and foreign commerce, but which at the same time will not place an undue burden upon legitimate business.

"The state laws are quite diverse in character, ranging from 'blue sky laws' to 'fraud acts,' and have proved somewhat inadequate, and certainly not as comprehensive as would be a Federal statute.

"In considering the nature of such a statute it has been suggested that legislation might take the form of a law under which securities which appear to be fraudulent could be brought to the attention of the Department of Justice through proceedings in the nature of an information. The Attorney-General could then be authorized to investigate such securities and, if he found evidence of fraud, to issue a summary order forbidding their further sale under heavy penalty.

"Such a law would be similar to the Martin act, which has recently been held constitutional by the Supreme Court of New York. Its presence on the statute books would have the same effect upon fraudulent stock promoters as does the presence of a policeman upon the ordinary criminal."

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the American Bankers' Association, spoke on "The Value of the Open Stock Exchange Market."

"In the popular estimation everything that happens in the business world is charged to the influence of the stock exchanges, the boards of trades and similar organiaztions," Traylor said.

"If the price of grain rises suddenly, it is due to speculation upon the exchanges, and if the price of grain falls unduly, it also is the fault of the exchanges. If a man, through senseless speculation, loses his fortune and leaves his family in want, the best means to stop the recurrence of such an evil is simply to close all the exchanges of the country. If business houses fail, or if they are making too much money, it is always a speculation upon the exchange that is supposed to be responsible.

"In short, you, here assembled, represent an institution of the modern world which is charged with most of the evils that may be inherent in a capitalistic system.

"I need hardly tell an audience such as this that a better acquaintance on the part of the people with the work which you are doing and a realization of your economic necessity would tend to prevent these senseless views to which are due the foolish proposals always before our legislators, and which are all too often enacted into law.

Performs Marketing Function.

"The same people who object most strenuously to the existence of exchanges are often the same who insist upon the need of better marketing organiaztions, such as co-operative institutions of one kind or another for the distribution of products, not realizing that exchanges, markets and fairs—fairs in the old sense of the word—have all the same origin and perform exactly the same functions."

Frank O. Watts, president of the First National Bank, also spoke. He was optimistic concerning business in general, and said there was no reason to be "bearish" upon the South because of the present surplus of cotton.

The convention will end today with election of officers, following addresses by several investment bankers and brokers. The St Louis Stock Exchange and similar exchanges in 11 other states are members of the Associated Stock Exchanges.

Child, Hurt in Fall From Buggy, Dies.

MEXICO, Mo., Nov. 9.—Juanita Jean Feather, 4 years old, living near Bowling Green, whose skull was fractured last Thursday when she was thrown from the buggy in which she was riding with her brother to school, died here yesterday in a local hospital. The horse shied in passing a sack of turnips and the girl fell between the wheels.

DESCRIBES LIFE IN AFRICAN PENAL COLONY

Mrs. Elsa Q. Rice Addresses Women's Advertising Club at Luncheon.

Experiences of a St. Louis woman in a Portuguese penal colony on the West Coast of Africa were related by Mrs. Elsa Queller Rice, former treasurer of the Women's Advertising Club, before a luncheon of that organization yesterday at Hotel Statler.

"My experiences," she said, "were for the most part restricted to Loanda, which at the present time, and for many years has been used by the Portuguese as a penal colony. At one time in Loanda there were as many as three white women besides myself, but for the greater part of the time, there was only one.

"Loanda boasts a population of about 20,000 Negroes and 50 whites. At night the streets are dimly lighted by oil lamps throwing wan shadows on the buildings which in the light of day are seen to be painted light blue, green or yellow. The one bright spot on Main street is a cafe with sidewalk tables—the center of bachelor social life in Loanda."

"Every evening at 9 o'clock, an Englishman brings his portable phonograph with a book of records; he appropriates a center table for the concert and goes through his program of selections while he and his friends refresh themselves with the customary light wines and beer. When the last record has been played, he packs up his case, departs, and the party is ended. That's the symphony orchestra in Loanda."

Mrs. Rice accompanied her husband, Dr. Justus Rice, who is employed by the Sinclair Oil Co., to Africa.

THE QUICKEST—EASIEST—MOST DELIGHTFUL SHAMPOO

Every person who makes a pretense of being well groomed takes a shampoo once a week. Thomas' Special Formula Shampoo makes this weekly duty a delight instead of a dread.

It is much easier to use than soap and other shampoos. It lathers quicker and more freely. It cleanses to the very roots of the hair, leaving the scalp immaculate. One rinsing is all that is necessary, and there's no after effect of dried scalp or sticky, oily hair. It does not remove the natural oils or leave the hair brittle. It does preserve the hair health and lustre and promotes a healthy condition of both hair and scalp. Try a treatment tonight with

$12,900 PLAYGROUND FUND TO BE SOUGHT

City $40,000 Short of Revenue Required to Operate Them Until April 1.

The board of directors of the Park and Playground Association, yesterday at the regular monthly meeting, approved a recommendation of the Executive Committee to raise $12,900 by public subscription to finance a campaign for additional park and playground facilities in St. Louis. Of this sum, one-half was underwritten by the directors.

Fred W. Pape, Park Commissioner, in a statement to the directors, said his department would be $40,000 short of the amount required to operate parks and playgrounds properly between now and April 1. He added that each year the appropriation for this department grows smaller, while demands increase, pointing out that next spring two new playgrounds, the Genevieve Strodtman and Minnie Wood, will be opened.

St. Louis has only three public playgrounds that are kept open throughout the year, and only 26 altogether, which does not compare favorably with other large cities, it was stated, and owing to the tendency of the city to curtail appropriations, the public should be given an opportunity through subscription or new legislation to place the maintenance of this department on a sound operating basis.

A step in this direction has been taken by the association or "Papa Club," which will shortly have a campaign for new members, in the hope of increasing the membership from 500 to 5000 by April 1.

The Executive Committee also recommended an outer park and boulevard system, and will make this project part of the campaign for adequate maintenance of parks and playgrounds.

Dr. F. C Stimson, representative of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, was a guest of the association. Addresses were made by Harland Bartholomew, president of the association; Nelson Cunliff, former Director of Public Welfare, and Park Commissioner Pape.

TWO ROBBERS LAY IN WAIT FOR MAN AT HIS PARKED AUTO

Leonard Kropp Loses $50 and Spare Tire; Restaurant Held Up for $140.

When Leonard Kropp of 3303 Texas avenue went to his automobile parked at 3927 Virginia avenue, at 12:45 a. m. today, he found two men waiting at a machine parked behind it. As he climbed into his car, the men pressed revolvers at his back, robbed him of $50 and drove off in their machine. A spare tire also had been stolen from Kropp's car.

Three hours later, two men in an automobile, answering similar descriptions, appeared at the White Castle Restaurant at Grand boulevard and Gravois avenue, where they held up the manager, Lee Morse, escaping with $140.

E. E. Baker of 3121 South Grand boulevard interrupted two tire thieves, who had broken the lock of his spare tire on his automobile, parked at 5900 Nina place, at 7 p. m. One man pointed a revolver at Baker, while the other put the tire in another machine and started the engine. Then the thieves drove off together.

Woman Suffers Lapse of Memory.

A woman was found suffering, apparently from amnesia, near Broadway and Osceola street at 12:30 a. m. today by a policeman and taken to City Hospital. After treatment she was able to recall her identity and was taken home by relatives. She was Mrs. Mary Krine, 55 years old, a widow, of 3801 Lafayette avenue.

'TELL-TALE' SIGNS

MOST, if not all, the signs of premature old age often accompany Intestinal Putrefaction.

The dull, greying hair, the dark circles under the eyes, the wrinkling skin, the sallow, pasty complexion, the sunken cheeks and the "fagged out" look, all give the many victims of Intestinal Putrefaction the appearance of advancing old age. Sometimes even children look like little old men or women and, very few women or men, over 20 years of age, seem to escape its health, youth and beauty destroying effects. Until recently, Medical Science was reconciled to take this most common condition more or less for granted, assuming that there was no real way to correct Intestinal Putrefaction and its distressing results.

FORTUNATELY, the discoveries of "the great" Pasteur of France indicated a simple and easy way to triumph over harmful germs and disease. With his discoveries came the successful anti-toxins and more recently the Moyer's Intestinal Putrefaction Antitoxic — "Moyer's Acid-O-Phil Tablets" which destroy the Intestinal germs of decay and thus banish Intestinal Putrefaction. Easy and economical to take with either ordinary milk or water; results are quick. One cannot take too many of these beneficial genuine B. Acidophilus health tablets, as they simply destroy the harmful and dangerous germs of putrefaction and leave you feeling like you'd taken a "new lease on life."

Thousands of men and women, today, are taking the new Acidophilus Treatment to restore youthful appearance and health and to revitalize the system. As a simple and economical test—just try taking two Moyer's Acid-O-Phil Tablets after every meal and at bedtime, regularly, for four short weeks. If you don't feel 100 per cent better—if you haven't more strength, "pep" and energy we will gladly refund your money upon request, without a single question. There is nothing like it, so do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get the genuine Moyer's Acid-O-Phil Tablets at all good druggists.

CARBON MONOXIDE DANGER POINTED OUT

Coroner Vitt Issues Bulletin on the Hazards Incident to Cold Weather.

In line with his belief that the successful Coroner's office is the one that holds few inquests, Coroner Vitt, with the first snow flurries of the season today, issued a bulletin on "Cold Weather Hazards."

Carbon monoxide poisoning from automobile exhausts was the first danger on the list, and the Coroner considered it so serious that he wrote a letter to Chief of Police Gerk about it. Remarking that this is the time when garage doors and windows are being kept closed, he suggested that public garages be instructed to provide proper ventilation and, if possible, some means of conveying the exhaust gas outside.

Private garage owners, he urged, should not leave motors running indoors. He stated that even in quantities that might not be noticed breathing the gas in time would seriously impair the health.

Safety Suggestions for Home.

Cold weather brought an increase in deaths from illuminating gas poisoning, especially from "the old-fashioned gas heater," the Coroner remarked. "Hard rubber connections are easily pushed on but fall off as easily. They should be discarded for metal connections. If investigation is necessary, use an electric torch and not a match. Such heaters also should have flue connections, especially in small rooms such as bathrooms."

"Practically all accidents to children are the fault of parents or other adults," Coroner Vitt continued. "Children must be taught safety in the home as well as on the street. The best way to teach them is to set an example in the home.

"More children are killed by burns and scalds than any other single cause. Kettles with hot liquids should not be placed too near the edge of stoves or tables. If tubs of hot water must be set on the floor, children should be kept away from them. Fireplaces or gas grates should be covered with wire screens to prevent clothing from catching fire.

Precautions to Prevent Falls.

"Every precaution should be taken to prevent children from falling out of windows or downstairs. Screens should be securely fastened. If children play near the stairway, it should be shut off from them by a gate. Old people likewise must be protected at the stairs and from unsteady furniture. A broken bone which does not appear dangerous may bring on complications which will cause death."

Madison Farm Bureau to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Madison County Farm Bureau will be held at Edwardsville tomorrow. A number of business matters will be taken up and executive committeemen will be elected.

CHARGES OFFICER IN BRENTWOOD FIRED AT HIS AUTO

Forrest G. Ferris, Jr. Latest to Complain of Deputies One of Whom Recently Shot Collegian.

THEY DENY USING PISTOLS IN CHASE

St. Louis Associate City Counselor Held as Speeder Says He Took Officers for Robbers.

A second complaint within two weeks against Brentwood deputy marshalls for firing revolvers in making traffic arrests was lodged in police court there last night by Forrest G. Ferris Jr. an Associate City Counselor of St. Louis, who was arrested early Sunday by deputies, whom he says he mistook for highwaymen because of their actions.

During the pursuit of Ferris a shot was fired at his car, he declared. Accompanied by his wife, Ferris was arrested by the same three men involved in the previous complaint, early on Oct. 24, when Austin Kaercher, 20-year-old Washington University student, was seriously wounded by a shot fired by one of the deputies in a chase which ended in St. Louis. Kaercher still is at City Hospital.

Officers Deny Shooting.

The officers of Brentwood, which is a small incorporated town centering around Manchester and North and South roads, where a "boulevard stop" is maintained, are: William Skow, Deputy Marshal, and a Deputy Constable of Central Township, who shot Kaercher; Robert Auer, Deputy Marshal, and James Weaver, a bricklayer and owner of the car bearing police lights used in both chases, who says he was specially deputized by Skow four nights this autumn and frequently last autumn to chase speeders. Skow and Auer denied shooting at Ferris and Weaver said he carried no firearms.

The first chase, Ferris says, extended about a mile, from North and South road to Bartold's Grove, at the eastern limits of Brentwood, at 2 a. m. Sunday. Ferris, whose testimony was corroborated by his wife, denied speeding and said the officers in civilian attire had leaped from their car with caps over their eyebrows and two with drawn revolvers.

Thereupon Ferris drove as fast as he could for another mile, stopping in front of the Maplewood police station when Weaver's car drew up alongside flashing a red light inscribed "police." It was during this pursuit that Ferris said the shot was fired. At Maplewood Ferris demanded to see the officers' badges and he said he was told the badges would have been shown before had he asked. Ferris was taken back to Brentwood and not permitted to sign his own bond until his identity had been verified by telephone at 5:30 a. m.

Auer, testifying, said Ferris was driving 40 miles an hour in the first chase and declared a whistle was blown and the police light flashed when they stopped Ferris at the grove, Auer telling Ferris he was under arrest. Skow testified he had his revolver drawn at that time on the theory that persons he arrested on the highway might be armed. He asserted he showed Ferris his badge at the grove.

Deputized Weaver for Night.

Skow said he and Weaver each showed Ferris fully loaded revolvers at Maplewood to prove they hadn't fired, but Skow admitted he had had time in the chase to reload. Skow said the last time he had fired his revolver was a week ago, shooting at a can for practice, and refused to answer as to the last previous time. He said he had deputized Weaver for the night. The three officers emphasized their assertion that Skow said "please" in telling Ferris to stop the first time.

Police Judge W. A. Bithrow, who is Mayor of Brentwood, dismissed a charge of resisting arrest and fined Ferris $3 and costs for speeding, which is low for a speeding fine in Brentwood. Ferris, who was represented by State Senator-elect William Maffitt Bates, appealed, but Bates will have to furnish the appeal blank, as the Court had none, appeals there being unusual.

Ralph Walsh, a recent football star at Washington University, resigned as City Attorney of Brentwood when his recommendation for dismissal of Skow was ignored after the Kaercher shooting. Jesse Harnage succeeded him.

Last night Weaver's police car was the only one parked at Brentwood City Hall without parking lights.

APPROVE BRIDGE GRANT PLEA

The resolutions committee of the Board of Aldermen has decided to make a favorable report on the resolution requesting Congress to grant a three-year extension of the grant for construction of an East Side approach to the Municipal Bridge.

The present grant, which is the ninth extension of the original grant made in 1906, will expire Feb. 12 next. The resolution was introduced by Alderman Studt at the request of Frank H. Gerhart.

U. S. SPORTSWOMAN RETURNS FROM HUNT IN FAR NORTH

Miss Louise A. Boyd Shot Ten Polar Bears on Expedition Into the Arctic.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Miss Louise A. Boyd, wealthy San Francisco sportswoman, arrived here yesterday on the Leviathan, after an expedition into the Arctic. According to records, Miss Boyd reached a point farther north than any other white woman. Her party killed 29 polar bears and six seals, of which Miss Boyd shot 10 bears and four seals.

Friends had told her it was lots of sport, she said, so she thought she would try it. "No, I had no exciting experiences," she said. "We just went up and shot them—that's all. It was lots of sport."

Miss Boyd and a few invited friends sailed from Norway in the middle of July on the freighter Hobby, a ship once used by Amundsen. The party reached Franz Josef Land and from there pushed north, reaching a latitude of 80 degrees, 26 minutes. The party returned to Norway Sept. 1.

The application will not be filed until Nov. 11 in the special term of the Supreme Court at White Plains.

COL. CARROLL JARS MAYOR IN MONTANA

Great Falls Executive Sympathizes With Hill After Half Hour With Marie's Official Host.

WITH QUEEN MARIE ON THE AY TO DENVER, Colo., Nov. 9. —Queen Marie of Rumania today et the first woman Governor in e United States, Mrs. Nellie Tay- Ross of Wyoming who boarded e train at Casper, Wyo., soon ter noon for the trip to Denver. s. Ross is head of a state only htly smaller than Rumania with the later's post war annexa- ns which have more than dou- d its original area of 53,000 are miles.

Those in charge of the trip are peful that there would be no ore of the bickerings that started fore Marie left Bucharest.

The first flareup came in New rk soon after Marie's arrival en prominent patrons of a bene- performance which the Queen ended withdrew their support en it was learned that Loie Ful- s dancers were to receive half proceeds. Miss Fuller, a close end of Marie, joined the train th the Hill party.

Bickering From the Start.

The first expulsion from the rty came in New York, when ederick Moore, acting as chair- n of the Maryhill Museum Com- tee, was dropped on order of John H. Carroll, in charge of tour, who objected to Moore's ing interviews which designated as in charge of the tour.

The continental journey had not gressed far before Col. Carroll differences with Ira Nelson rris, Rumanian Consul-General Chicago and in charge of enter- nment programs at cities where special train stopped.

Controversies increased at Spo- e with the arrival of Samuel l, wealthy mining man, and his y, including Miss Fuller and her ss agent, Miss May Birkhead Miss Gabrielle Bloch, Miss ller's secretary.

Although it was expected Hill uld be in charge of ceremonies ly at the Maryhill dedication, he umed command of the tour oughout the entire Northwest. disagreement with Washburn Carroll. The storm thus used broke at Seattle on the rn trip. After conferences with en Marie, Col. Carroll and Miss ller, Hill agreed to quit the train re. It was understood that he conforming to the wishes of Queen, who had requested shburn to remain with the par-

PRINCIPLES OF DEMOCRACY MENACE GOOD GOVERNMENT, ACCORDING TO MUSSOLINI

Declares Parliamentary System 'Insupportable'—Fascist Regime Imposes Sovereignty of the State on Rights of Individuals.

(This is the second of a series of three articles based on an interview with Premier Mussolini.)

By SAMUEL DASHIELL,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the Philadelphia Public Ledger.
(Copyright, 1926.)

ROME, Nov. 9.—It is one of the almost incomprehensible facts of the Fascist regime that henceforth there can be no strikes or lockouts in Italy. Mussolini's exhortations ring with the word "labor" which in Italian is both a noun and a verb, as in English, and the economic principle involved in production.

In Italy, as in no other country in the world, the affairs of capital and labor are regulated by decree. The instrument of this law is the Fascist labor corporations, in which fifteen nation-wide syndicates, representing every form of productive occupation, is grouped. The Fascist regime put over this program.

Capital and labor may have grievances, but they agree to constitute themselves the impartial judges of any question at issue. For this there is but one appeal, the Magistrate of Labor. All have agreed to abide by this decision. The system denies employers the use of the lockout or the summary exclusion of a single man from his labor, except it be from flagrant insubordination or incompetence.

Mussolini Is the Judge.

Extraordinary diligence on the part of the Government is the guarantee of the fairness of the corporation, and Mussolini, in this case, is the Secretary of Labor.

Regarding this new philosophy of Labor, Mussolini declared: "In the new syndicate organizations, in which we no longer allocate to the representatives of capital and labor the faculty of defining justice themselves, the State becomes both arbitrator and judge. In this system the struggle of these two classes has been deprived of its individous traditions just as we have extinguished the antinational conceptions of the old labor organizations.

"The forces of production are now incorporated in the State; organizations of labor are now inserted in the State structure. With this reform has been initiated a great program of national collaboration, in which the attainment of individual wellbeing is expected to bring about the maximum wellbeing for the State."

In finances Italy has been among the first to put her house in order. She is making a herculean struggle. The temptations of the prevailing currency inflation are being bravely rejected by Italy. After the first war debt settlements with England and the United States foreign loans were made possible, and with part of this money Italy is stabilizing her currency.

Lire Gaining Strength.

In a few weeks the lire has changed from 30 to 23 to the dollar, paper currency is being retired, silver coins are projected, and large blocks of Treasury bonds liquidated in a methodical plan of Count Volpi, Finance Minister.

Italy fully anticipates an export trade slump, maybe a year of industrial derangement, but the advantages of stabilized currency are manifest to Italy's leaders.

Raw materials, which Italy needs in vast quantities, will be cheaper and payments of war debts in pounds sterling and American dollars will require fewer lire. Mussolini was the first to grasp the significance of a war debt settlement with the United States and England. Now he is bending the nation to the sacrifices of a severe epoch of individual economy.

Mussolini described the new economic policy as "fascistically conceived and fascistically applied."

He explained: "The economic policy of Italy can be summed up thus—to work more and recognize decisively all the sacrifices that appear necessary. The Italian people are actuated in this policy with perfect discipline, with marvelous fervor. The entire nation works today in passionate ardor for the success of this economic battle. The first results are already visible. The others will not be long in arriving. A nation that wants to win, and that individually and collectively knows how to fight must inevitably accomplish its end."

Parliament Passive.

It is obvious that all the violent changes are simply the fruit of the Fascist revolution. And one of the first victims of the revolution has been the Italian Parliament or more particularly, the Chamber of Deputies, corresponding to the American House of Representatives.

The Italian Senate may some day sit as a council of the nation's greatest men, but the Chamber, or the lower house, as originally constructed has been nothing but an institution where Mussolini comes and sits, and, indeed, looks quite bored, while the new laws, proposed in the Fascist party councils, are passed on to the statute books.

Mussolini is explicit on the subject of parliaments, not only here but in the world in general. He is particularly emphatic about lobbying politicians.

"This is a pernicious inheritance of a none too scrupulous past," he said. Continuing on this favorite theme, the dictator declared: "The decadence of the parliamentary system has become more and more marked everywhere. Parliaments are too much entangled in vicious intrigues, in individual ambitions and in the miserable, factious passions of the men who compose them. They inevitably lose all authority and become the slaves of the little inside bosses and subject to the deplorable maneuvers of groups and blocs.

"Menace to Decent Government."

"The absurdity of this system lies in the fact that the fate of nations depends on the policies of these individuals. The famous 'immortal principles' which are the pillars of the liberal democratic system imply nothing but a menace to decent government. Such a system renders a parliament ineffective and defenseless and precludes the development of any broader understanding of parliamentary duties and responsibilities.

"For the most part, this predominance of parliament, especially in Italy, was insupportable. It assumed rights it never had and presumed to powers it was incapable of exercising. From these principles which it permitted itself to enjoy, it created only ridiculous situations.

"Fascism has instituted powers absolutely new. The Government is the directing leadership of the nation and is its responsible representative. It cannot and must not, therefore, be at the mercy of the caprices of politicians who change until they are dizzy trying to follow the humors of a few men who, in turn, are invested in an authority that must respond to the vicissitudes of universal suffrage.

"In place of individual sovereignty Fascism has substituted the sovereignty of the state, and parliament has returned to its just and natural position, and in that role it has gained much in seriousness, in decency and in dignity."

Reorganizing the Army.

The other of the far-reaching changes which Mussolini has brought about in Italy is the reorganization of the Italian Army. As Secretary of War, or, father, as head of the national defense, he has closely followed the maneuvers of the army. Mussolini was a soldier, a sergeant, a militiaman—always a fighter.

The army is the protecting arm of Italy and is being subjected to swift overhauling in personnel and in equipment, and in tactics. Mussolini's own army, so to speak, is the militia. Recently an honorary corporal in the organization Mussolini is today a full fledged commanding general.

He described the functions of the militia thus: "The position of the militia in the national defense is highly important. At the flank of our splendid army, which is an example of organization and heroism, the militia should render in time of war the most precious services. Composed of selected, trained men, led by officers almost every one of whom has served in the World War, the voluntary militia is animated by a magnificent spirit of patriotism and sacrifice.

"In any case, I anticipate that the voluntary militia will never be actually assigned to take up the burden of any future war, but that for a long time it will be limited to the defense of the country within its frontiers, vigilant defenders of public order, guarantors of public safety and protectors of the Fascist state."

NEW DEVICE GIVES SIGNAL FOR DISABLED SUBMARINES

British Admiralty Considers Compressed Air Buoy Placed Outside of Conning Tower.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The British Admiralty is considering an invention for locating and communicating with submarines that are unable to rise to the surface.

The apparatus, the invention of a North country man, consists of a buoy carried by the submarine alongside the conning tower. If the submarine is unable to rise to the surface the buoy can be released, and being filled with compressed air, rises quickly to the surface and floats above the sunken vessel, to which it is attached by a cable.

The buoy contains a telephone, by means of which rescuers and the imprisoned men can communicite. It also holds rockets, a lighting apparatus and a signal bell to attract attention of passing ships.

Lawyers Have Fallen Down.

Progress in Other Professions.

A System Without System.

Chaos in the Courts.

Somebody Had Better Get Busy.

THE lawyers of this country have fallen down on their job, and the tragic breakdown of criminal justice is the consequence. The bar has failed in its duty to society; society is suffering horribly because of it, and the bar is bound to suffer eventually. This is the opinion of Dean Pound of Harvard Law School, and it is shared by the majority of the intelligent members of the community.

Considering that lawyers, as a class, are possessed of a normal degree of intelligence and spirit, their professional failure to keep abreast of the rest of the world is simply amazing. It can be rationally explained only on the ground that heretofore it has been to their material interest to lag behind. For an effective picture of the stagnation which has existed in law and legal methods for more than a century, it is necessary only to compare it with the progress made in other fields during the same period. Indeed, a similar effect can be obtained by comparing the stagnation of American law with the advances in the English law from which it was derived.

OUR present system of criminal justice was taken over from England about 150 years ago, and remodeled to meet conditions as they existed then. What were those conditions? The population of the entire 13 states was less than the present population of New York City. The site of Chicago was a swamp; that of Los Angeles, a trading mission. St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo were frontier posts, and Kansas City an unmarked spot in the wilderness. There were no railroads, steamboats, automobiles, telephones or wireless.

That a system devised for such conditions should be forced more than a century later to do service in the colossal industrial nation which we have become, is almost too preposterous for belief. The system presupposed a homogeneous people, living in isolated communities, without rapid communication or transportation. It presupposed a people jealous of their rights, zealous to preserve order, and ready at the drop of a hat to set the machinery of law in motion when wrong was done. In other words, it presupposed a pioneer farming community of native stock. It is obvious that a system devised for such conditions is inadequate for the enormously swift, complicated and congested America of today. The failure to bring it abreast of the times is a failure for which the bar must bear the blame. On the theory of every man to his task, we have left to lawyers the job of keeping the law and legal machinery up to date. And they failed to perform that job.

IN contrast to their delinquency, observe the advances which have been made in virtually every other profession. Even religion has undergone more change and manifested a greater spirit of progress, than the law. Against the stagnation which has enveloped law and legal methods for a century, contrast the advances in medicine, physics, chemistry, architecture, engineering, manufacturing, transportation, journalism, trade and almost every conceivable occupation. The social and economic life of the present bears almost no resemblance to that of 1800. Yet the law, and the methods of enforcement, are virtually unchanged. The capacity and the willingness to advance in step with an advancing world, have not been demonstrated by the legal profession.

The medieval regime of Coroners, Sheriffs and Constables, which we inherited from England, is the basic pattern which still determines the mold of our present administrative system. Our present police forces are adapted from the ancient institution of common-law Constables, plus the American idea of a change with every political election. Our prosecutors derive their status from that of the French "procureur du roi" of the Bourbon regime. Both were tacked on to an existing system, for the purpose of meeting singular conditions which had arisen.

It is salutary to reflect that while we have retained the system without fundamental change, the English system from which we adapted it has been completely revolutionized. Moreover, the revolution took place about 40 years ago. Rhyme and reason were long since introduced into British justice, but we hold on to the eighteenth-century system which we originally took over from the British. Indeed, it is a misuse of the word to call it a "system" at all, for certainly there is nothing systematic about it.

THE spectacle of a Judge in one court hampering or thwarting justice in another court is common. Hardly a noted criminal case occurs in which, after conviction and loss of an appeal, counsel for the condemned person does not make the rounds of the courts to find a judge who will tie up the proceedings, thus saving the condemned person from the immediate execution of sentence. Could there be a more ignominious commentary upon our justice than this brazen "shopping around" for judicial indulgences?

The absence of co-operation, not only between courts, but between courts on one hand and administrative officers on the other, is one of the evils which Dean Pound, among other legal scholars, deplores. Among newspaper men, in constant contact with the situation, this has been a subject of scandal for years, and lawyers are fully aware of it. Police censure judges for ignorance of the facts concerning persons on whom they impose or suspend sentence, and judges, in turn, complain bitterly that the police will not furnish such facts. When it is nobody's business to make independent agencies work together, they seldom work together.

LAWYERS, from time immemorial, have assumed a sort of divine right to govern the rest of us and regulate our concerns. Yet of all the professions, they have shown probably the least capacity or willingness to govern themselves and regulate their own concerns. I suspect it is more a lack of willingness than a lack of capacity. They have been indifferent about remodeling a system which was providing most of them with an excellent living. But Dean Pound is right when he says they had better wake up. If they don't bring legal machinery up to date, somebody else will. When another man has to do your job for you, he seldom shows much consideration for your feelings in the doing of it.

NEW SPEED FOR LIGHT MEANS MAP ACCURACY

By Timing Rays, Distances Can Be Measured in Weeks That Once Required Two Years.

PLANS MADE FOR METEOR PICTURE

These, It Is Believed Will Throw Light on Nature of Dark Nebula in Heavens.

By WATSON DAVIS,
Managing Editor Science Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—The makers of maps and those who survey the earth have been given a new tool through the accurate measurements of the velocity of light by Prof. A. A. Michelson, of the University of Chicago, which he announced to the National Academy of Sciences yesterday.

By simply getting up two stations and accurately measuring the time that it takes light to travel from one point to the other, it would be possible to measure with unparalleled accuracy a distance of 100 miles in about two weeks, whereas the conventional methods now used would require two years and result in inferior accuracy, Prof. Michelson declared.

For Prof. Michelson has measured the velocity of light so that he is sure it is accurate to within a kilometer, about five-eighths of a mile. It is 299,796 kilometers per second (186,284 miles per second). It took years of work, ingenious manipulation and much thought to achieve this result. Prof. Michelson set up his apparatus on two California mountain peaks, 22 miles apart, and worked at night when others were sleeping. Yet he is not satisfied, for he will repeat his experiments over an 80 to 100-mile base line during the Christmas holidays.

The new figure for the speed of light which is only slightly lower—some 74 kilometers per second—than the previously accepted value will not cause any change of the theories of the universe or affect in any way the Einstein theory of relativity.

Danger to Intelligentsia.

The intellectually more advanced types of the human species are constantly threatened with extinction because of social and economic conditions cause intellectually inclined people to neglect to reproduce their kind. This was the warning of Dr. Charles B. Davenport of the Carnegie Institution of Washington when he showed that man has relatively a brief prenatal life, a long childhood, a brief reproductive period and a long old age compared with some of the other mammals such as the rat, mouse or guinea pig.

The long childhood permits a prolonged training for the period of maturity when a man's best work is done, but the tendency of training and the stress on economic status is to extend the portion of life before marriage to such an extent that only about a quarter of the maximum life span is available for raising the family.

Study of Meteors.

The only imports to this earth of ours, the meteors that flash in the night, are being studied by the Harvard College observatory in the hope that they will throw some light upon the composition of the mysterious dark nebula that are seen in parts of the sky, Prof. Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory, told the Academy. These dark nebula are believed to be immense heavenly clouds of dust and it may be that the "shooting stars" that are seen from earth are similar particles of stellar dust that plunge into the earth's atmosphere at the high speed of 25 miles a second. Study of photographs of meteor trails, which are hard to obtain, show that some of them are discontinuous and that often one trail breaks up into two or more. Prof. Shapley told of plans to photograph meteors from various parts of the earth in order to discover their secrets.

Scientist Says He Has Proved Solar Variation Theory.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Prof. Charles A. Abbott, of the Smithsonian Institute, told the Academy of Science yesterday that the theory of solar variations, hitherto disputed by eminent scientists, had been definitely proved by observations he has conducted at the Mt. Wilson Observatory. With the establishment of this theory, he said important discoveries may be made concerning the influence of the sun over astral bodies and its relation to weather on the earth.

The recent discovery of an ancient settlement of the Hopi Indians which he named the "Eden Pueblo," six miles east of Flagstaff, Ariz., was described by J. Walter Fewkes, also of the Smithsonian Institution. Species of crude implements and works of art were found in the diggings, he said, which threw much light on the early civilization in America. Fewkes said it was proposed to continue the work to a point west and south of Flagstaff "in order to obtain implements that have come from the South and West into Arizona, and compare them with those from California."

SLOW BEER DRINKERS CUT RECEIPTS AT LEAGUE BAR

Not Much Profit in Brew and Coffee; Business Falls Off 50 Per Cent in 1926.

By the Associated Press

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 9 —Slow beer-drinkers have seriously cut down the receipts of the League Assembly's Bar, according to Melle Marguerite Galli, barmaid. For the last four years she has served behind the marble counter of the Hotel Victoria adjoining the Hall of the Reformation.

She has ladled out orangeade to Briand of France, lemon squash to Lord Cecil of Great Britain; international cocktails to the diplomats of 55 countries and whisky-and-sodas to various visitors. But she confesses that 1926 was her worst year.

"My bar's receipts for 1926 were only half of what they were in 1925," she said, "and 1925's receipts were barely half those of 1924. The German gentlemen this year did not go in for cocktails and liquors. A small glass of beer now and then and a coffee about 4 o'clock, seemed to satisfy them. Naturally there isn't as much profit in those drinks as there is in others."

FINDS ANIMAL FOLK IN AMAZONIAN WILDS

Scientist Ignores Gold, to Seek Predecessors of Indians in This Hemisphere.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—A man who saw gold and diamonds glistening in the hands of untutored Indians, but who sought the antecedents of their race rather than of their wealth, told his story of a year of adventure in Amazonian wilds on his return here yesterday.

Dr. William M. McGovern, leader of the expedition backed by the British Museum, said: "Frankly, I did not see any of the deposits of gold or diamonds in the Guiana Hinterland, but the Indians showed me samples and told me that was where they found them.

"But in the depths of the jungle I did see a race of primitive beings whom the more advanced Indians call Pogsa or animal folk. There was no mistaking them with their sharply receding foreheads and chins. Some are very dark, resembling Negroes, except for their hair. Some were light enough to give rise to 'white Indian' legends, although they had more color than the white race. They speak a language of clucks and grunts. These rude people and several ancient long skulls uncovered in the same district are the remains, I believe, of an oboriginal race which antedated the Asiatic invasion which peopled the Americas with our Indians.

"The history of early America may be pushed back further in Peru. An expedition which could remain in one place could discover much. In spite of our great amount of traveling, I found in one place there were three layers of earlier civilizations underlying the Inca ruins, which we once believed most ancient."

The Amazon, Dr. McGovern declared, is not the River of Death that it has been called. He said the heat was far less bothersome than in Indo-China. He led his party of five white men back safely, although another was drowned before they were fairly started.

Dr. McGovern declared the Amazon a potential mine of gold through rubber plantations, and said that petroleum and coal deposits had been found in Eastern Peru.

REPUBLICAN COALITION LEADS IN NEW GREEK PARLIAMENT

Count of Ballots So Far Indicates Party Will Have 140 of the 287 Seats.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Nov. 9.—With about two-thirds of the ballots counted in the general elections for members of Parliament, the lead of the Republican coalition has been maintained. The Republicans now have a large majority over both royalist groups. Based on present figures, it is estimated that the complete returns will give the Republican coalition 140 seats, the Royalists 110 and, the advanced Republicans 15, out of a total of 287.

The Republican coalition has as its leaders former Premier Kafandaris and M. Mitchalakapoulos. Neither Gen. Pangalos, the Greek President, nor any of the 34 Ministers, and under-secretaries, who served him after Sept. 30, 1925, the date of the dissolution of the National Assembly, were permitted to be a candidate.

COOLIDGE WANTS BOTH PARTIES' AID FOR TAX REFUND

Mellon's Proposal to Credit Taxpayers on Next Year's Bills Not Finally Decided On.

HOUSE MEMBERS TO BE CONSULTED

Senator Norris Says Both Democrats and Republicans Are Playing Politics With Tax Question.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—President Coolidge today asked for nonpartisan consideration of his tax refund proposal. He made known through the White House spokesman his desire that party lines be forgotten in consideration of the proposal by Congress.

It was disclosed also that the income tax credit plan announced yesterday by Secretary Mellon was not the final proposal of the administration.

The President will confer with members of the House Ways and Means Committee before recommending how the surplus should be returned to the taxpayers.

The White House pronouncement did not refer directly to Democratic charges that the President's move was political, but it was said that Mr. Coolidge felt politics must be avoided at all hazards.

If the tax credit proposal becomes involved in a political controversy at the short session it will be difficult in the President's opinion to work out any relief for the taxpayers at this time.

The President thinks the best means of action by Congress would be that pursued in the last Congress, when a nonpartisan agreement was worked out for passage of the revenue act.

Mellon's Proposal.

Secretary Mellon, after a White House conference, suggested that the proposed income tax refund be effected by crediting the payer on the first two installments to be paid next year on this year's income, the credit being made at high as 12½ per cent of next year's total taxes.

No sooner had this plan become public than rumblings of disapproval were heard from the Capitol at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue. Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah, chairman of the Finance Committee, which would handle any tax bill, indicated that he did not approve the general proposition, but he cautiously refrained from comment pending a more complete study.

"Politics," Says Norris.

Accusing both Republicans and Democrats with playing politics on the tax question, Senator Norris of Nebraska, Republican insurgent leader, said any treasury surplus should be devoted to retiring the public debt.

The comment of Senator Blease (Dem.), Couth Carolina, on the President's plan, was limited to one word—"Bull."

At the White House conference Secretary Mellon convinced the President that an immediate refund from income taxes collected this year would be too expensive from an administrative standpoint, but he accepted the proposal to divert the surprlus from debt retirement into the pockets of American taxpayers.

Mellon, however, increased to a refund of 12½ per cent the President's proposal of between 10 and 2 per cent.

The credit must be taken in the first two installments, the March and June payments, to enable the Government to adjust its books by the close of the fiscal year on June 30. The refund would total about $250,000,000, the amount the surplus is expected to reach at that time.

Against General Revision Now.

Secretary Mellon emphasized that he did not approve any general tax revision at the December session of Congress, explaining that under President Coolidge's plan, "with the Treasury and taxpayer both protected, we can fairly await further experience under the revenue act of 1926."

"The necessity that we do not commit our Government to an unsound fiscal policy for the future should not prevent the Government treating its taxpayers fairly in any particular year in which Government revenues are overabundant," he continued in a formal statement.

"I believe in debt reduction along the program settled after the war, but I do not believe in the payment of a public debt to the undue burdening of productive industry. A balance should be maintained between debt reductions and tax reductions which is fair to all interests in our country.

"We know we shall have a con-

An Aid to Police Efficiency.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

CONSTITUTIONAL amendment No. 2 having been carried by a substantial majority, the Metropolitan Police Department of St. Louis wishes to thank its many friends for their generous support.

Especially grateful is the force to the press of St. Louis and Missouri for its help in presenting our cause to the people. The clear and concise manner in which our proposition was explained prevented mistakes and misunderstandings and it was this widespread information upon the subject that carried it through. Without the co-operation of the press it would have been absolutely impossible to have had amendment No. 2 so universally understood.

The police force hopes to show its appreciation of the favor extended it by increased courtesy and efficiency. It is good to know the public stands squarely back of us and the knowledge that it does should result in benefit to all.

Once more, on behalf of each and every member of the department, please permit me to thank you and the electorate for your consideration and action.

The Reception to Queen Marie.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHAT is the matter with the Queen Marie Reception Committee? Is the Chamber of Commerce all there is in St. Louis? Do the heads of the learned colleges, schools, etc., the descendants of old families that built St. Louis year after year, the prominent ministers, the members of educational societies—do they all count for nothing in St. Louis? Queen Marie is a Catholic, why is there no prominent Catholic on the list? Are there no Rumanians in St. Louis worth considering? Why are there no women on the list?

Is it really St. Louis that is receiving Queen Marie, or the Chamber of Commerce?

ENQUIRER.

The Insult to Madame Kollantay.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT pleased me greatly to read your editorial of criticism of our State Department's actions relative to the Mme. Kollantay incident. Mme. Kollantay having dined at our home during her visit to this country in 1915, I had a close range opportunity to judge this wonderful character; her very presence thrills one as though he were in the presence of a highly inspired personage.

During Mme. Kollantay's stay in the United States she lectured to large audiences in practically all our big cities and, at that time there was no mention by anyone that her presence here was in the least detrimental to our country's interests. If not then, why now?

Your editorial correctly says that if this had happened to one of our ministers abroad we would consider it as an insult. Like our own revolutionists and reformers such as Washington, Paine, Jefferson and Lincoln, her only offense is that she is battling for the progress of humanity and in particular the mothers and little children.

How is it possible that we should deny the truly accredited ambassador of a big nation to one of our neighbor nations, access to our country? We just emerged from a great war to make the "world safe for democracy" and we bar true Democrats like the Karolyis, Kollantay and others, and not only welcome, but toady to Queens, Princesses and Cossacks—democracy's opposites. Consistency thou art a jewel.

Satisfied With Housing Conditions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ANSWERING Mr. Snyder's letter in last night's paper, I would like to know what the colored folks are wolfing about. If we live crowded in—that is the way we can handle things best. I bought a house a few months ago on a street not so long ago all white, paid down what I had and am paying balance like rent. When I bought the house I knew I would not have to live in all of it, but could rent each room separate and with the rent to pay my monthly notes and I am doing it too. Finally I will own the house and can still take in my rent. I see no harm in many people living in one house—it is the same as a hotel—each one, or couple has a room, and if there is a baby or two in the same room—that is all right.

White folks live the same way as far as I can see. Look at the big apartment houses going up for whites where you can rent anywhere from one to eight rooms. They are just as crowded as we are, and they are not crying.

We have good schools for our children and we all know that white folks pay mostly all of the taxes and we get the good. And lastly if we don't like the way we are treated here, we are free and can leave the city, but I can't see how we are treated so badly. I never could have bought a house if I didn't have the right to rent to as many as I pleased.

ENRIGHT AV. OWNER.

CONGRESS AND ELECTIONS

Under strict construction of the Constitution, Senator Borah's contention that Congress has the right to control the entire process of electing Senators and Representatives, except as to the places of choosing Senators, seems to be sound. The Senator's purpose is to demonstrate that, having the power to regulate the elections of Senators and Representatives, it has the power to regulate the primaries, which are parts of the process of selecting Senators.

The Senator quotes Section 4 of Article 1 of the Constitution, providing that the states shall prescribe the times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives, "but Congress may at any time, by law, make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators." He cites the seventeenth amendment as strengthening the power of the Senate, although it does not specifically emphasize the power of Congress originally granted. The purpose of this amendment was to empower legislatures to provide for popular elections of Senators.

The power of Congress to regulate the election of Senators and Representatives has not been exercised completely. The power to regulate carries with it the power to enforce the regulations. The full exercise of this power has been dormant, as in the main the fourteenth amendment has been dormant. The Federal Government has permitted the states, wisely, we think, to regulate and control the elections of Senators and Representatives, holding its power for the most part in reserve. Attempts at Federal regulation have been sporadic.

There is one thing clear, however, that through the power of each house to judge of the qualifications of its membership it is the right and duty of each house to obtain full information of the manner in which a member has been elected. And since the primary is an essential part now of elections, each house may examine all the records of both the primaries and elections. Senator Borah asserts this with emphasis when he says:

> It seems to me perfectly clear that the Congress may, either by law, or each house through the power to judge the elections, returns and qualifications of its members, search the entire record of the entire election proceedings for fraud and corruption to the end that the Government may have a clean Congress, a prerequisite to the existence of the Government itself.

The wisdom of Federal interference to regulate and control elections of Congressmen within the states is open to serious question. It may be grossly abused for partisan purposes. It would be a tremendous task, involving the supervision of elections by Federal officers. Conditions in the various states differ widely. Senators and Representatives are representatives of the people of the states, and their voice in the selection should be untrammeled so long as elections are honestly conducted.

On the other hand, it is imperative, in order to judge of the elections and qualifications of its members, that each house shall exercise the power to determine whether its members have been honestly elected, and whether they have the qualifications, of which honesty is essential.

The power to examine into all the records of elections, primary and regular, is amply sufficient to protect the Congress from corruptly chosen, incompetent or dishonest members. If Congress would exercise that power thoroughly and honestly, both the Congress and the people would be protected from the invasion of either house by unfit members.

If Senator Borah would direct his great energy and ability to the task of assuring that Congress shall thoroughly investigate the election of its members and shall exercise sound judgment upon the honesty of their elections and their qualifications, he will do more to protect the country from corruption in elections and unfitness in Congress than in arguing for a further stretch of congressional power. The protection of the country from corrupt congressional elections and from corruption in Congress requires nothing more.

After our own great happiness in Grover Cleveland Alexander, who could hardly have been the same thing to us by any lesser name, we are disposed to believe that in depriving ordinary babies of the names of the great the Italians are making another of their characteristic mistakes.

THE LAST STRAW.

Let the Italian Government proscribe the rights of freemen. Let it shackle the press and grind under foot all gallant minorities. We can but indite reproachful editorials pointing the sorrowful path of all tyrants. But when the Italian Government denies the right of babies, however ordinary, to noble, illustrious names, then we proceed with fire and brimstone to a scathing, throne-shaking denunciation.

Shall this thing be? Never! Forbid it, babies of the world. Rise in your cradles in the small hours of the night and send forth a protest that shall shake the citadels of Rome. The right of a baby to a name is a shining fundamental. And more, no name is so grand and famous that the most humble infant cannot possess it. A baby may by the voice of fate be surnamed Potts, or Pfeffenfeifer, or Abrahamolowsky. That is his cross, a handicap which regretful parents see and for which they try to make amends.

Pfeffenfeifer, for example, possesses neither musical tones nor romance. But listen—Gustavus Adolphus Pfeffenfeifer. Ah! There is a name of which a baby can be proud. It has sonorousness, dignity, nobility. So, too, with Abrahamolowsky. By itself there is no sweet harmony in the name. But Abraham Lincoln Abrahamolowsky—mark the ring of it. No baby could help being charmed by such a name. It would summon forth his best efforts, the name would follow him all his life, bringing cheer and comfort.

No Government can permanently deny its babies fine-sounding names. Italian mothers may obey this law, calling their infants in Italian, Peter, James and John, publicly. But in secret there will be little Caesars, Napoleons and Garibaldis. And, here and there, we are afraid, a revolt will lift its head boldly and Italy will be filled with little Benito Mussolinis.

Deputy Marshal William Skow of Brentwood, who shoots speeders, says he fired his last shot at a can. It would be a wonderful relief to the community if we could be sure that it was his last shot, no matter what the can was doing.

IF WE UNDERSTOOD EVERYTHING.

In discussing for the first time since the armistice the management of the war, Marshal Foch revealed he is a philosopher in addition to being a commanding military strategist. Concluding the interview he gave the press, Marshal Foch said:

> To command is nothing. To negotiate is nothing. What is necessary is to understand those with whom one has to deal and to make one's self thoroughly understood by them. To understand each other is the whole secret of life.

Strange, is it not, to learn from Foch that it is nothing to have a Marshal's baton in one's knapsack? It may also sound amazing to read that negotiation in itself is nothing. Yet when commanding and negotiating are viewed as means to an end, the truth of Foch's negation is obvious.

The twister comes in the necessity of understanding friend and foe, and of making one's self understood by them. There's the rub, as Hamlet would say. If to understand each other is the whole secret of life, the secret is pretty well guarded so far as humanity has traveled. Who understands very much about himself? Science has taught us that the physical compound in a mortal is worth about 98 cents, but no science can explain the cost of the laughter and the tears that mingled with the blood shed in the last great war. We are baffled as we try to explain why we behave as we do.

Perhaps if we understood ourselves and each other the difficulties of life would be removed, yet they might be increased. Would life be endurable if everyone understood everything?

JAMES K. HACKETT.

James K. Hackett was unquestionably the most glamorous stage figure of those dear, romantic nineties. The only contemporary to hold a comparable position in adolescent devotion was that beau sabreur of letters, Richard Harding Davis. If a third musketeer must be summoned, recollection will not hesitate an instant to pin a chevron on the arm of Charles Dana Gibson.

But Davis and Gibson, though their stories and sketches vied with bon bons and roses in the tactics of love-making, were personally unknown beyond their comparatively limited social orbits, while Hackett, the actor—he came and saw and conquered. The world beheld him across the footlights in gallant, Byronic roles, handsome as Apollo, serene and poised in the face of the deadliest peril, noble as a Bayard in the diabolical tests and temptations with which the machinations of the drama beset him, inevitably and supremely triumphant at the end, with the girl happily at home in his fond and competent arms. Old raptures stirred the hearts of grandmothers yesterday as they read of their one-time idol's death.

However marvelous all this may have been to a youth in his early twenties, the sweets of juvenilia presently cloyed. Hackett had serious professional ambitions. He cherished Shakspearean dreams which only a few years ago he was able to realize. Othello and Macbeth were presented to London in as sumptuous settings as the princely Irving ever devised, and critical judgment, subsequently corroborated in Paris, acclaimed the American an artist.

Whatever his rating as an actor, James K. Hackett was a royal personage who lived as magnificently as Lorenzo.

NO PLUM PUDDING.

Our British cousins are once more getting ready for their annual debauch. From the peasant's hut to the peer's moated grange, aye, even to the royal palace, they are all engaged in contriving their national Christmas dish, the plum pudding.

What of it? you may indignantly ask. Why use the forbidding word debauch in connection with a delight of the table which has long had an honorable place in our own pure, irreproachable feasting?

Your indignation will subside, we are confident, in the disillusioning and unhappy information we are about to impart. The plum pudding is a danger to be shunned. For all its savory, unsuspected toothsomeness, peril lurks therein. We learn from the British recipe that when the raisins and currants and citron and orange peel and suet and bread crumbs and ginger and salt and goodness knows what-not have been assembled in proper proportion a last ingredient remains. The gourmets, they tell us, prefer sherry, but the gourmands demand brandy, and one or the other of those frightful distillations is invariably employed.

And the worst is yet to come. What will you say when you are told that perfidious Albion has had the lawless audacity to ship a vast quantity of this plum pudding to the United States—2000 pounds of it, or enough to make the State of Indiana go reeling through the holidays like New York or Maryland or that villainous Western backslider, Montana?

Yet all is not lost. God reigns, the Government at Washington still lives, and Secretary Kellogg is as vigilant as ever. Let the weak, indulgent Britishers go down to their doom, if they will, from their lustful appetites. But they shall not drag us along to the same fell fate. That 2000-pound shipment of brandy-soaked or sherry-steeped delectability must not enter our portals. Let our Christmas anthem be:

No Karolyi! No Kallontay! No Saklatvala! No Plum Pudding!

IS VARIETY THE SPICE OF LIFE?

"St. Louis," observed a member of the sport staff, "is no place to spend a vacation. A fellow might as well be at work." "Why not," we answered, "a psychological vacation?" "Oh, you master minds," he sneered, and fled. We were painfully surprised; the cult of the psychological vacation is one of our pet hobbies. We decided to add a convert to our cause; our way to that recruit's heart would be through his stomach. We would begin with so simple and elemental a thing as food. Man must eat, even when taking a vacation. We would prove that a psychological vacation is possible in St. Louis. Taking out the note book reserved for the purpose, we wrote the word "food" in 12-point capitals. Despite a hard day's work at the office, we observed restaurants as the homeward-bound bus played chiropractor to our spinal column. We counted 40 restaurants. We also counted 43 signs,

Three of the restaurants encored the sign. We were discouraged; if a psychological vacation begins with food, the subject of the vacation wants good food, well cooked, but he wants a change from

We give it up: we counted 104 restaurants and as many signs assuring us that so far as a variation in the technique of frying, basting, boiling, roasting, poaching or stewing is concerned, we can continue to eat at home, even when on a psychological vacation. The number of our hobbies is one less; we shall go back to collecting glassware, note books and safety razors; we shall spend our vacation in California. St. Louis is no place to achieve that variety so essential to a vacation. There is too much

TRAVEL NOTE.

Dear Sir: I was not hunting a beer recipe, but, in my reading, I came across this:

> "When the Cook Islander feels the need of mild exhilaration, he takes to the bush and brews a beverage known as orange beer. The ingredients are sugar, orange juice and yeast. I have tasted orange beer at all stages, and found it not at all difficult to take; there are worse varieties of tipple, though this one is apt to lead to fighting and leaves its too enthusiastic devotee with a headache of unusual severity."

By substituting "kitchen" for "bush" could not that very well do as the impression of a foreign lecturer in America?

FAY BAINTER CHARMING BUT NOT "FIRST LOVE"

Zoe Akins' Adaptation of French Latin Quarter Comedy Opens in New York.

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—As one who has been attending the performances of Fay Bainter, man and boy, for many years, I had never suspected how fine and resourceful and brilliantly competent an actress she could be until I sat amazed through her beautiful playing last evening at the Booth Theater.

This was in a suave and often charming but immensely unimportant French comedy adapted for our stage by Zoe Akins. In Paris they called it "Pile ou Face," which means "heads or tails." Here after prodigies of research and agonies of indecision, the management has decided to call it "First Love." As Mrs. Fiske used to observe nightly in St. John Ervin's comedy, "How revolting!"

A bleak review of the play's outline would merely inform you that this was a piece about a young girl of the Latin quarter who has lived with a lad in attic so happily that rather than have him marry for money, she tries to raise the necessary funds by a bargain with an elderly baron of her acquaintance. But from that bald outline you would never guess that the comedy's charm is in its innocence, nor would you be prepared for the gay, the utterly delightful scene up under the eaves somewhere within sight of the Boule Miche.

"First Love" is a play in three acts. The first is a stiff, clumsy little prologue. The second is this sad and tender sketch of love in a garret—written with such delicacy and humor, played with such spirit and zest and warmth. The last is an interminable denouement, so long drawn out that the sword of Damocles loses its edge from rust.

QUEEN HAS NO WORD OF WIFE FOR THE PRINCE OF WALES

Queen Mary Answers Scotch Woman's Question With Negative Shake of Head.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Queen Mary enjoys a joke as well as the King.

Returning from Scotland, the Queen has been telling friends of visits with some of the retired royal servants whom she has known for years. In one cottage the Queen asked a grandmother about Victoria Mary, age 20, and was assured the girl was still at home.

"And is there no word of a young husband?" anxiously inquired the Queen.

"I ha' heard o' nane, Your Majesty," the "granny" replied, and then, as an after thought she asked:

"And, Your Majesty, is ther' ony word o' a wife for the Prince of Wales yet?"

"Granny's" neighbors say the Queen's reply was a negative shake of her head and a broad smile as she walked away.

TO CREMATE HACKETT'S BODY

Actor's Ashes Will Be Taken From Paris to New York for Burial.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Members of the family said today that there would be no funeral services in Paris for James K. Hackett, who died yesterday, but that the body would be cremated and the ashes taken to New York for interment in the family vault at Woodlawn Cemetery.

Mr. Hackett's illness made him realize a week ago that he would be unable to make a scheduled appearance tomorrow before King George and Queen Mary in London in a scene from "Macbeth" with the aid of the Shakspearean Theater at Stratford-on-Avon, to replace the one which was recently burned.

UKULELE SEXTET AT CHURCH

California Pastor Introduces Departure in Sacred Music.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Cal., Nov. 9.—Ukuleles pinch-hit for the pipe organ in the community church of this central California town. A ukulele sextet thrums liturgical music and leads the congregation in psalm-singing at Sunday services.

The Rev. C. C. Champlin, pastor, admits installation of the "uke" as a source of sacred music is a departure, even though its tones may be as soft as any produced by the psalter, dulcimer, timbrel, sackbut and cymbals associated with sacred music in the Bible. However, the congregation has lauded the pastor's originality. The ukulele sextet soon will be increased to a sacred orchestra of 24 pieces.

PRINCESS ASTRID GIVEN GREAT WELCOME BY BELGIANS

Swedish Bride of Crown Prince Leopold in Brussels for Religious Marriage.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 9.—Notables were arriving today for the religious marriage tomorrow of the Swedish Princess who some day will be queen of the Belgians. Already she has captured their hearts. Throngs were in front of the palace today to see her.

Princess Astrid, the bride of Crown Prince Leopold, has come to Brussels from Stockholm where last week she was united with the house of Brabant by a civil marriage.

From the time of her arrival at Antwerp on the Swedish cruiser Fylgia she was greeted with enthusiasm. At Antwerp crowds broke through the police lines and several persons were injured. Children bearing aloft the Belgian and Swedish flags were trampled upon. The Swedish Minister was among those injured.

When the Fylgia reached Antwerp the Princess was on the bridge waving a handkerchief. As the cruiser came to her anchorage the royal bridegroom went to the bridge. Astrid threw her arms about her husband's neck.

Arriving in Brussels the Princess declined to have the top of her carriage put up, and she was thoroughly drenched by the rain before the royal palace was reached. An old Swedish proverb says that "the bride whose wedding bouquet is wetted by rain is certain to be happy."

The Crown Prince and Princess accompanied by King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, attended a gala performance at a theater last night. It was long after midnight before the streets were cleared of the crowds which assembled to get a glimpse of the couple.

PRINCE CRAMS FOR CAPTAINCY

King George's Third Son Against Courtesy Promotion.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Prince Henry, the King's third son, does not have much time for fox hunting these days, as he has been "cramming" for an army examination which will make him a Captain.

The Prince, who has the distinction of being the tallest member of the royal family, has a dislike for anything suggesting courtesy promotion and has made up his mind to earn his stars in the ordinary way, or not accept them at all. The Prince at present is a subaltern in the Tenth Hussars and at cavalry maneuvers he looks after his own mounts, even currying and rubbing them down after a severe test in the field.

How to make TEA correctly

Firstly

Be sure you use India Tea, or a blend containing India Tea.

Secondly

Use an earthenware teapot, and put into it one good teaspoonful of India Tea for each cup of tea required.

Thirdly

Be sure you pour the water into the teapot the moment it boils. Only fresh boiling water can bring out the true flavour of the tea. Hot water is no use. Water that has been boiling for some time does not give the best results. This is important if you want a really good cup of tea.

Fourthly

Allow the tea to stand 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little cream or milk into each cup before pouring out the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. Then add sugar to taste.

Any retailer or store can supply you with India Tea or blends containing India Tea. He has no difficulty in getting it, as practically every wholesale distributor of tea in this district supplies India Tea. He will gladly get it for you — but —

COOLIDGES WILL PASS THROUGH CITY TWICE

Special Train Carrying Them to Kansas City Tomorrow Will Remain an Hour in Yards.

For the second time within 14 months, President and Mrs. Coolidge will pass through St. Louis twice this week without making a formal stop.

The President's special train, which will leave Washington tonight, will arrive in St. Louis late tomorrow night over the Pennsylvania lines, and will remain in the yards here about an hour before departing for Kansas City. The President is to dedicate the new Liberty Memorial shaft in Kansas City Thursday, Armistice day. On the return, the presidential train will pass through the St. Louis yards Thursday night, again with an hour's stop for provisions and change of locomotives, but without official ceremony. The schedule requires the party to reach Washington Friday night.

President and Mrs. Coolidge passed through St. Louis Oct. 3, 1925, on their way to Omaha, where the President addressed the American Legion convention. Their train stopped in the Terminal yards near Union Station for an hour, and the President posed for photographers, but did not leave the car platform.

On the return from Omaha, the presidential party arrived in St. Louis at 6:30 a. m., Oct. 7. President and Mrs. Coolidge were met by Luther Ely Smith, an Amherst College friend of Mr. Coolidge. With Mayor Miller, Congressman Dyer and police officials, they drove to Forest Park and viewed the bear pits. The plan had not been announced to the public, and few persons looked twice at the short line of automobiles carrying the party. The return to the station was made in time to leave shortly after 8 a. m.

QUEEN TO MEET FIRST WOMAN GOVERNOR TODAY

zens explained today that differences between various groups over plans for Queen Marie's visit here are due only to a desire to avoid "the mistake New York made." The error there, it was pointed out, was in leaving the entire reception to the Consul-General, with the result that "the Rumanians were left out of things entirely."

President John Spornick of the Rumanian social and political club, so explained the difficulties, and denied any general ill-feeling toward Laurence Bungardean, Vice Consul here, who was reported yesterday to have incurred such a feeling through a supposed alliance with "Gold Coast" dowagers against his own people. A peace meeting was held by the Rumanians last night.

Judge Joseph B. David refused to serve on a committee of welcome. He said the Rumanian Government was one of bigotry.

Queen Denies Plea of Ministers.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 9.—A request for a "brief audience to a small official delegation of American Baptists, on behalf of their Baptist brethren in Rumania who suffer persecution and religious disability in that country," has been refused by Queen Marie, it is announced by Dr. George W. McDaniel, president of the Southern Baptist convention. "It is to be regretted," Dr. McDaniel said, "that she could not find time to hear a plea for a few minutes on behalf of the people of her kingdom, who, for conscience sake, are suffering injustice and persecution."

Danger in Loss of Revenue.

"We are now at a very high tide of prosperity in the United States. There is no reason to expect at this time a marked reaction, but before determining that permanent tax reduction can be had we must have reasonable assurance of a continued flow from the sources from which our revenue is obtained. With only a few months' test of the revenue act of 1926, common sense requires that we do not act precipitately.

"We face the near exhaustion of war time assets and the necessity of putting our sole reliance for Government revenue upon a class of current taxes, which are peculiarly susceptible to large variations. Tax reduction applies not to one year but to every year after its adoption. Surplus is a casual happening, occurring in one year and not in another.

"A loss of revenue which could be easily sustained in the fiscal year 1927 might result in putting the budget in the red in 1929 and require the imposition of additional taxation.

"Business can easily adjust itself to a lowering of expenses through a reduction in taxes, but if a decline in prosperity should come business could not stand increase in expenditures through more taxes."

Senator Smoot said he was in favor of tax reduction and indicated that he would support a reduction measure if the condition of the Treasury warrants. He believed, however, that Congress should proceed slowly and not reduce taxes to a point which later might make necessary a special levy to such conditions that might follow a slump in business.

The Rumanian colors—red, blue yellow—will be carried out in Queen's bouquet and its satin mers, as planned by the er Committee. George Facea of 5214 Wiesehan avenue and Miss Gisella R. Robinovici of 5897 Washington boulevard.

Miss Robinovici is anticipating the event with double interest, for she recalls having seen the Queen at her royal church wedding in Bucharest.

Presentation of Flowers.

Princess Ileana is to receive 48 pink roses. Her bouquet is to be handed her by a small boy, while a little girl is to offer the other bouquet to Queen Marie. Elisei Ionescu, 2229A Park avenue, is to deliver the Rumanian Society's address of welcome.

Gaily colored native costumes, varying with the home province of the wearer, will be worn by many Rumanians. They will meet at 1 p. m. at Eighth and Barry streets for formation of an automobile parade to the university, where 200 seats have been reserved for them.

National costumes will be worn again by Rumanian women at the dinner at Hotel Chase at 7 p. m., but the men will wear full dress. A table near Queen Marie's has been reserved for them.

Hotel Specially Decorated.

The royal party will arrive at the Coronado Hotel, after being escorted east on Lindell boulevard from Union. Preston J. Bradshaw, the owner, has done his best to provide quarters "fit for a queen" during the period of 24 hours or more that the Coronado will be the home of the visitors.

A carpeted walk, canopied and decorated with the Rumanian colors, will lead to a Lindell boulevard entrance, set aside for the use of the royal guests, thence to two private elevators and the fourteenth floor which has been refurnished and redecorated in the style of Louis XV for the royal family and their immediate attendants. The tenth floor has been set aside for Americans and others in the party.

The guests will observe that an effort was made to make them feel "at home." The expensive linens and the silverware they will use at luncheon on arrival are marked with the Queen's coat-of-arms. The walls of the apartment are done in lavender and orchid, an effort having been made to reproduce the royal residence at Bucharest.

Everything for their comfort.

Costly crystal chandeliers, rare pieces of imported antique furniture, imported tapestries and deep Oriental rugs have been provided for their comfort. Queen Marie's bedroom opens on the northwest corner of the building and the rooms of her son and daughter adjoin, each with a broad view of the city. Seventeen detectives, employed by the hotel, will be stationed in and about the building.

Immediately after luncheon, at 11:30 a. m., there will be a parade through the downtown district. Paced by motor cycle policemen, the procession will move east from the hotel on Lindell to Grand boulevard, making a brief stop at St. Louis University, thence east on Pine boulevard, to Theresa avenue, to Channing avenue, through the Lindell cutoff to Washington boulevard, east to Broadway, south to Olive street, west to Twelfth boulevard, north to Locust street and west via Locust and Lindell to the hotel. In the evening the royal family, following a dinner at the Chase, the royal family will attend the Horse Show at the Coliseum.

Long-Term Financing

BY no means a small feature of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company's service is the Mortgage Loan Department.

While the Commercial Banking Department extends short-term credit to firms and corporations for current requirements, the Mortgage Loan Department extends long-term loans for the erection of buildings and plants.

Since its organization, in 1890, the Mississippi Valley has financed hundreds of large building enterprises throughout the United States.

Thus, it has performed the three-fold service of assisting legitimate business, helping to build communities, and providing conservative investments to its bond buyers.

Our Mortgage Loan Department is always glad to consider applications for first mortgage loans on modern, improved property in St. Louis or other important cities.

NORRIS TO LEAD FIGHT ON SEATING VARE AND SMITH

Nebraska Progressive Republican Would Turn Senators-Elect Back at the Door.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, militant progressive Republican, who campaigned Pennsylvania against Vare and for the Democratic nominee for the Senate, is back in Washington primed for battle.

Looming immediately ahead of Norris, as one of the items of business on the Senate calendar for the December session, is the report of a select committee proposing to lease the $150,000,000 Government power and fertilizer project at Muscle Shoals to private interests. Farther in the distance is the question of the seating of Senators-elect Vare of Pennsylvania and Smith of Illinois. Both of these are subjects intensely interesting to the Nebraskan; both will bring on a fight in which he will be a leading belligerent.

Norris will continue at the head of the Republican insurgents—the little group of Senators who constituted, during the last session, the real opposition party of the Upper House. It is not a position to which he was elected; he holds it by virtue of his ability, his fighting quality, his long experience in Congress and the genuineness of his progressive views. The others of the insurgent group naturally defer to him.

Prestige of Norris Enhanced.

The prestige of Norris as an independent has been enhanced by his campaign against Vare in Pennsylvania. Vare, it is true, was elected, but outside of Philadelphia, which his machine controls, he was licked. There was a tremendous overturn of votes. Close analysis, according to Norris, probably would show that there was a greater overturn in Pennsylvania than in Massachusetts, where David I. Walsh scored his impressive victory over the President's candidate, Senator Butler.

Norris' best talking point in the campaign against Vare was that famous Janus-faced, Willis-Spencer resolution which, while seating Newberry, declared that the expenditure of $195,000 in a senatorial primary—the piker expenditures in Newberry's behalf—was harmful to the honor and dignity of the Senate and dangerous to the perpetuity of free government.

Norris will be a power in the coming session. He will be a greater power when all the lame ducks are gone and the Democrats and Republicans line up for the Seventieth Congress with 47 on one side and 48 on the other. Then, indeed, will the insurgent Republicans, with their ability to tilt the balance in either direction, come into their own.

Light of Battle Again in Eye.

It's no wonder, then, that George Norris, who was sometimes plunged in gloom during the last session, is feeling cheerful. The light of battle that shone in his eye when he helped to down Cannonism, is there again.

"Senator Reed of Pennsylvania," he said, "has promised to have me read out of the party for helping Wilson in Pennsylvania. I hope he will try it. If they want to put me out of the Republican caucus, as they did Brookhart, Frazier, Ladd and La Follette, that will be all right with me. I won't mind a bit."

Norris' smile betokened joy at the prospect of a battle with the Old Guard. It was suggested that Senator Reed, who went to the bat for Vare after having called Vare's primary supporters a lot of "dunderheads," might again have no trouble in reversing his position.

The reference to "dunderheads" brought a delightful grin from the Senator.

Used Reed's Speeches.

"I got that 'dunderhead' speech of Reed's out of the record," he said, "and used it all over Pennsylvania. And I had another speech by Reed in which he said that Vare didn't know anything about finance, or shipping, or foreign affairs, or anything. You should have heard the roars of laughter at the reading of those speeches.

"If we had had half a dozen good speakers of the caliber of Borah, on the stump against Vare, and one newspaper in Pennsylvania like the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Vare would have been beaten."

Norris believes that both Vare and Frank L. Smith should be halted on the doorstep of the Senate. He disagrees heartily with the theory that the Senate must accept their credentials, seat them and proceed to an investigation to determine whether they are qualified.

"You don't have to deal in fine-spun technicalities in these cases," he commented. "They are different from the Newberry case. However much the Senate may have suspected fraud in the Michigan primary, it didn't know anything officially. It could do nothing else than accept Newberry's certificate of election and seat him pending an investigation.

Investigation Already Held.

"In the Smith and Vare cases, the investigation has already been held—an official investigation, ordered by the Senate. It has been found that more money was spent for each of them than the $195,000 which the Senate condemned as excessive in the Newberry case. The Smith and Vare money was spent in the face of the direct and solemn warning served by the Senate in the Newberry resolution.

"The Senate is the sole judge of the qualifications of its members. It should exclude Vare and Smith at the door-step. Just how it will proceed I can't pretend to say, but mark this prophecy: both of them will be ousted. They may get in for a while, but eventually they will get out. That is certain."

Norris was asked about Muscle Shoals.

"The next move," he replied, "must come from those who are seeking to dispose of the Shoals to the power trust. The report of the select committee is on the calendar for action. There will not be enough votes to bring about the proper solution of the problem—Government operation of the Shoals—but there will be enough, I am confident, to block the proposed lease. We shall be able, at least, to hold the situation at a stalemate during the coming short session."

Pending Shoals Proposal.

The pending proposal is to lease the Shoals to a number of companies, including the Alabama Power Co. All of them, Norris contends, are joined in a great power trust. One of the proposed lessees, according to a chart which Norris exhibited, is controlled by Samuel Insull, the Chicago traction magnate, who was the principal angel of the Smith campaign. Norris will not overlook the opportunity to link the fight against Smith with his long effort to keep the Shoals in the hands of the Government.

If the seniority rule is followed, Norris will succeed the late Senator Cummins as chairman of the important judiciary committee. Borah is ahead of him in the list, but is already chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. Norris was asked whether he would take the judiciary chairmanship. He laughed.

"I hadn't cared for it," he said. "But since Senator Reed (of Pennsylvania) has said th have it——" He let a finish the sentence.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

HEARING BEGINS ON LAKE DIVERSION

Attorneys for Thirteen States Appear Before Hughes as Supreme Court Commissioner.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Charles E. Hughes, sitting as special master before counsel representing 13 states, has begun the taking of evidence for the United States Supreme Court as a result of the injunction suits filed with that tribunal to restrain Illinois and the Chicago Sanitary District in the diversion of water from Lake Michigan.

The proceedings yesterday opened what is expected to be a three weeks' collection of facts bearing on the old controversy between the sanitary district, its mother State and the complainant states of Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York.

Allied with Chicago and Illinois in its fight for lake water and represented by counsel are the states of Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

A former Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, began the session in a way that revealed the importance attached by the states involved to the proceedings.

40,000,000 Versus 19,000,000.

He said 40,000,000 people were lined up on the one side and 19,000,000 on the other, and ventured the statement that, if the counter part of the controversy existed in less developed parts of the world, it would lead to war.

He expressed his gratification that the millions represented had elected to go into the courts rather than into battle to decide the issue.

Baker asserted that Canada also was protesting because of the continued diversion of water by Chicago and for that reason the Supreme Court had been put in a position analagous to that of an international tribunal.

He charged that Chicago had gone ahead directing water from the lake in defiance of War Department authority until the level of the lakes below Lake Superior and as far as Montreal had been lowered six to eight inches.

The lower levels he said have injured that section of the country "which is the nation's bread basket and meat hamper," damaging transportation and harbors and seriously hurting its economic life. He promised that evidence to support these statements would be produced.

Reply of Illinois.

Hugh S. Johnson, representing the Attorney-General of Illinois, declared the injunction proceeding was based on "selfishness." The proper plaintiff, he said, was the United States and not the defendant states.

"Illinois acts in the interest of the Great Lakes-to-the-Gulf Waterway," he said, adding that "the stopping of the diversion would cause little change in lake levels and would not help Wisconsin," which initiated the suit.

Johnson intimated that Wisconsin by her actions had worked to the benefit of Canada and against her sister states.

As special counsel for Mississippi Valley States, allied with Illinois, Daniel Kirby of St. Louis contended that continue ddiversion of water from the lakes to the Illinois and ultimately into the Mississippi rivers was "essential to the very existence of river commerce."

Shutting off the lake waters he argued would imperil the future of the Mississippi Valley and that would be a national calamity.

The last spokesman for the defendants was James M. Beck, former Solicitor-General.

Appearing as special counsel for the sanitary district, he contended that the Federal Government knew of the diversion, had approved, controlled and supervised it, and insisted that the Supreme Court meant what it said when it affirmed the right of the Secretary of War to grant to Chicago water from the lakes pending enactment of legislation by Congress.

He argued that the complainants had no case in the court but should take their appeal for relief to Congress and the Secretary of War. The opposing states, he charged, have attempted to have the courts usurp the power of Congress to frustrate the Secretary of State in his negotiations with Canada, and to defeat the Secretary of Commerce in his efforts to develop the Mississippi waterway and the Secretary of War in his attempt to solve temporarily Chicago's water problem.

POLICE SEEK CHANGE OF VENUE

Police Commissioners Kortjohn and Freund have prepared application for a change of venue from Circuit Judge Ittner in the case of William Russo against the Police Department, alleging that Judge Ittner is prejudiced against the police.

Russo, proprietor of a filling station at Seventh and O'Fallon streets, has petitioned for an order restraining police from raiding his place of business. The police contend that Russo's station is a rendezvous of gangsters. The petition will be filed tomorrow when the case is called for a hearing.

Traveler Can't Sleep Without Hot Water

Gas Makes Man Quit Road After 45 Years

After traveling 45 years, Mr. A. Thompson had to quit the road because of indigestion and stomach gas. "Everything I ate fermented," he says, "and I couldn't sleep without a hot-water bag on my stomach. My son got me to take Adlerika, and I thank it for the real life I now enjoy."

Unlike most medicines, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, giving the intestines a REAL cleansing and bringing out old poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. Even if bowels move daily, you will be surprised how much more old matter Adlerika brings out which may have been causing all your trouble. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, GAS bloating, indigestion or sick headache, ONE spoonful of Adlerika always brings relief.

Doctors Praise Adlerika

Adlerika is a compound of the best saline, intestinal cleanser with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. It is excellent for Intestinal Stasis, a disease due to modern ways of living and which is often the true cause of sour stomach, gas bloating, nervous dyspepsia and restless sleep.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, says: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. A. C. Curl: "I prescribe Adlerika with highly satisfactory results."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system."

Dr. F. M. P. (name withheld by request): "I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose."

No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In St. Louis at Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Johnson Bros. Drug Co.

TWO YEARS FOR DRIVER PLEASES COURT OFFICIALS

CORONER REGARDED CASE AS VICIOUS

Defendant Was Speeding at 40 Miles in $125 Machine With Defective Brakes at Time of Crash.

The two-year penitentiary sentence, which Jack Gorman, Negr janitor, received yesterday whe he pleaded guilty of manslaughte in the deaths of a young mothe and her six-weeks-old baby, wh were killed in a collision with hi dilapidated time-payment automobile, is considered a "good conviction" by prosecuting authorities and the Court.

This opinion prevails in spite o the Coroner's opinion last March that it was one of the "most viciou cases" on record here, and Circuit Attorney Sidener's action at that time in seeking and obtaining tw second-degree murder indictment by the grand jury. They were the first such indictments in automobile cases to be returned.

Speeding in Defective Auto.

Gorman, on March 16 last, in a $125 machine with defective brakes, moving at 40 miles an hour, at Leonard and Franklin avenues, crashed into the automobile of Frank M. Holtsclaw, an auto mechanic. Holtsclaw's wife, Mildred, 20 years old and their daughter, Marion, six weeks old, were killed. Gorman fled on foot and was arrested in an apartment house where he worked. He had been drinking, and a partly filled whisky bottle was found in his abandoned car.

Yesterday Gorman's lawyer suggested the change in the charges to manslaughter and the sentence of two years on each count, to run concurrently. Assistant Circuit Attorney Lemon accepted the offer, declaring the punishment was as heavy as could be expected from any jury. I. Joel Wilson, first assistant to Sidener and acting head of the department in Sidener's absence from the city, together with Judge Hogan, who accepted the plea, agreed with Lemon that conviction for second-degree murder was impossible and that a two-year sentence was all that could be expected.

They explained that second-degree murder presumes an element of deliberation, and that there was nothing in the evidence against Gorman to show that he intended to crash into Holtsclaw's machine. In a trial for manslaughter, his defective brakes could be mentioned as evidence of culpable negligence, but nothing could be said about the fact that he had paid only $40 on the dilapidated touring car.

Statement of Prosecutor.

The principal thing that moved him to accept the plea, Lemon said, was the fact that juries rarely impose more than a jail sentence, generally a fine, in automobile manslaughter cases. The heaviest jury sentence ever imposed here in an automobile manslaughter case was a two-year sentence against a Negro who hit a pedestrian while passing another machine at 40 miles an hour.

If Gorman behaves himself in the penitentiary, he may be released under the merit system at the end of 14 months, or in January, 1928. The fact that he is serving two sentences concurrently will not be held against him when he applies for parole.

Holtsclaw, alone of those in close touch with the case, expressed disapproval. "I think he got off pretty light," he said last night. sentenced to two years, and how much of it will be served. I didn't even know he was being tried. I was down in another court where they tried the woman who was with him for leaving the scene.

The woman, Rosie Brown, was released when the prosecutor dismissed the case in Judge Landwehr's court.

Negro Robber Foiled by Girl.

A Negro, at 6:45 p. m. yesterday, entered a side door of the Detroit Vapor Stove Co., 300 North Grand boulevard, seized Miss Gene Christman of 380 North Taylor avenue, who was in charge and demanded money out of the cash drawer. Miss Christman screamed and the Negro fled empty handed.

STOLE $45,000 FROM BANK TO BET ON HORSE RACES

Two Tellers Held in New York Said to Have Confessed; Third Held on Larceny Charge.

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 9.—Charged with stealing upward of $45,000 from the Bowern Savings Bank, two young bank tellers were locked up in Tombs Prison last night, one badly cut on the face and hands as the result of an attempt to jump through a seventh-floor window while being questioned at the District Attorney's office.

The tellers, C. Russell Morton of New Rochelle, and Clarence Oliver of Brooklyn, are said to have confessed stealing the money to bet on horse races. A little more than $16,000 has been recovered and the rest is covered by bonds. A third teller of the same bank, Reginald Losee of Dobbs Ferry, is being held at police headquarters under suspicion of grand larceny.

According to detectives, Morton and Oliver said they covered up their peculations by depositing checks against each other, hoping that eventually the "ponies" would favor them and they could return the bank's money.

MASS MEETING OF PETTERS NEARBY DURING HALL-MILLS MURDER, EVIDENCE SHOWS

Mystery of How Anybody Could Have Committed the Crime Unseen Grows as Testimony Accumulates.

By DOROTHY DIX.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 9.—The conclusion is inescapable. The petters of New Brunswick must have held a mass-meeting in De Russey's Lane in the night on which Dr. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills were slain, and how anyone could have pulled off a murder in that crowd without bumping into his friends and neighbors, and have got away without being discovered, must forever remain one of the unsolved mysteries of crime.

The second week of the trial opened cheerily, with the testimony of another of the local shieks among those present at the old trysting place on the night of Sept. 14, 1922. His name should not have been plain Robert Erling, but Sir Galahad, for he fought mightily and galantly to defend the name of his sweetie, until the judge forced him to reveal it.

"For" quoted he, "she is now married to another, and the mother of two children, and I fear that it may get her into trouble if it became known that she was there."

Erling was an obviously unwilling witness, but after much hemming and hawing he admitted that he and the girl arrived at De Russey's Lane about 8:30 p. m. parked their car and remained there until after eleven.

During that time he saw Jane Gibson come riding along on her old mule, Jenny, and she stopped and peered into his car, but he turned his face away from her and did not speak, so that she might not recognize him.

He also saw two cars in the lane, one he took to be a Ford sedan, the other a big touring car with the curtains down. Both cars drove toward Hamilton avenue, and he saw them no more, nor did he know who their occupants might be. Neither did he see or hear anything of the shooting. He merely confirmed Mrs. Gibson's story of her nocturnal excursion.

Gorsline's Story Denied.

It will be recalled that Ralph Gorsline, one of the vestrymen in Dr. Hall's church, and Miss Catherine Rastall, another choir singer, were likewise amonf the loiterers in the lane. They have testified that they heard mumbling voices in the darkness, and then three shots, whereupon they fled, looking neither to the right nor the left.

In particular was Gorsline most emphatic that on that occasion he did not see Henry Stevens. To contradict this assertion of Gorsline's, William Garvin, a detective, also known by the pleasing sobriquet of "greasy vest," was placed upon the stand. He told a most amazing story of an unknown man, who refused to give his name, seeking out the detective in his office, to tell him that he (the unknown) was present at the scene of the tragedy, and there saw and recognized Henry Stevens, who said to him: "What the hell are you doing here? This is our affair. Get the hell out of here." Stevens then fired two shots into the ground at the feet of the unknown, according to Garvin.

Garvin had no idea at the time who this mysterious stranger was, nor why he chose thus to unbosom himself of this confidence.

"Why didn't you tell somebody about this at the time when you knew all Somerset County was trying to get some clew to whom the murderers might be?" demanded Gen. McCarter.

"I did," replied the sleuth, "I told Prosecutor Azariah Beekman."

"He is dead," cynically commented McCarter.

Squabble Over Fingerprints.

Practically the whole day was given over to the dull and dreary business of trying to trace the history of the little card that was found in the grass at Dr. Hall's feet, and which, all the fingerprint experts have testified, bears the print of Willie Stevens' left index finger.

For four yers this little bit of cardboard has floated about, first in one man's hands and then in another's, one of the men who had it in charge said he supposed he had showed it to a thousand people—it has passed through innumerable hands, it has been photographed for a newspaper, it has been the very wondering Jew of evidence, and yet upon tracing its every step, the fate of three persons largely hangs.

So far it is the strongest link that the prosecution has been able to forge to connect the defendants with the murder, and it is therefore of utmost importance to them to prove that there is a possibility that this is not the card found at Dr. Hall's feet, or that in identifying the bodies, Willie Stevens touched it, or that there was some carelessness in handling the card, that nullifies it as evidence.

So, hour after hour, Gen. McCarter for the defense and Special Prosecutor Simpson fought over the bit of pasteboard like dogs over a bone. It was interesting to watch how the two men handle a witness. Gen. McCarter uses bulldog tactics. He sets his teeth in a question, and worries it, and worries it, until he wears the witness out, and sometimes, I fear, the jury.

Senator Simpson leaps at a witness like a tiger, gives him a shake or two, and a claw that draws the blood if he doesn't like his responses, and then sits back in his seat with the look of the cat that has just eaten the canary.

As the flappers say, he has a slick line and his quips and jeers never fail to bring a ripple of amused laughter from the audience. He is witty, with a biting, stinging wit, but what they laugh at isn't always humorous. Mostly, it is hysteria, the laughter of those

A weeks trial of Kroger's coffee-

-will prove its superior quality and value.....

The utmost in quality and value in whatever variety you choose....

MAKE THIS TEST FOR ONE WEEK

Select the pound of Kroger Coffee that sells nearest to the price you have been paying. Serve it for one week. The test will prove to you that Kroger can offer greater satisfaction in coffee than you have known before.

FRENCH Brand Coffee . . . Unsurpassed in quality by any brand at any price. Try it and judge for yourself. Lb. pkg. 47c.

JEWEL Coffee . . . A genuine Golden Bourbon Santos that compares favorably with most 45c. coffees. Lb. 39c.

SANTOS Coffee . . . A good heavy bodied drink that cup tests have proven equally as good as most 40c grades. Lb. 35c.

BECAUSE of the high quality and value of the coffees they sell, Kroger Stores have gained the reputation of being the place to go for really good coffee.

Unlike most stores that sell Coffee, Kroger handles every operation himself. For this reason he is able to be certain that every operation, so vital to good coffee, is handled in a way that maintains high quality.

For instance . . . all merchants cannot import green coffees from the plantation. Kroger does . . direct . . in large quantities.

All merchants have not perfect blending processes. Kroger blends all his own coffees according to formulas that appeal to the most discriminating tastes.

All coffees are not given the same care in roasting. Kroger Coffees are roasted in Kroger roasters to just that fraction of a second that brings out every bit of rich flavor oil in the bean.

All coffees are not in their freshest state when you purchase. Kroger Coffee is the freshest coffee you can buy. For each store receives a fresh supply direct from the roaster twice each week.

Whatever brand of coffee you now drink you will receive greater enjoyment by making a test of Kroger's.

FALL READY FOR TRIAL "CONSCIENCE CLEAR"

Finds Constitution Is No Protection and He Must Look to Courts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Confident of ultimate victory, Albert B. Fall has came back to the original battle ground from which sprung one of the most widely ramifying legal fights in the country's history—that involving the validity of the naval oil reserve leases.

Shrunk in weight but showing outward improvement in health since his last appearance in the capital, the former Secretary of the Interior, accompanied by Mark Thompson of Chicago, one of his legal aids, arrived here from his ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., to face arraignment in the District of Columbia Supreme Court Wednesday on charges of criminal conspiracy in connection with the oil contracts.

Seen at his hotel, after having been met at the station by Levi Cooke, his Washington counsel, Fall characterized the oil reserve proceedings as "without parallel in the legal history of the world," and expressed confidence that the jury's verdict would be favorable to the defendants.

"When a man's conscience is clear," he said, "he naturally expects other people to agree with him. This whole case will be in the hands of a jury and I can only predict its outcome on the basis of my own conscience.

"Mr. Doheny and I are not being tried at the instance of the Department of Justice, but under a special act whereby Congress orders special prosecutors to charge us with bribery and conspiracy and take us before the United States side of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia on those charges.

"I was of the opinion that the Constitution was framed to prevent just such an occurrence as this, but it seems that it has come to pass and now we shall have to look to the courts for the results."

Edward L. Doheny, co-defendant with Fall, arrived in Washington today. The trial is set for Nov. 22.

TWO AUTO THIEVES TAKEN

Supposed St. Louis Gangsters Arrested at Poplar Bluff, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Nov. 9.—Two men, believed to be St. Louis gangsters, were arrested near Bernie last night and brought here today, charged with stealing an automobile. Officers found 24 sticks of dynamite, fuse and caps, and five ounces of nitroglycerine in the automobile.

The men gave their names as Walter Simms and John Green. At first both said they resided in St. Louis but later Green said his home is in Hannibal. Sheriff D. McCown believes the names are fictitious and he is endeavoring to identify them through finger prints.

MASS MEETING OF PETTERS NEAR DURING HALL-MILLS MURDER

So far as I can judge, I should say that Senator Simpson has captured the gallery. He amuses the onlookers. He furnishes the thrills. He gives them a run for their money in sharp contrast to the staid, dignified, solid battery of lawyers for the defense, who set off no fireworks. But the sympathy of the audience is almost unanimously with Mrs. Hall and her brothers.

While this sparring between the lawyers goes on, Willie Stevens sits beside his sister with his big moonlike face turned first on one speaker and then on another, as if he were a child, trying to follow his teacher. He has very black eyebrows that go up at the corners and a big horseshoe wrinkle in his forehead, that make his face a sort of a human interrogation mark, as if all of his life he had been asking what was everything about, and trying vainly to understand.

And every now and then, Mrs. Hall turns on him a look of natural tenderness, as if she were trying to reassure him and to take care of him in this extremity, as she has done all of his life. For although he is five years older than she is, she has always mothered him. He has always been her little boy that never grew up.

For Willie Stevens is a Peter Pan, who had stayed a child. He has still a little boy's instincts, and loves to run with the fire engines, and is happy when they let him polish up the brass on the shiny engine and he bubbles like a child.

Those who know him well say that he has none of the power of repression that grown-ups acquire by way of defense, as they grow older. He tells everything that comes into his childish mind, the sort of things that shame and vanity make sophisticated people hide in their hearts, and they argue that if he knew anything at all about the murder of Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills he could not possibly have kept from telling it, and that, assuredly, he would have told it in the 20-odd hour grilling that the police gave him, at the time of the tragedy.

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from stomach and bowels

Give "California Fig Syrup" if irritable, bilious or feverish

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruity laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

WASHINGTON BEGINS TUNING UP FOR GAME WITH MISSOURI ELEVE

BEARS STILL GAME, DESPITE FORLORN HOPE

"Any Team That Plays Hard Has a Chance to Win a Football Game," Coach Bullman Tells Players.

Missouri will be harder to beat next Saturday than any 60 minutes of the 1926 footbal season Washington U. athletic officials admitted yesterday afternoon, as the Bear squad was sent through the first rigorous session to prepare them for the Tiger game. "Oklahoma's victory over them may be heartening to some," Coach Gale Bullman, who directed practice, declared, "but it really means that Henry will have his men on the field fighting as they have had no occasion to fight all year."

Bullman, who presided at skull session and dummy scrimmage, while Head Coach Bob Higgins was absent, candidly admitted that the Missouri eleven had every possible advantage over the locals. "But any team that's playing hard has a chance to win in football; there's no such thing as impossible in a football game." Bullman, who has headed scout operations on the Missouri eleven, will direct this preparatory phase all week.

Will Specialize on Defense.

By far the greater part of the Bears' attention, it is believed, will be accorded defense drill against the long passes, which are the key-plays in the Missouri goal threat. These passes, which may come from the fingers of any of a half dozen accomplished tossers, have proved sufficient to carry on the greater part of the Tiger advance during the year. The outstanding receiver is Clark, halfback, Principia football product.

With their knife-edge always at command, the Tigers make no bones of playing a cautious, not overly enthusiastic brand of ball. They make no bids toward the spectacular, but prefer to rely upon their experience to tide them through any attack. Football critics have given them the title of a "lucky" team, but the general opinion in the higher athletic circles is that it is their knowledge and experience which allows them to bide their turn and convert threatening attacks into routs.

Tigers a "Smart" Team.

The team against which the comparatively unseasoned Washington eleven will be sent is accorded generally through the Valley the title of the conference's "smartest" combination. When Coach Henry's formations are called, there is no hesitation about execution and, more important still for their last period efficiency, no lost effort, although every man on the field is playing a "heads up" game.

Reports on the meeting between Missouri and Oklahoma revealed one every encouraging set of facts, although how securely the Bear fans can pin hope to them is another matter. Against Missouri, the Sooners made more first downs than against Washington. Likewise, Potts, the Sooner star, gained nearly twice as much ground against Missouri as Washington, this last Sooner back having registered a 60-yard run against both teams.

That the Bear defense has the ability to hold its own has been evidenced in nearly every contest on their schedule. The great difficulty has been the faculty of "keeping going" in the later periods with the same effectiveness and alertness. In several contests, this last has spelled defeat and larger scores after the goal-threats of opposing teams had been carefully kept at bay for half the game.

Three Big Football Games To Be Broadcast by K S D Direct From Playing Fields

A PLAY by play account of three of the most interesting football games this season will be broadcast by the Post-Dispatch direct from the gridirons. These contests are:

Yale vs. Princeton, Nov. 13.
Harvard vs. Yale, Nov. 20.
Army vs. Navy, Nov. 27.

Just as the world series baseball games were broadcast by KSD, direct from the diamond, and made real to every listener what was taking place in the ball park, so these football classics, the college songs, the cheering, the bands, and a description of the plays, will come to followers of the game by radio. Benny Owen Outstanding Coach Of Missouri Valley, Perry Says

Feat of Defeating the Powerful Missouri University Eleven Stands Out as One of the Season's Achievements — Was Pioneer Forward Pass Coach of the Conference.

By Lawrence Perry.

(Copyright, 1926.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Did anyone notice what the Oklahoma University eleven did to the strong Missouri outfit on Saturday? No Missouri River steamboat ever was more helplessly snagged than the team from the land of Quantrell and Jesse James.

Chalk a big red mark opposite Benny Owens' name. This former Kansas University star has never received the recognition due him as a coach of the first degree of excellence. Oklahoma has been a threat in the Missouri Valley Conference ever since she was admitted to the organization about 10 years ago. Yet, until the last two or three years she had little in the way of material.

But no man could have done more with players in hand than Owen, who, by the way, was the pioneer of forward passing in the valley conference. The way in which Owen's team handled the powerful Missouri team indicates that the Norman institution has begun to come into its own.

The team has a set of versatile backs and Wallace at center is held to be one of the best pivot men in the land. This boy curiously enough, is an older brother of "Polly" Wallace, a former Iowa State center, who was named by Walter Camp as one of the outstanding snappers back and rovers of his time.

Why Wreck the Goal Posts?

The Big Three which so often has set the fashion of reform in many ways ought to convene and do something about the goal-post wrecking exploits of victorious partisans after a football game of importance has been played.

It is a pernicious custom and aside from the bad taste involved and the lurking ill-feeling engendered, it is a dangerous practice. Someone is going to be badly hurt some afternoon.

So far as the writer can trace the evil, it was inaugurated by Yale rooters in the 1923 game at Cambridge when the Elis, after many lean years, defeated the Crimson. Since then this vandalism has become a general habit, at least on the Atlantic seaboard.

Perhaps if the various college athletic authorities had maintained complacence of this looting of goal posts—which, after all, are inexpensive and easily replaced—the custom would have died sooner or later in accordance with the length of time it required for undergraduates to tumble to themselves.

But it is pretty hard to lose a football game and sit and watch the snake-dancing victors with equanimity, even when no violence is done. When property is destroyed a certain sinister element enters that has nothing to do with sport.

Near-Riot at Harvard Game.

Harvard showed how she felt about it by placing a police guard under each set of goal posts immediately after the Princeton game had ended. It was a decided error in judgment and the more or less amiable riot that followed would have been converted into a perilous situation had not the policemen kept their heads.

Some understanding ought to be effected that will end this sort of nonsense. It is a practice that taxes the tolerance of even better intercollegiate friends than Harvard and Princeton are. This being so, it has no place in the aftermath of sporting contests.

Osteopath Shortens Slagle's Leg.

Hardly a week before Jake Slagle romped out on the Harvard gridiron fit to play his old role of Nemesis to the Harvard football eleven, it seemed unlikely that he ever would again carry the ball in an intercollegiate game.

That knee, which had suffered injury upon a summer geological trip, has yielded outwardly to the treatment of skilled physicians, yet Slagle could neither run with any drive nor crow-hop with any elusiveness.

It was here that Phil Brashier, the old Tiger end and former chief scout, entered into the situation. Going to Bill Roper, he asked the coach's permission to take Slagle into New York. Bill told him to go ahead, so Brashier took the star back to an osteopath. Half a glance seemingly was all that was required for the bone-doctor to see that one of Jake's legs was more than an inch shorter than the other. In other words, the hip was out of place.

The osteopath put the bone into the rightful position and next afternoon Slagle was skipping around the gridiron like a mountain goat.

Army vs. Notre Dame.

One of the extremely important games of the football season takes place next Saturday in New York, when the Army and Notre Dame renew their ancient grudge.

Never did a contest hold more opportunities for advance dope. Power versus speed. Can the West Point forwards knife into the Hoosier backfield in time to break up formations, as was done last year at the Polo Grounds? Or will the South Bend line be able to meet the charge and hurl it back. Brute force, fierce driving power up forward have been the determining factors in most important football games this year. It remains to be seen how the deft and elusive backfield men of Notre Dame function if breaches are made in the wall designed to protect them. In such case, the probabilities are that they will not function.

Saints Retain Nick Allen.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 9.—Nick Allen has signed another one-year contract to manage the St. Paul club of the American Association.

Derby Trial Race Is Feature at Madison Tonight

Actor Boy and Maid of Honor Are Expected to Be Big Factors.

Maid of Honor and Actor Boy probably will go to the post tonight as favorites in the first of the two eliminations for the fall derby of the Madison Kennel Club. Both have indicated lately that they are at the top of their form and both incline to a route and will take kindly to the elimination distance which is three-eighths of a mile. The Derby proper is half a mile, twice around the track.

Maid of Honor, as is known, was winner of the Butte (Mont.) Derby two months ago, taking that $2000 stake in impressive fashion, and her reputation preceded her to Collinsville, where she has lived up to it brilliantly, winning several races, all at a distance, and beating some of the best dogs at the local track. She is a slow starter, but this is in her favor, as she exhibits a high order of reserve speed and usually runs the last part of her race faster than the first part.

Actor Boy is the most dangerous contender and has been racing in sensational style of late, winning his last two starts. A week ago he won for himself the title of the fastest Futurity dog at the track by capturing the final of an elimination series and a few days later annexed for his owners, James Corbett of St. Louis and P. W. Wolfe, a large silver loving cup given on Collinsville night.

Two newcomers, one from Ireland, Billy Philson; the other from England, Motor Speed, will be starters of an unknown quantity. Both have exhibited great speed, but their staying qualities will be put to a test tonight. Bee Martin, a Western courser; Myrtle Sethe, not yet 2 years old; Clever Damsel and White Pop complete the field. All of the latter are capable of going a route and any one of them might upset the calculations.

Seven other events at varying distances are on the program, the last event being a speedy quarter mile in which several favorites, including Buddy Brannigan, Reigning Regent, Caldron and Judgement will be starters.

The Low-Down on the Princeton Fifth Down In Harvard Contest

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—Princeton's famous "fifth down" in Saturday's 12-0 Tiger victory at Cambridge, a play that mystified 54,000 spectators and allowed Jake Slagle to score a field goal against Harvard, has been cleared away.

The "fifth down," according to Referee Wilmer Crowell, was in reality only the fourth. An error in placing the ball helped create the illusion. Here is how he explained it.

"On the third down the Princeton quarterback took an extended time in calling his signals and this caused the Harvard guard to be drawn offside.

"I called it no play and cautioned the Princeton quarterback. The spectators did not know this and I doubt if Field Judge Okeson knew what happened. That's why many believed Princeton was given an extra down."

British Abandon Sectional System

Players Will Qualify for Open Meet at St. Andrews June 20 and 21.

By the Associated Press.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, Nov. 9.—The Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews has abandoned the sectional qualifying system for next years' British open golf championship in favor of a two-day qualifying competition at St. Andrews.

All competitors for the crown now worn by Bobby Jones of Atlanta, Ga., will play their qualifying round at St. Andrews on June 20 and 21. The players scoring in the first hundred and those tying for the hundredth place will be eligible for the championship proper, which will be played under the same conditions as when Jones captured the title at St. Annes with a sterling 291 last June.

One round will be played on June 22 and another on the 23d by the surviving players. After that all those 15 strokes or more behind the leader will retire and the remainder will play two rounds on June 24.

The conditions under which the 1927 amateur championship will be played are the same as when Jess Sweetser captured the crown at Muirfield this year. The 1927 championship will begin at Hoylake on May 23.

GRAY'S COLUMN

By Herself.

WHEN St. Louisans visit the Coliseum on the night of Nov. 20 they will see the most widely advertised woman sport celebrity in history. Internationally she is as well known as Red Grange is in America—and the best part of it is she earned every line that has been devoted to her, except some unkind criticism inflicted upon her during a previous visit to the United States.

She is Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, whom Champ Pickens is bringing to this city, with Pyle's flying circus of tennis performers, for a single exhibition here.

Of all the athletes in the world, men and women both, she is today about the only one without a peer; the only athlete in almost any standard line of athletic endeavor against whom no opponent seems to have a chance.

She was and still is in a class by herself.

Not One Set for Mary.

WHETHER Helen Wills ever would have caught up with the agile and clever French girl could only be guessed at. But it is safe to say that it would never have occurred until Father Time took a hand in the proceedings.

Thus far Mlle. Lenglen has been able to play only against Miss Mary K. Browne, who turned professional for "economic reasons," she explained.

Miss Browne was U. S. champion for three years, a finalist last season. But in all her exhibition matches thus far played, at the last report the writer received, Miss Browne had been able to win only one game from Suzanne in any set thus far contested!

Nothing could better attest the power and skill of the French woman who, it must be remembered, is playing without the incentive to put everything she has into her play.

St. Louisans have seen Miss Browne, Mrs. Mallory, Tilden, Johnston and other great players in the past. But they have never yet seen an athlete who, at some time or other since "arriving" never lost a match that went the limit.

That's Suzanne's record.

Why Knute!

OLD line coaches just can't help it. On the eve of a big game they unload "bear" stories. With just what purpose is hard to fathom.

Knute Rockne of Notre Dame is noted for "bearing" down on the eve of football games. Almost weekly he apologizes for his own eleven's shortcomings.

But always he wins.

Now Knute is quoted as saying that Notre Dame will be disgraced unless his team plays 50 per cent better football than it has at any stage of the present season.

Yet Notre Dame has won all its games handily, against strong opponents, among them the powerful and huge Minnesota eleven.

What Knute did not say was that it is highly probable that his eleven WILL be able to play 50 per cent better, if it has to.

West Point a Tough Foe.

ROCKNE, however, really has a task harder than his near-annual frolic over the Army eleven. This year his team will face a group of hard-boiled veterans who, besides their West Point training, have in several cases, preceded this by three years of college football.

Such veterans are hard to down. They know football by intuition; and they are the survival of the fittest through six or seven years.

Rockne has a comparatively unseasoned team and the odds really are against it, this time. But there is a resourcefulness about Rockne and such a tremendous supply of replacements of high quality that the combination can never be counted out beforehand.

Time to Wake Up.

THE Preparatory School League, consisting of the Western Military Academy, the Country Day School, the McBride High School, Christian Brothers College, St. Louis U High and Chaminade College announces today that the organization has joined the State High School Association and will take part actively in annual state championships.

The St. Louis High Schools are also members of the State High School Association, but they are not permitted to compete in any of the state championships.

That's because of the ivy-grown ruins of a School Board precedent which prevents local athletes from playing any team at a distance of more than 25 miles from the city or from opposing, in St. Louis, any team not situated within the 25-mile radius.

The local schools are thus cut off from contact with other institutions. The situation makes for narrow sphere of action and narrow views.

Apparently the educators here set their views up against the collegiate and scholastic thought of the entire United States, in building a Chinese wall around the city's high school athletic activities.

Isn't it about time to quit yawning and come back to an awakening of what others are doing all around us?

Loyola's Mascot Goat Is Kidnaped And Shanghaied

Now Quartered in Basement of Fraternity House Here; Arrived Yesterday.

Loyola University's mascot goat, which has been the subject of more advance publicity than the star fullback, has arrived in St. Louis several days ahead of schedule. The distinguished but odorous visitor came from Chicago yesterday in the custody of two Billiken students, who kidnaped the mascot Sunday in Chicago and "shanghaied" him.

The goat is at present quartered in the basement of a fraternity house and will not be produced in public until Friday evening, when he will lead Billiken rooters in a street parade.

Dummy scrimmage against Loyola plays will make up today's practice for the Billikens. Actual scrimmage has been virtually dispensed with for the remainder of the season.

The Billikens will be in fairly good condition against Loyola except for Capt. Kahle, whose spine injury, suffered some weeks ago, has recurred. Kahle will probably start Saturday's game but is not expected to go the route.

Bob Hannegan, who scouted the Haskell-Loyola game last week, brought back the information that the Chicago squad was made up mostly of men who played last year and had an especially fast and shifty backfield, despite the loss of Gorman, who met death in Lake Michigan during the summer.

Thursday afternoon at St. Louis U. field, Grand and Laclede, the frosh will take on the Scott Field army aviation post eleven for the benefit of the Walter Camp Memorial fund.

Loyola looks upon the St. Louis contest as its "blood game." In three meetings the Billikens have won twice, losing last year by one touchdown. Loyola students have chartered a special train and will travel here, 250 strong, including a mascot goat.

Salary Roll of Cards to Expand Foster Writes

Veteran Critic Says Bulletin Fails to Show Any Long-Term Holdover Contracts.

By John B. Foster.
(Copyright 1926.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—There will be much more of a task involved in signing the St. Louis Cardinals to contracts for 1927 than to those of 1926, unless some of them have changed their minds since they talked the matter over in a New York hotel.

Some players are said to have contracts for longer than a year. The bulletin doesn't state it. It looks as though the salary roll of the St. Louis club, which was not slim by any means in 1926, will have to be much stouter next year.

Players who are under contract for 1927 by reason of long term agreements are Hartnett of the Cubs and Luque of Cincinnati. No one else is named in that class.

Rogers Hornsby is bulletined as having a regular player's contract in 1926, but Ty Cobb isn't mentioned as player or manager. Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit club, must have thought that Ty was perfectly safe—and so he was, as long as he was head of the Detroit team.

Where Will Cobb Go?

The next fact of interest in regard to Cobb is where he will go when he goes back to baseball. It is a safe wager that he will go back. He is too valuable to be permitted to remain in Augusta, Ga., to hunt and to clip coupons.

Hornsby's matter of salary may be settled to suit him or it may not. Hornsby has a notion that he has again been "butted-in against" at St. Louis and carried this all the way through the world series.

Hornsby cannot leave St. Louis without making himself the target for a lot of criticism that will cut both ways, and it is unfortunate that such a condition should have arisen when St. Louis won its first National League championship.

Interests in the club have been peculiarly involved for the last three years. Branch Rickey has a following because many think he put the club on its feet in one way and another, and Hornsby has a following because the boys on his side think he made the team a winner when Rickey was holding black board and chautauqua talks.

Breadon Between the Millstones.

And then again Sam Breadon has a lot of following for producing a winner—which no other owner had done—and also because he has Hornsby on one hand and Rickey on the other. Those are the only two hands he has. If he had four hands he might be better able to take care of all his troubles.

Meanwhile, the players want Breadon to be both fore-handed and four-handed when he gives out the contracts. The new world's champions have ideas about pay that will make Sam think every cloud in the baseball world not only has a gold lining, but is built upon a foundation of the same material.

Dry Goods and Hardware Given to Mexican Indians Who Broke Marathon Record

Two Crimson Silk Bandanas, 60 Yards of Cotton Cloth and a Pair of Ploughs Their Reward; May Compete in Olympics.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Nov. 9.—The two Tarahumare Tribesmen, who ran 100 kilometers (62½ miles) on the highway from Pachuca to Mexico City in the record time of 9 hours 37 minutes, have been rewarded with two crimson silk bandanna handkerchiefs, 60 yards of white cotton cloth and two modern ploughs for their spectacular achievement.

Tomas Zafiro and Leonicio Sammiguel, the runners, may yet compete in the Olympic games. Mexico City sportsmen and Government officials intend to petition the international sporting authorities to accept the Tarahumares' record as official and also include a 100 kilometer race in the program of the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam, in which case Mexico will see that the Tarahumares are there.

Puzzled Over Fuss.

The two tribesmen are puzzled at the fuss the Capital is making over them. When the Governor of Chihuahua sought to induce them to come to Mexico City they protested that their absence would mean the loss of their corn crop.

The Governor asked the value of the crop. The runners said that after selling their crop they would be able to buy 30 yards of white cotton cloth each.

The Governor gave them that amount of cloth to compensate them for their crop, whereupon, although still reluctant because of natural timidity, they agreed to come. Secretary of Agriculture Leon also ordered that they be presented with two modern ploughs. These were the first they had ever seen, as they are accustomed to the primitive forked stick affairs.

American Skaters To Spurn Olympics

International Union Insists on Changes in Rules Governing Sport in Europe.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Nov. 9.—Action to abandon all Olympic competition until such time as European representatives "arrange more harmonious programs," was taken at a meeting here last night of the International Skating Union, representing skating groups of the United States and Canada.

The American group went on record as opposed to the practice of European groups skating against time in preference to actual competition.

The Union awarded the following meets for the winter:

International Outdoor, Saranac Lake, N. Y.; International Indoor, Pittsburg; National Outdoor, Detroit; National Indoor, Chicago; Canadian Championships, Quebec. Dates will be selected later.

Upon the recommendation of W. G. Bratton of Pittsburg, retiring president, charges of ineligibility brought against Charles I. Gorman and Joe Moore at the time of the international championships here last winter were dropped. Gorman was accused of sending a telegram asking for $500 as a condition of his entering the championships.

Bratton declared that inasmuch as Gorman or Moore were not officially entered in the races the charges were not valid under the international rules and furthermore that investigation had not proved Gorman sent the telegram.

W. Carroll Hill of Boston was chosen president of the Union. Other officers selected are: Vice Presidents — Frank Kalteaux of Chicago, William E. Raughton, American Association of Canada; Lester E. Potter of Detroit; secretary-treasurer, Ben Griffin, Pittsburg.

MY LIFE AND RING CAREER ◆ —By Gene Tunney

After Soldier Jones Bout, Gene Knew He Must Train; Then He Began to Win

GENE TUNNEY

By Gene Tunney,
World's Heavyweight Champion.
CHAPTER XIV.

THE inimical—but thoroughly just—criticisms of my miserable fight with Soldier Jones failed to convince me that I was not destined to achieve fame in the ring. I set to work immediately to retrieve myself. I realized then that I must go into each and every fight as though I were approaching a judgment day.

"What is our life," said Emerson, "but the endless flight of winged facts or events? In splendid variety, these changes come, all putting questions to the human spirit."

Believing, as I did, that the ancestor of every action is a thought, I did some intensive thinking—about myself and about the game. I reflected that I had not been in condition against Soldier Jones. I also knew that my hands had stood up splendidly under eight rounds of punching. I pondered for about 48 hours and then went to the gymnasium to work strenuously, and the blubber began to peel from my young frame.

I had had my glimpse of the great champion, Jack Dempsey, as he put away the colorful and game Carpentier in the main event of the card on which I had boxed Jones. I was obsessed with the idea that I was destined some day to lift the crown that Dempsey wore. So far, I was almost alone in this idea. I knew that mediocrity never would beat that man. I knew that mediocrity would not cut down those contenders who stood like the terrible monsters of Columbus' day at the edge of the pugilistic horizon to devour all voyagers who dared to sail thither.

First Cauliflower Ear.

AFTER a lapse of three weeks, I was matched with Herbert Crosseley, an able English light-heavyweight. He died a short time after I defeated him. My knockout of Crosseley, however, had nothing to do with his demise. Marty Burke, one of the most splendid men I ever met, and a cagey, clever boxer, was my next opponent. I outpointed Marty in 10 rounds at the Bronx Oval, but not without having my left ear slightly cauliflowered. Most of us are not overvain about our looks, but I never did relish the idea of seeming to carry crullers at the side of my head instead of ears.

Wolf Larsen was my next opponent, and an easy one. He was a "wolf" in name only. I often find that these "Panthers," "Wolves" and "Killers" are most human when they are up against cool, deliberate, vigorous punching.

I was coming along now, boxing better and better in each appearance, and punching with force and not putting myself in the hospital with broken hands.

The experts were not overwarm in granting me praise. The contest which attracted more attention to me than any other in which I engaged prior to my light-heavyweight championship bout with Battling Levinsky, found me pitted against Eddie O'Hare in the old Garden. Poor Eddie died a few months later and his passing robbed the ring of a man I firmly believe would have attained real ring greatness.

A former amateur champion, O'Hare, had served Jack Dempsey as one of the heavyweight king's sparring partners prior to the Carpentier fight. He was remarkably fast and shifty, alert, a good hitter and dead game. His left hand had the speed of a darting fang and it contained as much poison as all the rattlers in Arizona. His right, too, was a threat to an unwary jaw or a lax stomach.

The Knockout of O'Hare.

IT was now December, 1921. I had regained much prestige and O'Hare, too, had been winning consistently and brilliantly. There was much wagering, I am told, as to which of us would survive the contest with the laurel.

Eddie, as was his wont, boxed beautifully and frequently befuddled me. I was in excelent condition and at my best form. In the sixth round I jockeyed Eddie into a position against the ropes. I feinted him and then crashed my right to his jaw. Down he went. At the count of nine he arose, rather at sea. I disliked striking him again. But it had to be done. I sent over the right, not too hard, but stiff enough to put the finisher on the game lad. He took the full count this time.

I don't believe this prince of good fellows and ace of young boxers donned the gloves again. He went to Maine for a vacation. One day, with a party of other youngsters, he went tobogganing, as I remember it. Full of life, he bounced about like a 10-year-old kid, snowballing his companions and rolling in the snow. Noting one particularly large drift, Eddie swung into the lower branches of a neighboring tree and dove headlong into the drift. His head struck a concealed log and his neck was broken. So many brilliant young men pass out of the picture and we are left to wonder what heights they would have scaled, but who knows?

That bout was the last in which I appeared prior to my meeting and defeating Levinsky. Of that fight I have written in a previous chapter. Following the Levinsky bout, I engaged in a series of several none too important scraps. I stopped Jack Clifford in six rounds at the Rink Sporting Club in Brooklyn. Then came Whitey Wenzel, whom I knocked out in four rounds at the Ice Palace in Philadelphia. I then defeated Fay Kaiser in 10 sessions at Grand Rapids.

Jack Burke was a fairly good fighter at this time. I stopped him in two rounds at the Garden, but the fans of Jack's home town, Pittsburg, attributed my victory to a fluke. They demanded that I be re-matched with Jack. Our contest occurred in the Motor Square Garden in Pittsburg and I gave Jack quite a hiding. I stowed him safely away in the ninth.

This was the last time during the year, 1922, that I sported my crown as Light Heavyweight Champion of America. For in my next bout I met and was defeated by Harry Greb, one of the greatest fighters, in my opinion, that ever lived.

About this time the sporting boys began to chide me lightly for adhering to certain little ways of living, including the failure to get "riled up" in the ring and not swearing a bit when indignant. One of my sparring partners once said to me:

"Why don't you say something hot, Gene, instead of just 'good gracious!' "

I replied:

"Lord Byron said of 'Jack Bunting':

" 'He knew not what to say, and so he swore.' "

To this, my wondering partner answered:

BO M'MILLIN DENIES HE EXPECTS TO COACH KENTUCKY IN 1927

By the Associated Press.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Nov. 9.—Elimination of Colorado as a contender for the Rocky Mountain Conference football championship has resulted in cancellation of Geneva College's tentatively scheduled game with the conference title holder at Denver, Dec. 4.

A. C. Edgecombe, director of athletics at the local school, announced the game had been called off by the Westerners after Colorado, the favorite, had yielded to Utah as conference leader. A contest with Utah could not be arranged.

Reports that Alvin (Bo) McMillin, coach of Geneva, would go to the University of Kentucky next year brought denials from the former Centre College star upon his return here from a trip to Kentucky.

"I was asked if I would like to go to Kentucky," McMillin said. "I said 'Yes suh.' This evidently was taken to mean that I would accept the job as coach at the University of Kentucky. This, however, was not meant. It was said because of the hospitality extended to me and the old memories down at Centre."

Rain Hampers Bird Dog Trials

S. G. Wilson's Oxford Beazell Scores a Blank as Do Other Performers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CENTRALIA, Mo., Nov. 9.—Owing to continued rain the derby of the Missouri bird dog trials was not finished yesterday as per schedule. Only five braces of dogs were run till noon and these performed over muddy fields and heavy showers. As a consequence very little interesting work was seen.

There are 24 starters in the stake and the field is a good one, for most of the field trial handlers who are on their way to Vinita, Ok., for the American field futurity stopped off here en route. Junedale Sioux, a setter owned by Dr. F. H. Lahey of Boston, ran against Miss Peggy M in the second brace. Peggy has been a winner nine times this season, but her performance yesterday will scarcely win her anything, unless the judges give her another chance in the second series.

The Revelation, a setter owned by W. W. Stoner of Memphis, also performed early in the race. He is usually a great bird dog, but on this occasion scored a blank. The heat between the setter Oxford Beazell, owned by S. G. Wilson Jr. of St. Louis, handled by George Payton of Michigan City, Miss., and the setter Speedstone Wise Kid, took place during the heaviest down pour of the day, and like all the others that ran, this brace scored a blank.

10,000 SEE GRANGE'S TEAM BEAT WILSON'S IN GAME AT TORONTO

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—"Red" Grange and his New York Yankees whitewashed "Wildcat" Wilson's Californians, 28 to 0, in a regular American Professional League football game at Maple Leaf stadium yesterday. The New Yorkers scored four touchdowns and kicked all the extra points.

The "Galloping Ghost" starred with a 70-yard run in the third period for the Yankees' first score. Bradshaw, the Californians' quarter, was the star of his squad. Wilson was hurt in the third period and retired.

Red's name and fame drew 10,000 spectators.

ichigan Works To Develop Air Attack for Ohio

ach Wilce, on the Other and, Pits Varsity Against ays He Saw Wolverines Use.

he Associated Press.

ICAGO, Nov. 9.—The lights hang in Michigan's towers Ohio State that the Wolver- are coming, both by lan d and air.

For the first time this fall Mich- is effectively combining a ed aerial game with a driving attack, a particularly timely rrence on the eve of the con- in which anything but a tie liminate one of the three sur- g Big Ten title contenders.

he Michigan coaches were well sed with the play which swept ugh Wisconsin for a 37—0 vic- Saturday, and labored today with an offense which they think will reach its peak against the Buckeyes.

Ohio needs no signal lights, however, because Coach Jack Wilce watched Michigan down the Badgers, and went back to Columbus with vivid recollections of the air game. The Ohio State freshmen already were schooled in Michigan pass formations, but Wilce handed them a hatful more and hurled them against his varsity defense.

The Buckeye backfield is giving evidence of defensive strength comparable to the attack which has made the Buckeyes the Big Ten sensation of the fall, and a week-end respite has worked against the offense going stale for the big game.

Northwestern, the other undefeated championship aspirant, moved today into a comparatively light week's preparation for Chicago, the Purple's decisive victory over Purdue having made them a heavy favorite. Stagg is engaged in again reforming his Chicago battle lines, battered by successive defeats and facing another.

At Wisconsin, Coach Little marshalled his forces for a battle with Iowa for secondary honors in the title fight.

HARVARD LAMPOON IS CRITICISED FOR ATTACK ON PRINCETON ROOTERS

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 9.—Indications at Harvard yesterday were that no official action would be taken with regard to a special issue of the Harvard Lampoon, undergraduate comic published after Saturday's Big Three football game here and devoted to an attack on Princeton University.

While spokesmen for the faculty, athletic committee and undergraduates admitted that the references to the New Jersey seat of learning "were in bad taste," it was pointed out that neither of the former bodies made it a policy to interfere with matter contained in undergraduate publications.

The generally expressed view was that the Princeton team in defeating Harvard 12 to 0 had used rough tactics and caused unnecessary injuries, but that attacks on the student body of Princeton contained in the Lampoon were unjustified. The publication implied loose morals and excessive drinking on the part of Princeton undergraduates.

Another Overcoat to Go With the Other

A custom tailored Overcoat of heavy weight woolen, $60 to $100.

The good-looking tweed, made better looking by custom tailoring, will be just as good looking on the days to come when the mercury is headed down. But for comfort's sake for those days you'll need an overcoat of chinchilla, or Melton, or double-thick Scotch.

Safe above the Waters on SOUTHERN PINE

SO LONG is this trestle that carries the Southern Railroad above the waters of Lake Pontchartrain that the receding land fades from the view of the passenger on the observation platform before land is reached on the opposite side, over five miles away.

Here, for forty-three years, human life and valuable property have depended for safety upon the structural strength of Southern Pine—the wood of the trestle.

Of risk there is none, because science has determined the dependability of Southern Pine. In laboratory and in actual construction, Southern Pine has proved itself supreme in strength—in modulus of rupture, in modulus of elasticity, in shearing resistance and crushing strength. A hundred and thirty thousand tests, in one laboratory alone—the Forest Products Laboratory, maintained by the U. S. Government at Madison, Wis.—form the basis of these statements upon which engineers and architects specify Southern Pine with exact knowledge and complete assurance.

A layman may wonder at the uses to which Southern Pine is put. A layman might be confused with reports of testing laboratories. But to the technical man, there is nothing surprising in the striking uses of Southern Pine. To the technical man, the tables of strength are as plain as signs along the highway are to the motorist.

* These letters at the right of "SPA" identify the grade. The designation here is one of 15 grade-marks appearing on lumber from Southern Pine Association mills.

Whatever your structure, whatever your need of wood in it—the strength of Southern Pine is a matter of importance to you.

Wherever you are, east of the Rocky Mountains, the nearest lumber dealer has Southern Pine in his yard. Wherever you buy, you may buy with assurance, for there is now available from Southern Pine Association mills, Southern Pine that is Trade-marked and Grade-marked.

No other wood has the structural strength of Southern Pine, and your future supply is assured by the billions of feet still standing and the thousands of acres of young trees being protected throughout the South.

MANSLAUGHTER INDICTMENTS AGAINST TWO MEN DISMISSED

William G. Fender and William P. Barris Freed of Responsibility for Poison Deaths.

Indictments charging William G. Fender and William P. Barris, owners of an insect exterminator company, with manslaughter in connection with the deaths by poison of Miss Nellie Pensoneau and Christopher W. Rohm, in a room at the Ambassador Hotel, 707 North Sixth street, May 7, after the room had been fumigated, were dismissed in Circuit Judge Ossing's court yesterday by Assistant Circuit Attorney Bowcock.

The action was expected since Nov. 2 when a similar indictment against Joseph N. Chiswell, owner of the hotel, was dismissed in the course of trial in Judge Hogan's court after Dr. R. B. H. Gradwohl, the Coroner's poison expert, testified he could not tell whether the poison was inhaled or taken in a powder form.

Democratic Ward Office Bombed.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Ward headquarters of the Democratic organization, of which Michael Rosenberk, Sanitary District Trustee, is committeeeman, was bombed today, a week after Rosenberg's home was bombed. Only slight damage was done. The home of Morris Eller, defeated Republican Trustee of the Sanitary District, also was bombed recently.

JAPANESE ENVOY WOULD MAINTAIN PEACE TRADITION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 9.—Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, in presenting today a stone lantern to the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri, as a gift from the America-Japan Society of Tokio, spoke of the relation of the press to diplomacy.

"Diplomacy in these modern days," the Ambassador said, "is no longer the exclusive function of trained diplomats, but can be performed satisfactorily only through co-operation between the Government and the people. And as the people gather their knowledge of current events largely through the columns of the newspapers, the responsibility of the press and the men who make it is obvious. This responsibility can be met, I think, only by the honest endeavor to obtain true, unadulterated and authentic facts.

"Under the modern press system, the Pacific, wide as it is, no longer separates the countries bordering its waters. Daily and nightly, through the countless columns of the press, Tokio harkens to New York and New York to Tokio.

A VISITOR HERE

TSUNEO MATSUDAIRA, Japanese Ambassador to the United States.

Striving to Lower Cable Rates.

"It may be that one way to promote better understanding between Japan and America through the instrumentality of the press is to increase the volume of transpacific news by lowering cable or radio rates for press matter. Undoubtedly this is desirable, and we are striving to bring this about, but in order to attain the desired end of promoting international understanding we must place even greater importance upon the sound judgment and good intention essential to the true valuation of news and the honest expression of opinion.

"The relationship of peace and friendship so happily begun and so consistently maintained between the United States and Japan is a tradition which shall persist forever. With this tradition cherished and preserved on both sides, there is no fear that the peace of the Pacific will be disturbed. And in the preservation of this tradition of peace and friendship, the young men and women of both America and Japan have a significant role to play, for the world of tomorrow belongs to the youth of today.

Perpetuation of Tradition.

"Your sires and ours opened intercourse between the two countries by pledging themselves to establish a perfect, permanent and universal peace, and a sincere and cordial amity between them. We of the present generation have on our part striven to contribute what we can toward perpetuation of the tradition thus inaugurated. Whether the tradition will endure in the decades and generations to come will largely be determined by the training and the mental attitude of the young men and women in both countries who are today seeking knowledge at the various institutions of learning."

Ambassador Matsudaira gave an interesting explanation of the significance of the stone lantern. The lantern presented to the School of Journalism is of the Rikiu model.

Curious "Rite of Tea."

"Rikiu was a celebrated master of the Tea Ceremonial in the latter half of the sixteenth century," said the Ambassador. "He it was who collated and synthesized the rules of the various schools of the tea ceremonial, and thus established a school of his own which finds many followers to this day. Into the history and theory of this ceremonial I shall not enter. You will find an able exposition of it in a charming English book called 'The Book of Tea,' written by a Japanese scholar, Okakura Kakuzo.

"Essential to the practice of the rite of tea (for it was nothing less than a rite) is a house, especially built for the purpose, in a landscape garden also designed for the purpose. To add charm to such a garden and also to invest it with something of religious solemnity, Rikiu, the tea master, placed in it a stone lantern. This lantern was so well designed that the followers of the Rikiu school of tea usually placed in their gardens stone lanterns of the same design. The lantern which is now yours is a counterpart of the Rikiu lantern designed three centuries and a half ago."

Lantern From Buddhist Garden.

This particular lantern, the Ambassador continued, is not a new lantern, but one taken from the garden adjoining the Buddhist Temple of Zenpukuji, in Tokio, in the inner precincts of which Townsend Harris, first American diplomatic envoy to Japan, established his official quarters in 1857.

Anti-foreign sentiment was then running high, and some foreigners, including Envoy Harris' official interpreter, were killed. Other diplomats withdrew, but Harris remained, and showed his confidence by riding horseback daily along the outer moats of the Shogun's castle.

The Ambassador paid a tribute to Envoy Harris and to Commodore Perry, the American naval commander whose visit in 1853 opened Japan to the world's commerce. He quoted from Japan's first treaty with the United States, which was also Japan's first treaty with any nation, the pledge of "perfect, permanent and universal peace and sincere and cordial amity" between the two countries and their people.

"Ever since," he said, "the history of our relations with this country has been one of peace and friendship—not always unblemished nor perfect, but nevertheless sound and enduring. The treaty of commerce and navigation concluded between the two countries not only opened Japan to the world, but also opened the world to Japan. Your scholars and missionaries, as well as your merchants, came to Japan; and at the same time Japan sent her leaders to America and Europe to seek knowledge at the fountain head of Western civilization.

Influence of Colleges.

We have also sent many students to colleges and universities in the United States.

"I am glad of this opportunity to express appreciation of the kind reception and warm treatment given them by their professors and by fellow students alike. I am glad also to be able to say that many of these students after their return home have played important roles in the upbuilding of new Japan. Some of them have been appointed Cabinet Ministers, others have been elected to the Legislature, and still others have become leading figures in the world of affairs and in the field of science.

"Our banks were organized after the American pattern. Our educational system was originally adopted from America though it was later remodelled according to our own needs. With the cementing of these cultural ties between our two countries, commerce between them progressed apace.

"It is indeed a matter of mutual satisfaction that the greatest trade that crosses the Pacific is that between America and Japan. Japan is the largest purchaser of American commodities on the other side of the Pacific. She buys from you more goods than all the other countries in the Far East, including your own Philippine Islands, while the United States is, in turn, our best customer."

At noon the Ambassador was the guest of the Round Table Club at a luncheon. Following the presentation ceremonies, President and Mrs. Stratton D. Brooks entertained the Ambassador and his party at tea. Tonight a banquet will be given for the visitors.

Ambassador in St. Louis Tomorrow and Thursday.

Ambassador Matsudaira took dinner in St. Louis on his way to Columbia, Mo., last night with James E. Smith, consul here for Japan, T. Tamura, consul at Chicago, who accompanied the Ambassador on the trip, and F. E. Cramer and James A. Troy of the Chamber of Commerce. Matsudaira arrived at 5 p. m. and departed at 6:30.

He will return tomorrow morning. He will be a guest of the Chamber of Commerce at breakfast at Hotel Chase and at luncheon. In the afternoon he will visit Washington University and in the evening will dine with Chancellor Hadley who will later accompany him to the horse show. Thursday morning he will address the student body at Washington University and will depart Thursday afternoon.

MAN ENDS LIFE IN HOTEL

The body of Herbert Spradling, 50 years old, of 3209 Winnebago street, manager of the shipping department of Meyer Bros. Drug Co. for 27 years, was found on a bed in a room at the Laclede Hotel late yesterday. A bottle, which is believed to have contained poison, but from which the label had been removed, was found in the room.

Police are of the opinion Spradling was worrying over the illness of his wife. He registered at the hotel Sunday. He spent that night at home, however, and left yesterday morning, presumably to go to work.

Compensation Law

The Compensation Act becomes a law when the Governor proclaims the results of State Election held on last Tuesday, November 2d, 1926.

If you wish to become familiar with this Law we will be glad to send you one copy of a carefully prepared Digest in question and answer form, all of which makes particularly plain every clause and benefit of this Act.

As the Booklet clearly states how and in what manner the Law applies to your business you will want a copy.

Avoid Faulty Elimination!

Good Health Requires Thorough Cleansing of Waste Products From the Blood

THE kidneys filter the blood. They are constantly ridding the body of poisons. One should realize, then, how much good health depends upon good elimination. When toxic poisons are permitted to accumulate, there's apt to follow a tired, achy feeling and, often, a dull backache, with toxic headaches and dizziness.

Many people have learned to assist their kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water and the occasional use of a stimulant diuretic.* You will find enthusiastic Doan's users the country over. Ask your neighbor!

*Diuretics are agents which increase the secretion of the kidneys—Encyclopædia definition.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

BARLO.—Manuscripts should be typewritten. Ordinary commercial letter or note paper should be used, unruled; wide margins, lines far enough apart to admit readily of pencil addition or corrections, and never rolled; folded once and not more, and not at all if possible. Put the name and address at the head of the first page, but nothing more, sending note asking for examination or consideration in same envelope, but on separate sheet. It is not necessary to tell the editor "why" you wrote the story; just submit it "at usual rates." Be sure to send stamps for the return of the manuscript in the event the editor does not use it.

A. A. F.—The following is a recipe for English fruit cake: One pound of butter, 1 pound of light brown sugar, 9 eggs, 1 pound of flour, 2 teaspoons of mace, 2 teaspoons of cinnamon, 1 teaspoon of soda, 2 tablespoons of milk, 3 pounds of currants, 2 pounds of raisins, seeded and finely chopped, ½ pound of almonds, blanched and shredded; 1 pound of citron, thinly sliced and cut in strips. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, and beat thoroughly. Separate the yolks from the white of the eggs; beat yolks until thick and lemon-colored, whites until stiff and dry, and add to first mixture. Then add milk, fruit, nuts and flour mixed and sifted with mace, cinnamon and soda. Put in buttered deep pans, cover with buttered paper, steam three hours and bake 1½ hours in a slow oven, or bake 4 hours in a very slow oven. Rich fruit cake is always more satisfactory when done if the cooking is accomplished by steaming.

MARDI GRAS.—The meaning of the word Mardi Gras is Shrove Tuesday. The origin of the celebration is almost obscure, but there is very little doubt that the custom is in a sense a survival of the old Roman festival of the Lupercalia, which was held at the same season of the year. In modern times Rome continues to be the principal seat of these observances, although other Italian cities notably Venice have displayed great splendor. The Parisians also indulge in elaborate revels. In the United States the principal observance of the Mardi Gras is that which has been carried out in New Orleans with great pomp and splendor since 1857. On this day the whole city is turned over to the rule of "King Rex" who passes through the streets escorted by his bodyguard and various military and visiting organizations. In the evening occurs the great street pageant, in which are displayed elaborate tableaux, placed on moving forms and brilliantly illuminated. These represent noted scenes of history, poetry or fiction and are constructed at great expense and with artistic elegance. All arrangements are under the control of societies composed of the best known professional and business men of the city.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St Louis Bar Association.)

A. R. H. X. X.—If you lose the suit because of the check being lost you can sue the bank for your damages caused by its negligence.

DUMB.—The parties can obtain a divorce at any time, if the defendant is willing to enter his appearance in the suit. Consult a lawyer. Of course it must be a proper case for a divorce decree.

L. J.—You can get a divorce on the ground of desertion as soon as the desertion has continued for one year. If you have other grounds, you can get a divorce at once. Consult a lawyer.

MOTORIST—We cannot answer questions regarding liability in automobile accidents, as we do not have all the facts. The person involved should consult a lawyer, if he has no insurance.

BOOSTER.—If you feel sure that your lawyers are not acting properly report the facts to the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association, care Mr. Clarence Wescoat, Liberty Central Bank Building.

R. F. D. MO.—Write to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, Jefferson City, Mo., and ask him to advise what you will have to do in order to get a certificate of title to the truck issued to you.

POST READER.—The property will go to the survivor (husband or wife) even though the words "joint tenants" are not in the deed. It would be desirable, however, to have the deed read to them as tenants by the entirety.

MRS. H.—You have no recourse unless your plan was copyrighted. Write to the Register of Copyrights, Washington, D. C., for application forms and information. The cost is $1.

MRS. M. M.—You might call at the Probate Court here and ascertain whether a will has been filed, and whether an inventory of the estate has been filed. It would be well to consult a St. Louis lawyer.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

H. A.—Apply the following lotion at night after washing the skin with castile soap and water: Mix 36 grains chlorate of potash, [illegible] ounces of glycerine and 1 pint rosewater. This treatment should benefit the oily condition of your skin.

A. L. M.—The only permanent and safe cure for piles is an operation to remove them. Soothing ointments such as 12 grains of menthol mixed with 1 ounce of vaseline may be inserted for temporary relief. The correction of any tendency toward constipation by proper diet and systematic outdoor exercise will also give some relief.

J. L. S.—Removal of organs frequently causes emotional depression and affects the general health by disturbing the physical balance. The psychological effect of realizing the impossibility of motherhood when dwelled upon by the woman or forced upon her consciousness constantly by reminders of supposedly sympathetic friends and relatives may cause the mental state you describe. Moral suasion by her fiance, diversion, less sympathetic condoling, and perhaps reassurance by her physician that marriage is possible might revive your sister's interest and make her happier. Administration of ovarian substitutes, such as corpus luteum, would also tend to help her.

[illegible]-YEAR-OLD CHARITY WARD FREED OF KILLING WOMAN

Brooklyn Youth's Revolver Hidden Days Before and After Murder, Landlady Testified.

By the Associated Press.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Charles Wise, 16-year-old Brooklyn charity ward, was acquitted last night of the murder, last July, of [illegible] Vilona, 55-year-old Mount Vernon pianist. Miss Vilona's body, a bullet wound in the head and a [illegible] in the forehead, was found beneath a pile of stones beside the Neversink River, and the youth was arrested a week later.

The State's case was based largely on circumstantial evidence. The District Attorney sought to prove that the defendant's revolver fired the bullet which was taken from the pianist's head and testimony of firearms experts, appearing for the prosecution, supported the claims. The defense countered with the testimony of another expert who asserted that the bullet could not have been fired from the weapon which the prisoner de[illegible]ed had never killed a living thing. In addition, the woman with whom Wise boarded said the revolver had been hidden in her house for days before and after the murder.

Boys' Strike Makes 800 Idle.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 9.—Eight hundred workers in the hot mill department of the McKeesport Tinplate Co. were idle today because of a walkout of 38 boys as a protest against what they termed "extra work." The trouble started last night, when eight boys left the mills. Later other boys joined them, and the mill workers, dependent upon the boys to fill regulation crews, were forced into idleness.

Eveready Heavy-Duty "B" Batteries last twice as long as the smaller batteries of equal voltage

SOME dealers, in order to keep the first cost of a radio set as low as possible, supply Light-Duty 45-volt "B" batteries instead of the Heavy-Duty batteries.

Eveready Heavy-Duty "B" Batteries—either Eveready No. 770 or Eveready Layerbilt No. 486—give twice the service of Light-Duty "B" batteries, and cost only one-third more.

The exclusive construction of Eveready Layerbilt No. 486 makes it the longest-lived and most economical of all Heavy-Duty batteries. Manufactured and guaranteed by

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Helped by a number of favorable news developments, the stock market today resumed its upward course in a manner which at times was quite impressive. Steel, General Motors, Consolidated Gas and other leaders were taken in large blocks on the way upward and from these optimism radiated to other sections of the list. The bull party appeared to have full control of the situation at all times and there was evidence that those who had overstayed the market on the short side might be made to pay the usual penalty. The drop in the call money rate to 4¼ per cent, the lowest quotation in more than a month, was the crowning development in favor of the bulls. It seems that the trend of money rates has proven to be one of the worst stumbling blocks for prognosticators this year. A month or two ago it had been freely predicted that rates would be higher this fall, whereas last spring everybody had been talking 3 and 3½ per cent money. It is a matter of record that the earlier prediction failed to materialize and there is every indication that the later one will prove just as wide of the mark. Bond dealings were featured by a sharp advance in Granby Consolidated debenture 7s. The general list was less active than of late and speculation appears to be once more swerving toward the stock market. Demand for corn was based on unfavorable crop weather. Wheat was higher for a time, but closed slightly under yesterday's last.

Northwestern Has Setback.

"Failure of the directors of the Chicago & Northwestern to increase the dividend rate at today's meeting caused some disappointment in the financial district. However, the best authorities had not expected a higher rate to be declared at this time and the drop in the stock following the dividend announcement was regarded as more of a drive by those bearishly inclined to unsettle the general list than to any real selling by disappointed stockholders. The maneuver though, failed to have the desired effect, the general railroad list holding relatively firm. Atchison was a shade lower on profit-taking but this was to be expected following the recent sharp advance. Despite the fact that Atchison officials have rather discouraged the expectations of an extra dividend in the near future, those who have been buying the stock persistently point out that the management of the road is inclined to be conservative and point to the fact that September earnings were considerably above previous estimates.

Wall Street View on Tax Reduction.

"Wall street was inclined to be satisfied with the suggestion of Secretary Mellon that 1927 income taxes be reduced rather than have the Government make a refund on 1926 payments, as had been favored by President Coolidge at first. Either course, in the opinion of financial leaders, is constructive and should be encouraged. Another constructive news development was the revision of its loan figures by the New York Stock Exchange. However, in some quarters it was thought that the news had been discounted to a large extent by the sharp upturn just before the close yesterday.

Continental Rates Lower.

"Leading continental exchanges took a lower course with weakness again apparent in French and Italian currencies. Offerings were light here, however, the decline representing adjustments to setbacks in London. Sterling was more freely offered and eased off fractionally. Japanese exchange ruled firm, while South American and Chinese rates were mixed.

Cotton and Corn Up.

"Brisk rallies in cotton and corn featured the day's activities in the principal commodity markets. Strength in Liverpool and fairly active trade buying as well as speculative purchases stimulated the demand for cotton and values improved almost $1 a bale, with May contracts again above the 13c level.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Prices were unchanged in the raw sugar market early today with no sales reported. Late yesterday there were sales of 75,000 bags of Cuban for prompt and November shipment to local refiners at 4.38c duty paid. Fluctuations in raw sugar futures were narrow, but the undertone was firm. Prices at midday were one point net higher. The refined sugar market was unchanged at 5.70c to 5.90c for fine granulated with fair withdrawals, but only moderate new business.

Sugar futures closed steady. Approximate sales, 31,000 tons. December, $2.80; January, $2.84; March $2.84; May $2.92; July $2.99.

COTTON PRICES HIGHER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 8 to 10 points on continued trade buying, covering and a moderate commission house demand promoted by relatively firm Liverpool cables and the steadiness of yesterday's market after the publication of the Government crop report.

January contracts sold up to 12.60 in the first few minutes, a net advance of 15 to 20 points on active months and a recovery of about 33 points from the low level touched shortly after publication of the official crop figures.

There was considerable southern selling and realizing above the 12½ cent level, however, while demand seemed to taper off after initial buying orders had been executed. Prices showed reactions of 8 or 10 points from the best by the end of the first hour.

The volume of business tapered off on the early reaction of 8 or 10 points and trading was quiet later in the morning with prices ruling fairly steady. Brokers evidently found no change in the general character of the news to create fresh sentiment, but the dip to 12.43 for January contracts brought in a little more covering or trade buying and that delivery was selling around 12.53 at midday, with the general market showing net advances of 13 points.

No fresh news or trading feature developed during the early afternoon and business continued quiet. Covering or trade buying, however, absorbed completely small offerings and prices held generally steady. January was selling around 12.53c at 2 o'clock, the general market showing net advances of about 8 to 13 points.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 12.75c; futures closed easy; unchanged to 5 points lower. December 12.34@12.36c; January 12.45@12.46c; March 12.92@12.93c; July 13.16c.

*Red wheat.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, Nov. 9.—Wheat ranged lower and corn higher on the local market today. Liverpool wheat closed ⅛ to 1⅛d lower. The Department of Commerce report on wheat stocks in mills and flour stocks was called bearish. Buenos Aires was lower and this was interpreted as indicating that the frost reports were not taken alarmingly there. Country offerings of corn were called light and short covering was thought factor. Wheat reacted late and closed unchanged to shade lower. Corn finished at an advance. Reports on Argentine were conflicting. While the Canadian weather was said to be somewhat less favorable, the movement of wheat in the prairie provinces continued on a liberal scale.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was ½c to 1c lower. Demand was fair but offerings were fairly well cleaned up. Hard was ½c lower. Demand was fair. Corn was 1½c higher to 1c lower. Demand was slow. Oats were steady to 1c lower. Demand was slow.

Wheat ranged a fraction over to fraction under the previous close in the opening trade. Liverpool cables came ⅝d to 1⅛d lower. Winnipeg early was 1⅛c to 1⅝c higher than Saturday, that market not being open yesterday. Corn was unchanged to a shade higher early.

Argentine weather conditions were reported improved, while on the other hand comment was made on smallness of wheat stocks at Liverpool. While wheat was little changed in subsequent early trade, corn sold up some.

WHEAT MARKET DRAGS AND CORN SELLS UP

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Wheat dragged gradually lower today under pressure from spreaders and local selling induced by a bearish report on mill stocks of wheat and flour.

Spreaders were buying in their short May to take profits and selling out wheat that they held. This together with local selling turned the market weak after the start. A weak close at Liverpool and the bearish Department of Commerce report on invisible supplies caused further setback around mid session. At Mid-day December was $1.41¼; May $1.46; July $1.38.

The department report on stocks of wheat in 1920 representative mills Sept. 30 showed 125,000,000 bushels in addition to stocks of flour totaling 4,217,165 barrels. The big invisible supply was a great surprise to the trade. The weakness at Liverpool with the market 1 to 1½d lower was due to selling on the better Buenos Aires trade. That market was a quarter down, indicating that frost damage reports were not causing uneasiness. A bullish factor in Liverpool was a decrease of 152,000 bushels in stocks to 440,000 bushels compared with 000 last year. Despite heavy receipts of 2,000 cars at Winnipeg that market was remarkably firm, indicating either that wheat were not being hedged or had been hedged previously. The seaboard reported an indifferent export demand. Minneapolis stocks increased bushels for three days.

The pressure seemed to have been lifted from the corn market. It started firm, declined a little, then rallied to sharply higher levels as shorts took profits. At mid-day December was 70⅝c; May 78c. Best grades of cash corn were steady with the futures. Country offerings were light. Eastern demand was light.

Oats followed wheat but support in oats on soft spots. Pressure was large in the way of realizing by longs. At mid-day December was 42⅛c; May 47c.

Provisions were irregular. There was selling on weakness in hogs and buying by cash interests. At midday lard was 5c lower to 5c higher.

Covering by local shorts caused an almost complete recovery of the early decline in wheat and last prices were unchanged to ¼ lower. December closed at $1.42; May $1.46⅛ to $1.46¼; July $1.38⅛. Corn closed 1c to 1⅛c higher. December 70c to 70⅝c; May 78c to 78¼c; July 81⅛c. Oats were ⅛c to ¼c higher. December 42⅝c to 42⅞c; July 46⅛c. Lard 2½c to 5c lower, ribs 5c higher. Sales were 100,000 bushels of corn. Vessel room was chartered for 220,000 bushels of wheat at 1⅝c to Buffalo.

Chicago Grain Carlots.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Car lot receipts: Wheat 79, corn 730, oats 119, rye 10, barley 17.

BOND MARKET FIRM BUT TRADE QUIET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Bonds hardened in quiet trading during today's session. Foreign issues attracted the most attention. Buying, however, was concentrated on a few specific loans and was not uniform throughout the list.

The Belgian bonds held their gain, absorbing the profit taking sales which came into the market but doing little else. The same was true of French obligations except French Republic 8s, which at 107¼ established a new high mark for the year and less than 2 points below the record high of 109 recorded in 1924. The fact that French 8s are redeemable by lot in large blocks at 110 gives them a speculative feature which other French issues lack.

Japanese 6½s was the other active issue to make a new high; in this case the best since they were first floated.

In the domestic group the convertible issues were the most conspicuous. Granby Mining 7s were the star performers. Closing at 130¼ on Monday, they moved up over 4 points today reflecting the stock conversion privilege. Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s and International Telephone and Telegraph 5½s went along with their respective stocks. Bonds of the metal companies generally were in good demand, among them Anaconda 6s and 7s and Andes Mining 7s. Some of the sugar issues were a shade higher but buying did not appear at all confident. Among the traction Third Avenue adjustments were higher at one time and Hudson Manhattan refunding 5s changed hands only a fraction below the record price of 98.

A feature among the high yielding rails was New Haven secured 6s, which, crossing the 102 level exceeded the best previous quotation. Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s continued to be taken in large blocks at fractionally higher prices. Norfolk Southern 5s were in brisk demand at one time.

In the high-grade investment class, demand centered about New York Central 5s, Baltimore & Ohio first 4s and Union Pacific 4s.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, Nov. 9.—Wheat ranged lower and corn higher on the local market today. Liverpool wheat closed ⅛ to 1⅛d lower. The Department of Commerce report on wheat stocks in mills and flour stocks was called bearish. Buenos Aires was lower and this was interpreted as indicating that the frost reports were not taken alarmingly there. Country offerings of corn were called light and short covering was thought factor.

Wheat reacted late and closed unchanged to shade lower. Corn finished at advance. Reports on Argentine were conflicting. While the Canadian weather was said to be somewhat less favorable, the movement of wheat in the prairie provinces continued on a liberal scale.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was ½c to 1c lower. Demand was light but offerings were fairly well cleaned up. Hard was ½c lower. Demand was slow. Corn was 1½c higher to 1c lower. Demand was slow. Oats were steady to 1c lower. Demand was slow.

WHEAT MARKET DRAGS AND CORN SELLS UP

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Wheat dragged easily lower today under pressure from traders and local selling induced by a bearish report on mill stocks of wheat and flour.

Traders were buying in their short lines to take profits and selling out wheat which they held. This together with long selling turned the market weak after the start. A weak close at Liverpool and the bearish Department of Commerce report on invisible supplies caused further pressure around mid session. At Mid-day December was $1.41⅛. May $1.46 ... $1.38.

The department report on stocks of wheat in 1920 representative mills Sept. 30 showed 125,000,000 bushels in addition to stocks of flour totaling 4,217,165 barrels. The big invisible supply was a surprise to the trade. The weak close at Liverpool with the market 1 to ... lower was due to selling on the Buenos Aires trade. That market was a quarter down, indicating that frost reports were not causing uneasiness.

A bullish factor in Liverpool was a decrease of 152,000 bushels in stocks to 440,000 bushels compared with ...000 last year. Despite heavy receipts of 6360 cars at Winnipeg that market was remarkably firm indicating either that sales were not being hedged or had been hedged previously. The seaboard advised of an indifferent export demand overnight. Minneapolis stocks increased ... bushels for three days.

The pressure seemed to have been lifted from the corn market. It started firm, sold a little then rallied to sharply higher levels as shorts took profits. At mid-day December was 70⅛c, May 79c. ... Best grades of cash corn were firm with the futures. Country offerings were light. Eastern demand was light.

Oats followed wheat, but support developed on soft spots. Pressure was large by way of realizing by longs. At mid-day December was 42¼c, May 47c.

Provisions were irregular. There was selling on weakness in hogs and buying by cash interests. At midday lard was ... lower to 5c higher.

Covering by local shorts caused an almost complete recovery of the early decline in wheat and last prices were unchanged to quarter lower. December $1.41⅛ to $1.42, May $1.46¼ to $1.46⅜, ... $1.38⅛. Corn closed 1c to 1⅛c higher, December 70c to 70⅛c. May 79c ... July 81⅛c. Oats were ¼c to ... higher. December 42⅝c to 42¾c, ... 47⅛c to 42⅜c. July 46⅛c. Lard ... 2½c to ½c lower, ribs 5c higher.

Cash sales were 103,000 bushel of corn; ... of oats, 5000 of barley. Vessel room was chartered for 220,000 bushel of ... at 1¾c to Buffalo.

OILS ARE PROMINENT ON CURB EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Bullish activities broadened today on the curb market to a pronounced degree. Many stocks were in urgent demand at advances and there were indications of a renewal of accumulation in many issues that had until recently been under steady pressure.

Oil stocks as a group were among the prominent features chiefly because of the appearance of heavy buying orders for the international and tropical shares. More attention also was paid to the outlook for improved prices within a short time than had been attached to the recent reductions in crude as a result of larger production. Estey Welte and American Seating again made new high records on moderate gains. Travelers Insurance was down 8 points to 1144.

Oil stocks were in unusual scant supply making a strong condition and the chief changes in those issues were to higher levels. Imperial Oil of Canada, Anglo American and International Petroleum were in brisk demand from the opening at advancing prices. Some of the other tropical stocks including Creole were also strong. Vacuum Oil was under pressure and dropped 1⅛ points.

Industrials were irregular. Swift & Co was a strong feature moving up to 119 and an advance of a point was recorded by United Biscuit. Franklin Motor dropped a point while Stutz rose over a point. Glen Alden Coal reflected profit taking and yielded over a point. Lehigh Valley Coal was firm.

American Light & Traction preferred was strong among the utilities advancing nearly 4 points to 120. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore also was strong and a fractional gain was made in Southeastern Power. Bonds were actively traded at advances.

$70,000 INCINERATOR RENTED FOR HOG PEN

Structure Abandoned by City Brings $75 Monthly From Serum Concern.

Instead of paying a watchman $90 a month to guard the abandoned municipal garbage incinerator, at the foot of Chouteau avenue, the city is getting $75 a month rent for the place as a hog pen of the National Serum Co. in the production of serum for treatment of hog diseases.

The incinerator was used for a number of months in 1922 and 1923 to dispose of part of the city's garbage, without odor, but its cost of operation was excessive and it was shut down. It was cheaper to pay a hog raiser to carry the garbage away.

Charles L. Rea of Kansas City at present has the contract, receiving 74 cents a ton for removing garbage, which he feeds to hogs on an island in the Mississippi south of St. Louis. The city delivers the garbage to barges for him at the foot of Chouteau avenue, close to the old incinerator. About 69,000 tons of garbage is collected here annually.

Plant Near River Bank.

Rea's son, Stanley Rea, of the Belbourne Hotel, operating the National Serum Co., rented the incinerator premises about four months ago. He told the Comptroller's office that owners of neighboring industrial property had no objection to his keeping hogs there, and he was given permission to do so as long as no complaint is made. No homes are in the vicinity. The plant is between railroad switch tracks and the river bank.

Stanley Rea is out of town. William and John Hartman, brothers, who attend to his hogs, said about 90 were kept there at a time, for an average period of two weeks, in wooden pens erected outside the incinerator building. A ton and a half of garbage daily is delivered there, from the city workhouse and city hospital, they said, and fed to the hogs. Garbage from these institutions is selected, they said, to obtain comparatively good refuse. The hogs are vaccinated before being taken there, and after the vaccinations have taken effect, they said, blood is taken from the hogs and shipped to Kansas City for manufacture of the serum. Then the hogs are shipped to the Rea island for fattening.

Say Law Is Not Violated.

Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks, whose department collects garbage, was unaware of this use of the incinerator until informed by the Post-Dispatch. He said disposition of the garbage was a matter of concern only to Charles Rea. Neither Director Brooks nor Assistant Comptroller Cunningham saw any objection to the keeping of hogs at this location.

A city ordinance says that all pigpens "in which pigs are kept within the limits of the city, to the annoyance, injury, inconvenience or detriment of any person within the city, shall be deemed a nuisance." Courts have ruled that pigpens near dwellings plainly were nuisances. At the City Counselor's office it was said there likely was no law violation at the incinerator-pigpen so long as it was not a nuisance to anybody.

Assistant Health Commissioner Kaufman said he would investigate the pig pen and determine whether it was a nuisance. The usual interpretation of the hog ordinance by his department, in the case of slaughter houses, is to permit keeping of hogs only long enough to kill and butcher them.

Rob Jefferson City Police Again.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 9.—Chief of Police Joseph Bruns of Jefferson City is considering the installation of a burglar alarm system in the police station here, following robbery of his office last night for the second time in three months. The thief took $25 from a compartment in the chief's desk. In the first robbery of his desk $14.50 was stolen.

The trio passed saws to prisoners in the jail. They are Mitchell Portlock, Hazel Morgan and Carrie Lee Jackson. They were held under bond of $100 each.

Divorce, the Quitter's Refuge

Margaret Banning Urges Women to Get Up and Fight and Not Seek Haven of the Indolent—Don't, She Advises Wives, Put All Your Eggs in One Basket, but Reach Out for New Interests.

By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL.

"MARRIAGE is still the only job most women ever have. Then why shouldn't they try to make the best of it, instead of the worst? Why should women go around with almost an air of pride because they have failed in marriage—that is, divorce? A woman is not proud of being fired from any other job. And, while the divorced wife may argue that what she has done is to resign her position, the fact remains that often she has been fired from it."

That is the philosophy of American marriage and divorce summarized by one of America's brilliant women novelists, Margaret Culkin Banning. The author of a number of careful studies of contemporary American life, cast in fictional form, Mrs. Banning in her newest book, "The Women of the Family," discusses with fine courage the problem of the woman who thinks marriage is a failure and doesn't know what to do about it.

NO NEED TO WITHER

"Get up and fight!" says Mrs. Banning in effect. "Don't take to melancholia or the divorce court, the refuges of timid or indolent women. There is much in life for every woman besides the husband who isn't all that she imagined him to be." Or, as a wise old woman tells a sad young one, in "The Women of the Family":

"The fear of life, the distrust and dislike of it which comes to women when love goes bad on them—can be conquered. You can't turn your eyes away and give up because you're sick with disappointment and bewildered with the puzzle. Life can be lived as it is and satisfaction kept alive and interest kept alive—and women need not wither because love and husbands fail them."

"You feel that divorce is the quitter's way out?" I asked the author of this topic creed of martial courage.

"Yes, in too many cases," she answered. "Women today are not trying hard enough to make marriage succeed. They are not willing to make enough of an effort. Of course, there are exceptions; if a woman is married to a murderer or a rake or some other impossible person, divorce may be the solution.

"But it seems to me that the big increase in American divorces is due to the fact that the men are getting crosser, less kind, the women getting vainer, more idle. I can't see anything good coming out of it—neither happiness nor social security. For in most cases—again there are exceptions—the persons who can't make a success of one marriage won't make a success of another. If they can't learn anything in their first marriage they'll be just as stupid in handling their second."

DON'T GET TOO CLOSE

Then, at my request, Mrs. Banning, herself happily married, spoke of some of the mistakes which she thinks the modern woman makes in managing marriage.

"Women," she began, "romanticize marriage too much. They always have, and what interests me is that the modern, intelligent, educated and sophisticated woman keeps right on romanticizing it. Yet, what is marriage? A civil institution. Why try to make something so romantic of that?

"Another mistake which women make in marriage is in trying to get too close to their husbands. The modern woman commits that error, too. She wants her freedom and independence and all that, but she wants, at the same time, always to be in the closest proximity to her husband and all that he does and says and thinks. Now, two human beings can seldom live happily in such intimate contact. What they need is more freedom, more space around them, less jostling. If I were asked what the average wife should do in order to make more successful her relationship with her husband I think I should answer, 'Let him alone!'"

I reminded Mrs. Banning that she had recently appalled Vassar College, of which she is an alumna, by declaring that one trouble with the college woman is that she has no charm. "Is that one of the reasons why the modern wife may fail?" I asked.

"The intelligent woman—the business woman as well as the college graduate—often needs to be more charming in her marriage," averred Mrs. Banning. "The trouble with her is that she tries to fight everything through on the lines of intellect. She has lost the ability to listen. She is lacking in grace, tenderness.

"More fluidity is what many marriages need—the ability to move in a new direction. So many are unhappy because one person stands still while the other grows."

"But you think," I suggested, "that a wife ought not in the colloquialism, to put all her eggs in one basket, that there ought to be something more in life for her than the husband who is less than she imagined him?"

"There IS so much more in life for her today if she will reach out and take it!" Mrs. Banning declared with emphasis. "A woman says, 'My home and my children are enough.' But why should they be? What would we think of a man if he went around saying: 'My home and my children are enough?'

MANY FIELDS OPEN TO HER

"Of course, if a woman is a working mother and housewife, she has her hands full. But I am thinking of the woman who isn't that, who marries early and has her children early so that they are at school and out of her life—except for a few hours a day—by the time she is thirty-two. There ought to be something for her to do or she will feel herself a waste and be one—smoking too much, drinking too much, playing cards badly, spending too much money.

"The thing to do is to find SOME interest in life that is your very own—not an imitation of your neighbor's interest—and take it with a real seriousness—the same seriousness which your husband has for his business. Make a personality and a place for yourself, and you'll find your marriage easier to handle. And don't give up trying to make that work.

"What I want to see the modern girl do is to develop a great pride about marriage," finished Mrs. Banning. "Let her know what she's up against and not go into it unless she means to see it through. I think there ought to be for successful wives a society with badges reading, 'I have been married only once.' Divorce ought to be a stigma in a new sense—not, you understand, a social stigma, but a stigma on a woman's capability."

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeannette Young Norton

Last-Minute Pickles and Relishes.

AMERICANS are adopting the English chutneys that are so delightful with cold meats.

Have all the wide-mouthed bottles clean and warm, with well-fitting tight corks and sealing wax at hand when the hot chutney is poured into them.

Apple Chutney.

Pare, core and dice three pounds of firm tart apples. Put three pounds of brown sugar, a half pound of salt, and three quarts of vinegar into a kettle and let it heat long enough to dissolve the sugar and salt, then strain it. Place the liquid in the preserve kettle and add the apples, two pounds of small seedless raisins, a half pound of green ginger washed and thinly sliced, six ounces of the tiny sweet peppers or chillies, two ounces of mustard seed, six sliced shallots, and four Spanish onions sliced very thin. Cover and cook very gently until the apples and onions are tender, stirring often and well. Pour into the wide bottles and when cold cork and seal. Store in a cool, dry place. If the kettle is wiped with a cut bud of garlic before putting in the ingredients, and a saltspoonful of cayenne is added, it will improve the savory flavor.

Tomato Chutney.

Pour boiling water over six pounds of firm tomatoes and remove their skins. Cut the tomatoes in slices and place in a preserve kettle with three pounds of tart apples pared, cored and diced. Add three pints of vinegar, four cloves of garlic chopped fine, and boil until the fruit is soft, then put all through a puree sieve. Return to the kettle and add a generous half pound of coarse brown sugar, four ounces of salt, six ounces of ground ginger, one ounce of mustard seed, a level teaspoonful of mixed ground spices, and a half teaspoonful of celery seed. Boil gently for half an hour. Add a half pound of seedless raisins, one sweet pepper, seed cone removed, sliced in the thinnest slices possible, and a very thinly sliced lemon with pits removed. When cold bottle, cork and seal.

Peach Chutney.

Pare and cut fine four pounds of firm good flavored peaches, pare, core and chop two pounds of tart apples, chop fine two Spanish onions, wash and slice thin a half pound of green ginger root, peel and seed three sweet peppers and chop fine. Add a small can of chopped preserved pineapple, four pounds of brown sugar and three quarts of vinegar. Add a saltspoonful of cayenne and a teaspoonful of mixed spices. Rub the preserve kettle with a cut bud of garlic before putting in the ingredients. Cook gently until the fruits and onions are tender. Skim until clear. It should be done in three-quarters of an hour, or even less time. If liked, a pound of seedless raisins may be added to cook with the mass and they will improve the flavor. Pour into a clean crock and let stand until cold, then bottle and seal.

Because there is no effective substitute for milk, every satisfactory diet should include one quart of milk and leafy vegetable every day.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

WHEN I read of ancient sages, men of distant climes and ages, much I marvel at their majesty and might; when I hear their voices thunder down from eons past I wonder at those souls which soared so loftily in flight. I, by contrast, go unlettered, yet serenely, all unfettered by the doubts that dogged the footsteps of the great, I am free from aching yearning, from ambition, ever burning, safe from envy's shafts that splendid lives create. Knowing just life's simple phases, I am humble as the daisies; yet I love, as they, the shade and power and sun. Though unlettered, all earth's sweetness comes to me in its completeness, and I joy in all the beauty time has spun.

SLEEVELESS COATS

While a large number of the new English evening wraps are being made on the coat principle, with inset sleeves, some women prefer the sleeveless, cloak style of garment. English designers are trying hard to do away with the old stereotyped circular cape. A cape which is finished in a triangle is one of the results. It is made in velvet or fur.

Let those who would affect singularity with success first determine to be very virtuous, and they will be sure to be very singular.—Colton.

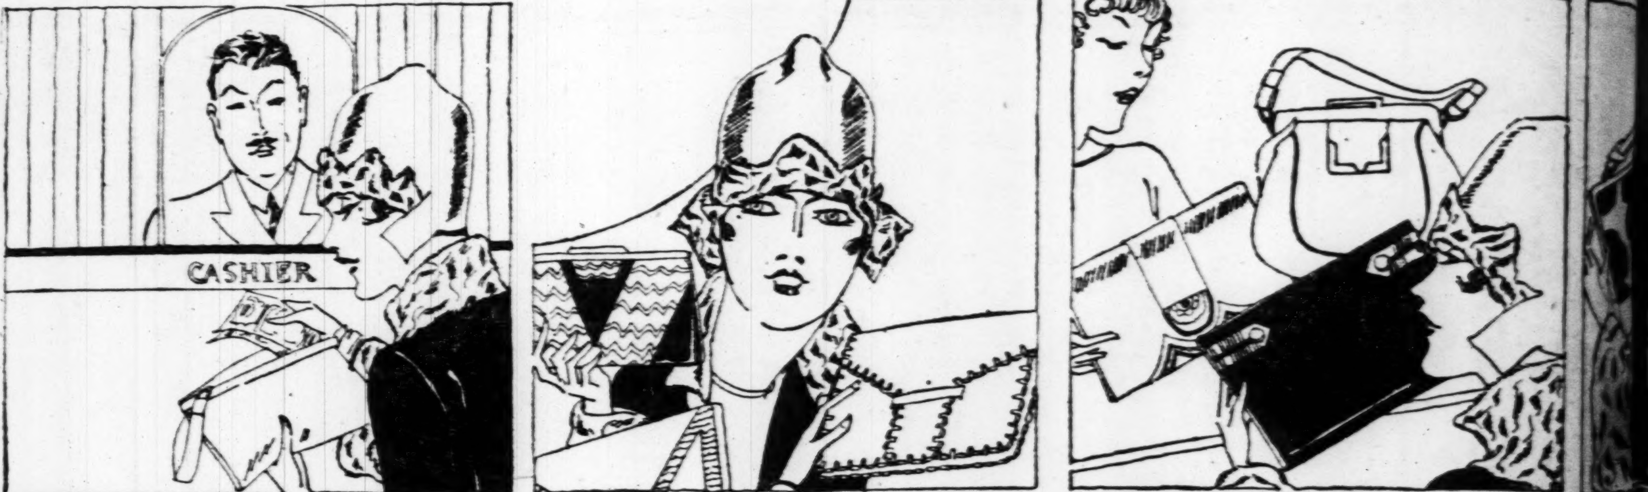
MODISH MITZI

"Money Is to Spend Not to Carry," Says Mitzi

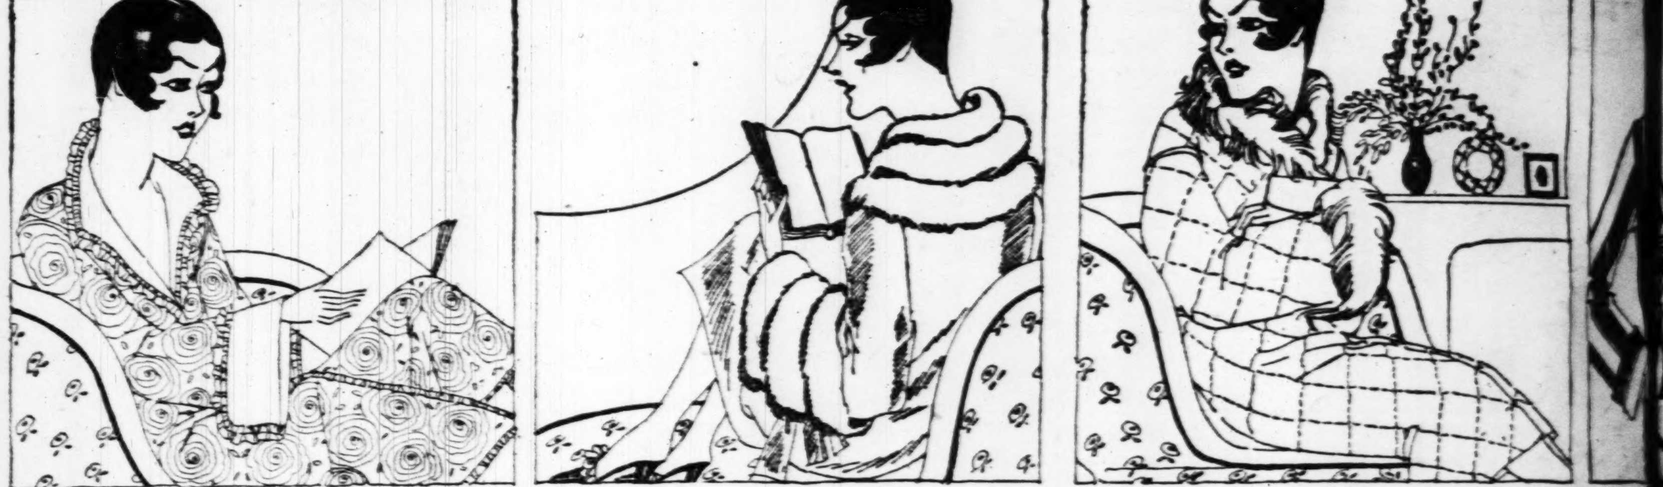
y Jay V. Jay



Thirty, forty, fifty—well, it's all there. (Catch a cashier making a mistake anyway.) But Mitzi notices that her pocket book is not as new as it once was. She might just as well take the cash in hand and go hunting for a purse. When you have money you just do have to have something decent to carry it in.

The question is which? The one with the ziggy lines to it? It's made of a metallic colored leather. Or the one of pigskin with the edges bound with leather strips? Mitzi's considering her costume, of course, in the selection of her bag. It must be effective from an ensemble viewpoint.

Mitzi is buying bags right and left. The black silk with the gold braid will go with her military dress. The pouch bag the saleslady is showing will do for her dolman sleeve coat. And perhaps she really ought to take the pocket book with the tab fastening because it would suit almost anything.



It's not the book that is sending the shivers up and down Mitzi's spine. It's the atmosphere. Something ought to be done about it. Her printed silk dressing robe is too thin. She'd like one that was steam-heated right now.

The silk robe with the deep collar and cuffs of marabou ought to give a little more warmth. The furnace must be out of commission. This dressing robe looks a great deal warmer than it feels decides Mitzi.

How warm can a negligee be? Mitzi is sure that the answer is "not warm enough." Anyway she has put on her quilted negligee of changeable satin. The neck and the sleeves are trimmed with ostrich feathers. Where's that draft anyway?

Children's Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess

No One to Play With

'Tis only folk who work each day
That ever know the joy of play.
—Old Mother Nature.

PETER RABBIT, who has nothing to do but play, really never has known the real joy of play. Peter is always sorry for people who have to work, and people who have work to do are always sorry for Peter. That is the way of the world. Peter thinks that working is a waste of time, but, of course, Peter is mistaken.

Every fall, just on the edge of cold weather, Peter has a discontented spell. The only trouble is he has no one to play with. If he could play by himself, he would be all right. Very few people want to play by themselves. Most folks want somebody else to play with, and in this Peter is just like other folks. So it is at this certain season of the year he has a period of discontent. Everybody he knows has either gone away, or is getting ready to go away, or is working to prepare for the coming winter. Nobody wants to play. And not a few of Peter's friends turn up their noses at him because he finds nothing to do but play.

Peter delights to hang around where others are at work

Peter delights to hang around where others are at work, so he spent a great deal of time over where the Squirrel cousins were working so hard to fill their storehouses and were worrying while they worked. But Peter didn't worry. He didn't worry one teeny, weeny bit, yet he didn't have one mouthful of food saved up for the winter.

"What's the use?" demanded Peter, when Rusty the Fox Squirrel wondered that Peter didn't worry at all. "What's the use? I always come through the winter somehow, and I guess I always will. Worrying is what I call borrowing trouble. I don't like to borrow anything, not even trouble."

"You'll worry all right when the ground is covered with snow and ice and you have nothing to eat," declared Rusty. "Then you'll wish you had stored up some food, the way I have. I won't have anything to worry about."

"Yes you will," chuckled Peter. "I know you. You'll be worrying just as you are now. You'll be worrying for fear your food won't last until the winter is over. I never knew it to fail. People who worry can always find something to worry about. Now I am a happy-go-lucky."

Rusty chuckled. "I'll say you are," said he. "You are the most happy-go-lucky fellow of my acquaintance. But let me tell you something, Peter Rabbit. Life wasn't intended to be all play."

"And it wasn't intended to be all work," interrupted Peter.

Rusty nodded his head. "Right, Peter, quite right," said he. "Do you know of anybody who plays any harder than my cousins and me when it is time to play? Let me tell you something, Peter."

"Go ahead," said Peter, good-naturedly, "I'm listening."

"You don't know the real fun of play."

Peter opened his eyes very wide. "What nonsense!" he exclaimed.

"No, it isn't nonsense," replied Rusty. "It is only those who have done honest work and have earned the right to play who know the real fun of play. Think it over, Peter. Now I've got some work to do and I can't waste any more time." With this away went Rusty to hunt for hickory nuts. Peter watched him for a few moments, then went to look for some one to play with. But though he looked and looked, he couldn't find any one else with nothing to do. So he became discontented and unhappy, while those who had work to do didn't have time to be unhappy.

Creole Chicken or Jambolaya.

One medium-sized fowl, two cups tomato, one cup okra, one cup chopped sweet peppers, one-quarter cup chopped onion, one-half cup rice, one teaspoon salt, one cup boiling water, one tablespoon fat.

Dress the fowl and cut into joints. Melt the fat, add onion and pepper. Cook for a few minutes to develop flavor. Then add salt, tomato and okra, and simmer for 10 minutes. Place layers of the chicken, vegetable mixture and rice in cooking vessel until all is used. Pour over this one cup boiling water. Simmer for one-half hour and put in fireless cooker for three hours without the hot disk or two hours with it. Additional seasoning of ham or bacon, parsley and bayleaf may be used.

Milton Work's Pointers On Auction Bridge

DO NOT BID A NO TRUMP IF YOU HAVE A BLANK SUIT OR A WORTHLESS SINGLETON.

By MILTON C. WORK

MANY players who know the high-card strength needed to justify the original bid of No Trump, do not appreciate tha there are No Trump danger signals in the face of which a sound bidder would be less apt to bid No Trump than a careful engineer would to run past the red light at full speed. For instance, a blank suit is an absolute No Trump taboo, no matter how strong the hand may be. The stronger the hand, the better it is for a suit bid; but the menace of a cardless suit is just as great for a No Trumper, no matter how many aces and kings the hand may contain.

With a worthless singleton, the danger that the adversaries will save the game by running that short suit is almost as great. It may even be that an adversary will have sufficient length in that short suit to defeat the No Trump contract of a declarer who could have made game at a suit-bid. I have often said, "Never bid a No Trump with a worthless singleton, unless you have a worthless partner"; and the partner would have to be pretty bad to justify risking the bid, merely to make him dummy and thus avoid the loss of tricks which he might be expected to throw away if he played the hand.

Today's pointer and those for a few days to come, all refer to the initial bid of a No Trump. Initial bids are made by players whose partners have not been heard from, that is, they are bids made by the dealer or by second hand after a pass by dealer. The bid by third hand after two passes (the partner having been one of the passers) requires greater strength and I shall give a pointer about that later on.

Now for a hand for you to think over until tomorrow. Suppose dealing at the beginning of a rubber, you held:

Spades: King. Hearts: Ace-x-x-x. Diamonds: Ace-x-x-x. Clubs: A-x-x-x-x (x means any card of lower value than the 10). What would you declare? Of course you understand in stating the question this way I am not suggesting that you should bid, because a pass is a declaration.

Do Not Bid a No Trump Initially Unless You Have a No Trump Distribution.

By that I mean size up your 13 cards and be sure that a no trump is your wisest declaration in view of the distribution of your cards into suits. The ideal distribution for a no trump is 4-3-3-3; that is, four cards in one suit and three cards in each of the other three suits.

Above I called a blank suit or a worthless singleton a no trump taboo; a red signal announcing such imminent and serious danger that it should stop the declaration from being made. Today I add two more distributional types which, while not bearer of a no trump verboten sign warn the bidder that the no trump is a dangerous declaration, to be made—if at all—only after careful consideration. These two dangerous distributions are worth while singletons and worthless two-card suits. For no trump purposes a "worth while singleton" is a singleton ace or king; a singleton queen is of doubtful value and any lower singleton is worthless. A queen with any other card makes a worth while doubleton; jack is of doubtful value and a doubleton containing no card as high as a jack is worthless. I will illustrate by citing some hands:

Spades: Ace. Hearts: Ace-x-x-x. Diamonds: Ace-x-x-x. Clubs: Ace-x-x-x, should be bid no trump; the Singleton ace is worth while, and the "hundred aces" is an added attraction.

Spades: King. Hearts: Ace-x-x-x. Diamonds: Ace-x-x-x. Clubs: Ace-x-x-x (our question hand of yesterday) is more doubtful, but the singleton King is worth while; the hand is too strong to pass, and it has no attractive suit-bid. So the process of elimination makes a no-trump the best declaration.

With a 4-4-3-2 division of the suits, there are many hands which are sound no trumpers, even when the two-card suit is headed by a spot card, and consequently "worthless."

Spades: 3-2. Hearts: Ace-King-Jack. Diamonds: King-Jack-9-4. Clubs: Queen-Jack-9-5, is amply strong enough to bid no trump in spite of the spade menace, but with a fair five-card suit or a strong four-card suit, a worthless doubleton should steer the declaration from the no trump to the major suit, especially if it be a major. Such hands as:

Spades: Queen-10-x-x-x. Hearts: Ace-King-x. Diamonds: Ace-Queen-10. Clubs: x-x, and Spades: Ace-King-jack-x. Hearts: Ace-King-x. Diamonds: King-jace-9-4. Clubs: x-x, are much better spade than no trump bids. With:

Spades: x-x. Hearts: King-x. Diamonds: Ace-King-x-x-x. Clubs: Ace-x-x-x, one diamond is a better bid than on no trump. In addition to a worthless doubleton, the hand contains one other "thin" suit for a no trump; so a suit-bid is wiser.

Now here is another type of dealer's hand; how should it be declared? Spades: x-x-x. Hearts. Ace-x-x-x. Diamonds: King-x-x. Clubs: Queen-jack-x. Answer tomorrow.

A Beauty Spot in Old Holland

ABOVE the gray waters of the Zuider Zee, in picturesque Holland, rising on a collection of hillocks, are the quaint dwellings of the Isle of Marken. The sight that awaits you as the boat approaches this unique spot is a delight to the they. A group of children in gaily colored fantastic costumes are gathered to extend a welcome to the arrivals. These are our little Dutch cousins, with whom we are acquainted only through pictures and descriptions in story books.

The little girls, with their two long yellow ringlets hanging from either side of the encircling white lace caps with the stiffly cropped fringes on their foreheads, are holding on to the hands of their little brothers and sisters. The quaint babies—boys and girls—are dressed alike up to the age of 7, in full long skirts and round colored caps. It is difficult to tell which are the boys and which the girls, as the only mark of distinction is a slight difference in the cap.

This is Sunday and the men are resting after the week's work, sitting on their heels in solemn, taciturn circles, their short clay pipes dangling from between their teeth. The Dutch fisherman cuts a quaint figure, indeed, in his artistically carved wooden shoes, in his baggy breeches and his astrakan headgear.

The people of Marken are poor. Their only means of livelihood is fishing. Although passive and stolid on land, the men are very active and daring on the ocean waves. They spend most of their lifetime in the spray of the briny deep, hauling in their nets, wading hip-deep into the water.

The women folk, in their odd costumes and lace caps with gold ornaments, take great pride in showing you through their little old painted wooden houses with their bright tiles and shining brass. The interiors of these charming homes are immaculate. The patter of the little wooden shoes on the street recall you outdoors, where you are permitted to snap a picture of groups of these colorful children.

Is it any wonder that throngs of painters, artists and tourists block yearly to the Isle of Marken?

AMERICA'S MOST FAMOUS RECIPE

Have you compared it with your own?

Are American women becoming the world's cleverest cooks? This is what a visitor from France recently wrote. Certainly in no other country are women so constantly collecting and testing new recipes. Nowhere else is there such a vast number to choose from.

And yet in no other country has a single recipe ever been selected by so many millions of cooks. Perfected down on the old plantation years ago, the recipe for Aunt Jemima's tender, fragrant pancakes with their old-time flavor, is today used throughout the entire United States.

While her master lived, Aunt Jemima refused to reveal the secret of those light, fluffy pancakes. No other cook could match their taste.

Today her recipe comes to you ready-mixed, her own ingredients proportioned just as she used them, in Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour. It offers the only way to have pancakes just like her own, tender and golden-brown, with that old-time plantation flavor.

See how the faces around the table light up, when you first serve Aunt Jemima's cakes. Plan now to test her famous recipe—ready-mixed. Your grocer has Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour and her Prepared Buckwheat Flour.

Pyorrhea's victims

Go to your dentist at least twice a year. And start using Forhan's for the Gums, today. This dentifrice, the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., prevents Pyorrhea or checks its course.

Forhan's keeps gum tissue firm and healthy. It protects teeth against acids which cause decay and keeps them a lustrous white.

Use Forhan's regularly, morning and night. Teach your children this good habit. They will thank you in later years.

The Man on the Sandbox

(Lyrics by Limeric Luke.)

THERE was a man in Williamson
And he was wondrous smart;
He saw the way to beat the gun
Was by a flying start.
Accordingly he hauled his freight,
With wondrous speed and vim,
And his beloved native state
Had seen the last of him.

To friends that he had left behind,
He wrote some postal-cards,
Expressing thoughts and wishes kind,
As well as best regards.
For weeks he waited for replies,
But answers there were none,
Which wasn't odd as bootleg guys
Had got them, every one.

But he will smile

HASH.

Prof. Lippincott who champions the cause of hash is deserving of the praise of all good men and women. Hash is a wonderful dish and it fairly teems with calories, vitamines and other things.

The fact that hash is supposed to be the piece de resistance for all boarding house tables is nothing against it. Star boarders, hall-room boys, Emperors, Princes, stable boys, touts, box fighters, Presidents, Senators and bootleggers have all eaten hash and thrived thereon. It's a swell dish if you ask us.

In some cases elections are so close that it takes the mail vote to decide it. In other cases the female vote is the deciding factor.

How old is Jackie Coogan? Well, he puts 12 candles on his birthday cake if that means anything.

See where it is against the law in Italy to take a shot at Mussolini. Anybody doing so will be punished to the full extent of the law.

However, to show that she is strictly neutral in the matter of climate she will lay off of Florida, also.
